THE CLEVELAND FLOWER SHOW.

H. P. Knoble, chairman of the general committees of the Cleveland flower show, called a special meeting October 15 of all the committeemen in charge of the various departments of the show work. One of the most important things decided upon was to appoint special representatives of the Cleveland flower show in each of the large shipping centers for the purpose of working out details with the express companies for special car service so that all exhibits will reach Cleveland before 8 a. m. November 8, when the chrysanthemums will be staged, and again November 9, for roses and carnations. The following men have been appointed in the different districts:

Boston: Patrick Welch, Allan Peirce.
New York: John Young, Alex. J. Guttman.
Philadelphia: E. J. Fancourt, Adolph Farenwald, Fred Cowperthwaite.
Pittsburgh: W. A. Clark, E. J. McCallum.
Columbus, O.: Livingston Seed Co.
Cincinnati: C. E. Critchell.
Indianapolis: O. E. Steinkamp.
Chicago: C. J. Michelson, J. C. Vaughan, Fred Lantenschlager.
St. Louis: J. J. Beneke.
Milwaukee: Helton & Hunkel Co.
Detroit: Robt. Rahaley.
Buffalo: Wm. F. Kasting Co., S. A. Anderson, W. J. Palmer.
Rochester: George B. Hart.
Toronto: G. M. Geraghty.
Special representatives at large: Sam Seligman and Walter Cook.

They have all been asked to obtain as soon as possible the time of leaving for express from each city and announce this to both the private and commercial growers in their districts. The serious congestion of express matter in the east was discussed and, if there are similar congested conditions at the time of shipping exhibits to Cleveland, it was suggested that exhibitors plan on reserving Pullman drawing rooms and then load all exhibits in the Pullman instead of using the express car, thus assuring the arrival of all exhibits on the same train with the exhibitors. It was decided to appoint a special committee to have charge of the receipt of shipments and they were instructed to place a man at the depots with a special truck at his command to assure the exhibitors of prompt delivery service to Grays Armory, where the show is to be held.

All committee chairmen reported their work in such shape as to insure the success of this, the only big fall trade show in this country this year.

EXHIBITORS AT ILLINOIS MEET.

The following firms have taken space in the flower show to be held at Galesburg, November 6 and 7, by the Illinois State Florists' Association:

Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago; Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia.; American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago; A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; Ionia Pottery Co., Ionia, Mich.; John C. Moninger Co., Chicago; Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago; the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago; Chicago Feed & Fertilizer Co.; A. Dietsch & Co., Chicago, and the Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago.

A trade display such as this assures success and it will pay every florist in the state of Illinois to attend.

WAR'S WAY WITH WORK AND WOMEN

WOMEN IN GREENHOUSES.

Replace Men Called to War.

War has called so many young men that florists everywhere are complaining about the shortage of labor in all branches of the trade. While this condition is causing considerable trouble in the United States, the florists of Canada were hit much harder. Great Britain's need for men in the early stages of the war was so great that practically everyone capable of bearing arms was called. This exodus of men left many vacancies in the trade, which have been filled as far as possible with women.

One of the establishments where women are employed in the greenhouses is that of the Dale Estate, Brampton, Ont. The innovation has been tried during the last two years and it has been found that the women workers are as proficient as men. In some branches of greenhouse work, it is declared, they show greater dexterity, especially where the fingers are used, as in bunching violets, stringing carnations and weeding.

The forewoman, for the thirty or more women employed at the Brampton establishment are supervised by one of their sex, asserts that women have proved themselves capable of taking the places vacated by the men.

"Naturally, as long as this wretched war lasts women are likely to remain in the greenhouse work, so far as I can judge. Compare the interesting variety of work they are called on to undertake; the hours they have to spend under glass, and the wear and tear on their inexpensive clothes—compare these factors with those involved in munition making, or factory work of any kind, and it will be found that the life in the country, away from the noise of machinery and the hubbub incidental to crowded cities, has far less wasting effect upon the average woman's constitution and a great deal more to recommend it generally than one could have foreseen in the good old days before the war began."

Prove Capable Workers.

This is what the forewoman at the Dale Estate, Brampton, Ont., said when she was asked if the employment of women in greenhouses had proved a success. In charge of between thirty and forty of her sex, whose ages range from 18 to 38 years, she proudly asserted that during the last two years there had been no task set them that they had failed to accomplish.

"Just show them once how to bunch violets, and there is no further trouble," she continued. "Their fingers are much quicker than men's; and so with disbudding carnations."

"How about stringing carnations?" was asked.

"The girls can do it in nearly half the time, only the bending over renders it a less likable job, like weeding, for instance. However, picking carnations, counting and grading them, and putting them away in the cellar is comparatively simple labor. They carry in the roses, grade them carefully and put them away in vases in the cellar to await shipment. They also cut the valley and grade it, and pick asparagus and adiantum occasionally. They clean the orchids, and regard this as rather a responsible task. At present some are tying up mums and others are planting bulbs."

"No, they do not find the work monotonous. If there is any sign of dullness, someone usually starts up a chorus like 'Old Folks at Home,' or 'Over There,' and they will sing away for a couple of hours, working all the while, almost without knowing it. They work best in groups of seven or eight, with someone with them to set the pace."

Many Scorn Overalls.

"How about overalls? Do they prefer them to ordinary clothes?"

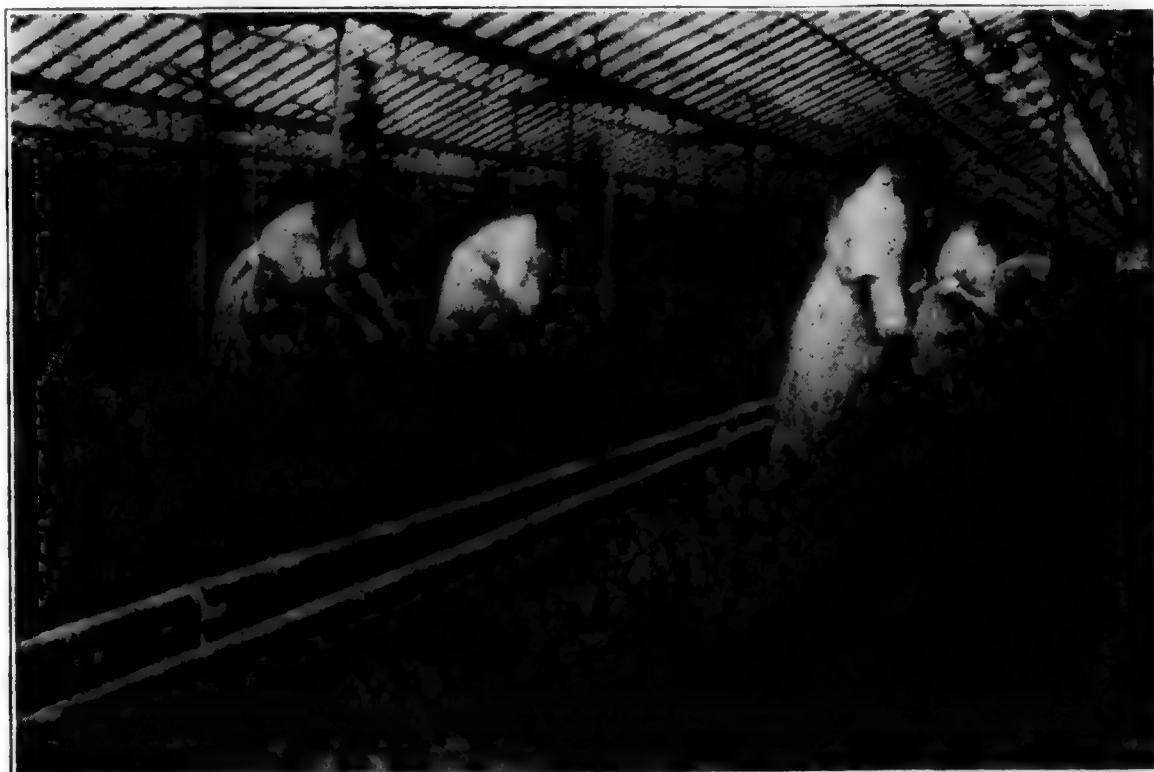

"Some do and some do not. Many stick to their thick aprons rather than run the risk of being taken for a man; and while there are some jobs that are more conveniently done in overalls, dress has been allowed to remain a matter of personal choice."

"How about the hours?"

"They do not grumble. They can all get to and from work in ten minutes or so. They do not have to hang on to a strap in a noisy car, and they enjoy healthier air, both in summer and winter, than ninety per cent of the women who leave their homes to earn a living."

Reference was made to the girls wearing little aprons with pockets on each side. These were specially made to replace boxes that formerly were used to hold the carnation shoots and buds. The apron bag is on the spot all the time, and a great deal of time is saved.

In some of the women the ambition to grow something is already developing, and it may not be long, judging by the careful manner in which they study cultural notes in The Florists' Review,

THE TRADE'S FIRST CHAUFFEUSE.

See whom we have with us today—the trade's first chauffeuse!

The war has called women into many new and untried vocations, and it is evident that women do not shrink from assuming duties which involve labor of a more or less strenuous character, nor from exposure to all kinds of weather. Women are proving also that they can learn to understand machinery and they are making good in positions requiring mechanical skill, strength and courage.

Miss Bernice Keeler, of Canton, O., is an example of a woman who has entered upon an occupation in which women were not employed until wartime stress made it expedient for women to take over many of the customary duties of men.

Miss Keeler has enlisted in the ranks of women mobilized for war service by taking the position of chauffeur for A. T. Pollard, one of Canton's best known florists. She is serving her country by making it possible for a man to enlist in the new national army. Uncle Sam is mustering from every vocation throughout this broad land. She is the first woman to drive a florists' delivery truck and she is Canton's first woman chauffeur.

The occasion of the assumption of her new duties by this wartime chauffeur was a spectacular one. Men, women and children observed with interest the progress of her initial trip and many congratulations were offered this plucky young recruit to the ranks of women enlisted for patriotic duty. She demonstrated her efficiency in the management of the auto, which she operates with admirable skill, and she serves customers with courtesy and promptness.

A khaki suit of military design and a cap similar to that worn by officers of the U. S. army were worn by this wartime chauffeur, and who will question her right to wear the uniform? A Chinese toy poodle named Reggy makes the rounds with Miss Keeler, and seems to appreciate the importance of the mission.

Miss Keeler believes that women should volunteer for service wherever possible to enable men to enlist. "Women are as efficient as men in many capacities and the time has come when women should aid the country," she says. "I like my work, chiefly because I am serving my country by doing it."

The idea of employing a woman as chauffeur was suggested to Mr. Pollard by a woman customer to whom he spoke of his difficulty in finding a boy to replace the man who, for the recruiting camp, had left this post on the car. Boys have become a scarce article, so many have been called upon to take men's places made vacant by enlistment. When it became known that Mr. Pollard would employ a woman for this work, six applications were received the first day, from women anxious to assume wartime responsibilities.

Mr. Pollard declares his intention of enlisting as soon as he can arrange for the conduct of his business during his absence. He says that he employed Miss Keeler solely from a patriotic desire to permit another man to enlist and he recommends to merchants of Canton and elsewhere the employment of women in place of men, to this end. He says that Miss Keeler will receive the same compensation as that paid to the man whose place she has taken.

Enchantress and her children have been a wonderful family, but carnations, like men, must give way to improvement."

Canterbury, England.—In few places has the war wrought greater changes in agricultural practice than in Kent, and certainly no county has shown greater resource in modifying its agricultural methods. Not long after the outbreak of war it became evident that the hop growing industry must be curtailed. In spite of the fact that the established hop gardens represent a large amount of capital, many hundreds of acres of hops were grubbed up and the oast houses turned into potato and other stores, or left to lie idle. Nowhere is the response to the changed conditions more remarkable than in the establishment of Mount & Sons. The roses for which this firm is famous have been in large measure replaced by market garden crops, only enough roses having been kept to maintain the stock of varieties. Both outdoors and in the houses previously devoted to roses, market garden crops have been planted, and the tomatoes under glass would be a credit to a grower who had specialized in that crop and nothing else. In the trial grounds, potatoes and other crops demonstrate that men who have learned to grow roses and carnations to perfection can turn their knowledge swiftly to good account in the cultivation of any other crop.

ROSES

WILL CHEAPEN ROSES?

If E. G. Hill is correct in his estimate of his own work the new rose, Columbia, will repeat what Killarney did in the matter of cheapening the cost of growing roses.

It often is complained that the price of roses in recent years has not exceeded, if it has equaled, the prices of the earlier days of the industry, in face of the steadily rising cost of doing business. Such a statement, however, fails to take account of the increased productiveness of Killarney and White Killarney as compared with Bridesmaid and The Bride. The returns per foot of bench space were perceptibly improved by the advent of Killarney, otherwise it would not have displaced the favorites of the day. Per flower, Killarney was grown more cheaply than Bride and Maid.

Mr. Hill thinks Columbia, a seedling of Ophelia, the easiest doer in cultivation today, by reason of its productivity, will still further cheapen the cost of growing roses. In which case, of course, Columbia will become the universal rose.

THREE COMPLAINTS.

Here are three complaints against that most popular of present-day forcing roses—most popular, at least, so far as the middle west and Pacific coast are concerned; it may be a slightly different story along the Atlantic:

Said a grower: "Mrs. Russell is so susceptible to black spot that even the most skillful and painstaking growers lose a crop every now and then." No doubt that is true, but own-root Russell seldom suffers from black spot; neither do grafted Russell appear to be specially susceptible to it in their second or later years, after the plants have made roots from above the graft. Emil Buettner says the only man he ever knew who did not have trouble with black spot grew own-root roses exclusively.

Said a retailer. "Long Russells are the source of many complaints from our customers; the knot, made in pinching to get long stems, does not let water pass readily, and in warm rooms a free flow of water is needed or the flowers wilt quickly." And yet Russell is by all odds the best keeping rose on the market.

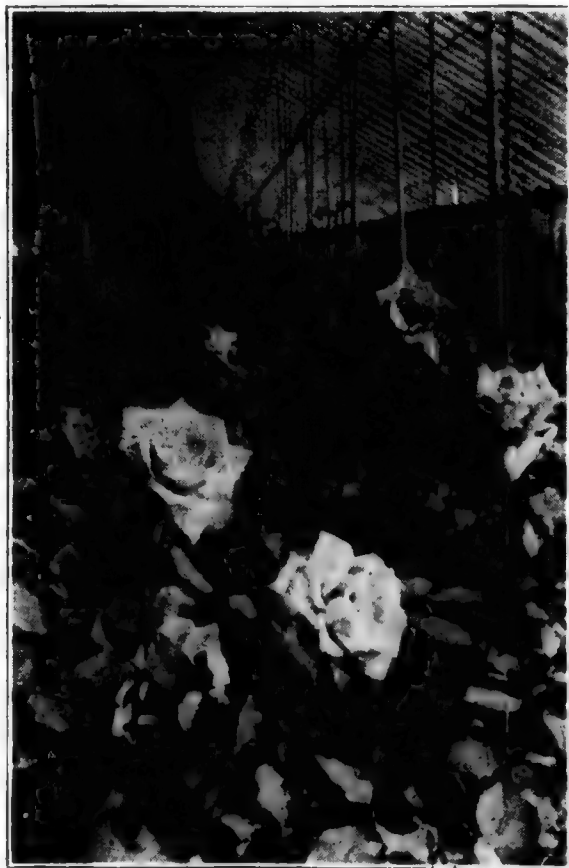

Said a customer: "The Russell does not open; it hangs on quite a while and then dries up; I like to watch a rose bud expand, to see it open wide and the petals fall—and then, when they are gone I like to buy some more." And yet Mrs. Russell is easily the best selling rose on the market today.

And yet again, there are growers who already are seeking Russell's successor.

NEW ROSE MRS. STOTESBURY.

Edward Towill, of Roslyn, Pa., rose grower and hybridizer, has a new seedling that he proposes distributing this season. It is a cross between Maryland and Joseph Hill crossed on Milady. It will be remembered that this rose, then in its first year, played a prominent part at the national rose show held in Philadelphia last March, when it was christened Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury with due pomp and ceremony by Mrs. Stotesbury's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Oliver Cromwell. Mr. Towill has 1,200 plants of Mrs. Stotesbury growing in his place at Roslyn. A New York grower who saw it a few days ago assured Mr. Towill that Mrs. Stotesbury would easily distance Killarney, Maryland and Mrs. George Shawyer, so you see that the new claimant for popular favor is a high stepper. Mrs. Stotesbury is a free grower, bearing large, full flowers of a beautiful pink, shaded to creamy white on the outer petals. The stems are strong and the foliage is good. Mr. Towill is confident that Mrs. Stotesbury will prove a profitable rose for general cultivation.

Towill's House of Mrs. Stotesbury Rose.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The following rose has been offered for registration in the American Rose Society by the Montgomery Co., Inc., of Hadley, Mass. Unless objections are received within two weeks from the publication of this notice, registration will be accepted:

Description—Name, Boston; class, hybrid tea; parentage, Mrs. George Shawyer and a Montgomery seedling. Habit of plant, most vigorous; character of foliage, abundant, round and medium green; freedom of growth and hardiness, free grower, long, erect stems, flower medium size and full to center; color, one-toned medium pink; form, globular; fragrance and bud, decidedly fragrant; petalage, average seventy-five petals; freedom of bloom and lasting quality, extremely free bloomer and good keeper.

This rose is similar to Mrs. George Shawyer, but, according to the grower, superior in that it is a deeper one-toned pink, is much more fragrant and a freer and stronger grower.

HYACINTHS FOR CHRISTMAS.

Please tell me the treatment necessary to bring Roman hyacinths into bloom for Christmas. What temperature should they have?

A. F. S.—N. C.

Your hyacinths should have been potted or placed in pans some time ago. Keep them covered with sand or coal ashes in a coldframe or cellar until they have sprouts two or three inches long, when they can be placed in a temperature of 60 degrees at night. They will flower in from four to six weeks in such a temperature. Move them to a lower temperature when the flower spikes are well opened.

C. W.

HYACINTHS IN POTS AND PANS.

Please tell me the names of the best hyacinths for forcing and state whether they should be planted in pots or in flats. I want to sell them in pots. How many bulbs should be planted in each pot, if pots are used?

S. G.—Ill.

Roman hyacinths are the earliest of the family to bloom. Pot these now, using seven bulbs to a 6-inch pot, or they can be grown in flats. A flat 12x24 inches and four or five inches deep will hold sixty to seventy bulbs. The Dutch hyacinths are used a good deal in pots and pans and large numbers are sold for Easter each year. The second-size bulbs would answer your purpose well and cost much less than fancy bulbs. A few good varieties are: Gertrude, rose pink; L'Innocence, pure white; La Grandesse, pure white; Queen of the Blues, light blue; King of the Blues, deep blue; Gigantea, blush pink.

Use a light, rich soil. Soak well after planting; then place on a cellar floor or in a coldframe and cover with sand or coal ashes. Look at them occasionally and give them water when it is needed. Bulbs often get insufficient water. Do not start them until the growths are two to three inches long. Stand an inverted pot, with the hole plugged, over each pot in order to help draw up the flower stalk. This will be unnecessary after the middle of March. For single bulbs use 4-inch and 5-inch pots. In 6-inch pots place three bulbs. The 8-inch pans are fine for hyacinths and will hold eight or ten of the second-size bulbs. Pot the bulbs as soon as you can secure them.

EXPERT AID FOR PUBLICITY.

"I want to thank you for the splendid way in which you are continuing to handle the publicity campaign that is now before the trade," writes W. F. Therkindson to The Review. "Naturally, as father of the plan I am greatly interested in its success. I am only sorry that I have not the time to devote to the raising of the money, but the president has placed it in capable hands, with George Asmus as chairman.

"I assure you that when this fund is raised, it will be my pleasure to put the best brains of the Poor Richard Club, of which I happen to be secretary, and my own efforts behind the actual advertising. This is going to put flowers in competition with the always popular gift, candy. And while it will have no tendency whatsoever to lower the sentiment that surrounds the gift, it will certainly have an elevating effect on the sale of candies and all other forms of gifts. In other words, candies will have to compete with flowers, much to the advantage of flowers.

"If there is anything that I can do that does not too seriously enter into my time, up to the time of the beginning of the campaign, I would be happy to have you advise me, expressing your desires, and will be glad to carry them out if possible."

ALL WHO PROFIT SHOULD HELP.

For some time I have been trying to get it through my head why at least twenty per cent of the 21,000 florists in this country and Canada did not rush forward with their contributions to the big S. A. F. publicity fund.

I'll confess, however, that to date I haven't been able to find a satisfactory answer as to why they haven't sent their contributions.

Elbert Hubbard used to get great pleasure out of a story he told. He said that one time, while visiting an insane asylum, he noticed one of the guards taking five or six husky lunatics on a cross-country tramp. Hubbard approached the guard and asked: "Aren't you afraid to do this? What's to prevent those fellows from turning on you and escaping? They could put you out of business in a minute if they got together and acted."

"That's just the trouble with them," answered the guard. "I can handle them because they will never get together. They can't organize—they're crazy."

Now, there isn't anyone in the country who has more respect for florists and for the florists' business than I have. I realize, however, that if we are going to put over the work we should put over, and achieve the success that we should achieve, we must organize.

All we have to raise is $50,000. If only 5,000 of the 21,000 men contributed $10 apiece, that fund would be raised in no time. As a matter of fact, many of the large growers have contributed more and many more should contribute much more.

In other walks of business life manufacturers and wholesalers contribute largely to local advertising campaigns. Practically all the big national advertisers back up the retailers with advertising matter of different kinds.

Why shouldn't the big growers and all others who are interested in the development of the florists' business contribute to advertising which will help build up the business of the retailer?

I am in this organization business body and soul. I believe in it through and through. It is only by cooperating, by working together shoulder to shoulder, by having the same definite ideal and by contributing generously to every movement which is designed to help all the florists, both big and little, that we can achieve the success we all desire—and deserve. William C. Gloeckner.

AN APPEAL TO THE GROWER.

The editor of Horticulture in last week's issue gave the growers a pretty strong talking to. I fully agree with his sentiments. Now let us stop arguing who is to pay for publicity. Action is needed, and needed immediately. It seems to have come at last, this action. We are all in the same boat, grower and retailer together.

Did you ever hear Wallace Pierson's story about the dog sitting on a bur and howling? If not, get him to tell it to you the next time you see him. It strikes home to our case. I could not tell you the story. If I tried to I would only make a mess of it, but it tells in an illustrative way the story of our needs. Now, Brother Grower, look up your ledger and you will notice how badly you need publicity. Here is a chance now started by public-spirited men to give it to you on a reasonable basis. It will be cooperation nation-wide. It will go to the smallest grower and town in the country. Now, do not be a slacker. Help to make this a success. Pay the little money that is needed of you according to your means. I have subscribed $100. My place covers 100,000 square feet of ground. Now figure out what you can do in proportion to this, and send your subscription to the secretary of the S. A. F., John Young, 53 West Twenty-eighth street, New York. You will be asked in a short time to pay about fifty per cent of this and the rest sometime in the future. This should not be hard on anybody for the great benefit which it will bring to your business. The agitation for economy all over the country will hurt flowers more than anything else if we do not counteract it at once with the proper publicity, for flowers are not a luxury, but absolutely necessary to civilization. This S. O. S. signal should go to every grower, and every grower should get on the band wagon now and make a success of this great undertaking. Now all together! A. Farenwald.

PUBLICITY FUND CAMPAIGN.

J. F. Ammann Appeals to Growers.

Just a few reasons why all growers should subscribe to the S. A. F. publicity fund.

From time immemorial advertising, or publicity, has been the greatest medium by which to develop and promulgate any industry or article. Take the greatest of all books, the most prominent in all the world. And what made it so but publicity? Were it not for the publicity given this great book and its wonderful teachings, it would not be so universally distributed. So it is, and always has been, with every commodity in human life. And the more worthy it is, the more it should be advertised.

Now then, our product—the flowers that cheer the room where the newly born child is ushered into a happy home, and on through the many birthdays in that home; that are used at the marriage altar, and to cheer and decorate the bridal chamber; and on even to bringing comfort to the sorrowing in the sad hour of a loved one's departure—are they not worthy products? Is our product worthy of the publicity we should give it? Well, I guess we have proven that it is.

Now, getting right down to a strictly commercial proposition, what per cent of our incomes have we been devoting to advertising? Well, none!

Its Great Possibilities.

Is it not wonderful, after all, that our business has existed so long, let alone prospered as it has, without any definite advertising? Why, I truly believe no other manufacturing business on earth could have stood so long without spending more than we have for advertising. And this sums the whole matter up to the fact that the product of our business is so worthy that there is a great demand for it without any publicity. Now, if this is true, and I believe it is, just think of the wonderful possibilities in store for us with the proper kind of publicity.

The question is, "What is the proper kind of publicity?" Coöperative, of course, first of all, then individual publicity later.

Therefore I believe that no greater opportunity was ever given the growers of flowers than is presented in the S. A. F. publicity campaign to properly get their goods before the American public. This, too, I am sure, has been proven by the liberal contributions of so many successful men to this fund.

I hope that every grower of flowers in the United States will be a partner in this great movement, and no one, in my opinion, should subscribe less than $1 per 1,000 square feet of glass under cultivation. This should be the absolute minimum. Many have already subscribed $2 and more per 1,000 feet of glass.

Now let us get back of this with a vim! I am appealing to the growers only, for I am one of them. The wholesalers and retailers have their parts to do. The affiliated trade organizations and all florists' clubs should do their part, but I leave the appeal to them to come from those who will, I am sure, more ably follow up this article.

Let us do it now!

J. F. Ammann.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

SNARING THE WARY SOW BUG.

I think I have had as bad a dose of sow bugs as anyone ever had. No one will dispute this when I say that from four 100-foot rose benches I got nearly eight quarts of bugs in two nights, not counting two or three more quarts on following nights. I tried all the methods recommended for exterminating these pests, but could not get ahead of them until I got on to a scheme, which I will give for the benefit of anyone who may be likewise troubled.

Get some carrots, a dustpan, whisk-broom and a candle. About dusk rub the edges of the sideboards of the benches with a carrot with sufficient pressure to leave a trail of juice. After an hour or two light the candle and fasten it to the pan with a few drops of the grease. Now go ahead and brush the bugs into the pan, having a pail of water with some kerosene on top nearby. In my case there were black streaks of bugs the whole length of the boards and it was an easy matter to gather them in. J. L. Johnson.

STREET HOLIDAY DECORATIONS.

For the last three years just before the Christmas-buying season, we have decorated the streets of Mason City for the merchants. The work is completed by December 1 and creates an early Christmas spirit. We festoon heavy green wreathing between the electroliers, and to this wreathing we tie red frieze wreaths with suspended Christmas bells.

We make 14-inch red frieze wreaths and use twelve to the business block. To each electrolier we fasten two 10-foot Christmas trees, one on each side, and trim the trees with red frieze. The top light on all electroliers is colored red. Festoons of electric lights are suspended across the street at each corner.

The decorations have proved pleasing to our business men, but we do not wish to use the same idea again this year, and wonder what other florists have done. We shall be glad to have you print this letter in The Review, in the hope that it will bring out some ideas on street holiday decorations. Merchants like the idea, but soon tire of the same thing every year. We have found this decorative work highly profitable. It is done immediately after Thanksgiving. Kemble & Goodman.

MUMS FOR FATHERS' DAY.

It seems to me there should be a special day set apart to honor the memory of fathers. I believe it is not too late to set a date for this purpose. Why not make the first Sunday in November this year Fathers' day, and wear white chrysanthemums in fathers' memory and colored flowers in their honor? Chrysanthemums will be at their best at that time. I am sure if we would all pull together and boom this day, there would not be a glut of chrysanthemums this year. E. J. Hull.

The Review has not approved of the frequent suggestions that an attempt be made to establish a Fathers' day. The suggestion comes from florists who have profited by Mothers' day; it does not appear that there is any general demand from the public for such a day. The Review believes that any attempt by the trade to establish a Fathers' day will be received with levity and will detract from the success of Mothers' day.

DUTCH BULBS

FLOWERING THEM FOR MARKET.

We Have Enough.

After weeks of uncertainty, Dutch bulbs at last have arrived, perhaps not so numerous or so early as in previous years, but, in all probability, enough for normal needs. The fact that these bulbs have been so long in transit undoubtedly will cause many of them to become heated, and a larger percentage than usual, especially of the narcissi, will fail to flower. The heating kills the embryo buds, as can readily be seen by cutting a bulb through the center. Certain narcissi, such as Victoria, Horsfieldii, poeticus ornatus and Barrii conspicuus are subject to this trouble and should be carefully examined before planting.

There are no signs that bulbs have waned in popularity; in fact, some large dealers report heavier orders than ever for outdoor planting. There is a peculiar charm about these harbingers of spring possessed by no other flowers, and no mistake will be made in planting them in quantity. Some day we may be able to produce bulbs at home for our home needs, but that time as yet is far distant.

Bulbs can be grown in flats, pans and pots, and certain narcissi and all the hyacinths can be grown in water. Usually flats are used to grow bulbs for cutting, and pots and pans are the receptacles to sell them in as flowering plants. Tulips are most valuable in pots and pans, while narcissi have a much greater sale for cutting. Hyacinths have a somewhat limited sale as cut flowers, but sell tolerably well in pots and pans.

Tulips.

Among the early tulips La Reine remains the most popular of all. If exposed to light it comes a beautiful pink color in winter, but it may also be had pure white by keeping it in darkness. White Hawk is an excellent sort, always pure white in color and early. For a late white White Swan is good. In yellows Yellow Prince forces well. Mon Tresor and Chrysolora are good in pans. Thomas Moore, a sweet-scented orange, meets with a good sale. Keizerskroon, red and yellow, makes a fine pan, but it has a limited sale as a cut flower. Rose Luisante, deep rose, is a good seller; so is Flamingo, but Flamingo is still a little high-priced. Cottage Maid is a good inexpensive rose-pink. The finest in this shade of color for pans is Pink Beauty, of a glowing rose-pink color.

There is a limited call for scarlets. Of this shade Vermilion Brilliant and Belle Alliance are both good forceers. Coming to early double tulips, Murillo is the best of all, being splendid for cuttings and unbeatable in pans. Brimstone Beauty, also called Safrano, pale yellow, shaded apricot, and Couronne d'Or, or Crown of Gold, deep golden yellow, are other fine varieties.

Do not overlook the Darwin tulips. You cannot flower these as early as the kinds already named, but the Darwin section gives large flowers on wonderful stems and affords a fine range of colors. They are splendid in flats and fine in 8-inch to 10-inch pans. The Review treated this type of tulip in a special article recently, but to those who have not yet tried Darwins I would suggest that they plant Pride of Haarlem, William Copeland, Glow, Gretchen, Clara Butt and Massachusetts, as a trial.

Narcissi.

The most popular narcissi for forcing are Trumpet major, also called Single Von Sion; Golden Spur, Double Von Sion and Victoria. The last-named is best of all for pan culture. The double narcissi are less popular than they were, and this is not surprising. Double Von Sion has nothing in the way of beauty to recommend it. It is a good shipper and will stand rough handling, which are desirable qualities in all commercial flowers, but it has little beauty when compared with the singles. The quartette named are the leaders of their kind, but there are several others which the country florists should grow. Among these are Silver Spur, which resembles Empress, but flowers as early as Golden Spur; poeticus ornatus, Campenelle rugulosus, Emperor, Sir Watkin and Mrs. Langtry. There are short trumpet varieties in this latter list, but all are inexpensive and make good market and retail varieties.

Hyacinths.

For cutting, the miniature or baby Dutch hyacinths are the best. La Grandesse, pure white; Gertrude, pink; Queen of the Blues, light blue, and King of the Blues, dark blue, are good varieties. Larger sized bulbs of these varieties can be grown in pots or pans. Additional good sorts are: L'Innocence, white; gigantea, rose; Grand Maitre, sky blue. Do not entirely cover the hyacinth bulbs with soil; leave the nose of the bulb just peeping above the surface.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

CARNATIONS IN THE SOUTH.

The carnation plants in the south now should be ready for the second wire in the tying-up process. This wire should be stretched before the plants become too high and begin to fall over. It is a much easier job now. The weekly stirring of the surface soil should be continued at least all of the month, as weeds and grass still give trouble; but the stirring should not be too deep, as the roots of the plants are active now and approach the surface. No top-dressing is really required as yet, if the soil was well enriched at planting time. Many growers wait until the shortest days are over before fertilizing, but I prefer to begin early in November, giving the plants a light dressing of sheep manure or poudrette and renewing the dose every two or three weeks. At each application stir the surface gently.

The two most dreaded pests to the southern carnation growers are thrips and red spider. Just now, as the temperature is advancing to the freezing point, thrips begin to hunt winter quarters, and a nice warm carnation house is an attractive place for settling in. I have, during the last few years, found that the best method of destroying thrips is to spray the plants with a well known brand of thrips juice, diluted according to directions. Choose, if possible, a cloudy day for the spraying. If repeated three times, at intervals of one week or ten days, you will probably have no more trouble until the spring is well advanced. Leave the spray on the plants at least twenty-four hours before washing it off with the hose. The red spider is controlled by regular syringing or by the use of the salt spray. The latter method gives perfect results and is more economical in time and labor. A good spraying every two weeks generally is sufficient to keep the spider away.

It is not too soon to put in a large batch of cuttings for early spring planting in the houses. Last spring we planted three beds with early struck cuttings. They grew amazingly, beating the field-grown plants under a sprinkling system, and during the month of September they produced good flowers, which usually were ordered ahead and brought 75 cents per dozen. These plants have many cuttings on them now, which we are putting in the sand as fast as they are ready. Shade the cuttings a few hours during the heat of the day. L.

HARDY PERENNIALS

THE AUTUMN KINGS.

Anemones.

The Japanese anemones are among the most beautiful of all hardy herbaceous perennials and are at their best from mid-September until early November, but many growers fail to succeed with them. The requirements for successful culture are deep, well manured and drained soil and a generous winter mulch when the ground starts to freeze; a soaking of water during droughty spells in summer will also materially benefit them. The planting should be done in spring, and too much should not be expected the first autumn. The second year, however, spikes four to five feet high should be carried, and the flowering season should continue many weeks. The single, pure white A. japonica alba still is, I think, the finest of the whole family. Kriemhilde, with delicate rose, semidouble flowers, is a great acquisition. Queen Charlotte, semidouble pink, is still one of the best. Geante Blanche is a large, new, pure white sort. Anemone hupehensis, from China, attains a height of two feet and its flowers, which are similar to those of the A. japonica type but much smaller, are freely produced.

Others in the Front Rank.

Some other plants that make a good display in the hardy garden are: Delphinium Belladonna, a persistent bloomer and one of the twelve finest perennials in commerce; Senecio clivorum, a Chinese plant usually classed as a water plant, but which succeeds well in the hardy border, carrying large, round leaves and large heads of deep yellow flowers; Artemisia lactiflora, sometimes erroneously called A. latifolia, is a scented hardy plant carrying large, creamy white spiræa-like heads of flowers. It attains a height of five to six feet and is perfectly hardy in a well drained border. Tritomas nobilis, Pfitzeri and grandiflora abundantly produce their rich scarlet and yellow spikes. In the colder states during the winter it is safer to lift and store the roots of these in a cellar or frame, packed in sand or loam. Sedum spectabile and the variety Brilliant, with crimson flower heads, growing eighteen inches in height, is a fine and easily grown fall-blooming perennial.

Phloxes, Goldenrods, Pompons.

The panieled phloxes are still quite effective, while the hybrid forms of Hibiscus Moscheutos, with their immense flowers, give the border an almost tropical appearance. Some of the veronicas, such as spicata and longifolia subsessilis, give a good showing of blue spikes, as does the hardy blue salvia, azurea grandiflora. The tall and handsome Solidago altissima is one of the handsomest of the goldenrods, with big heads of flowers. Helenium autumnale superbum is indispensable in any hardy border. It has large heads of golden-yellow flowers. H. Riverton Beauty has lemon-yellow flowers with a black cone.

The hardy pompon chrysanthemums in some cases have been flowering for weeks. Varieties of these are many, but a limited few are reliable in the colder states. Of these Seven Oaks, yellow, is our earliest and one of the best.

Some of the Smaller Fellows.

Other plants of lower stature, which at this season are dependable, are: Viola cornuta in variety; Tunica Saxifraga, a low-growing tufted plant with light pink flowers, good for a bordering or in the rockery; Papaver nudicaule, the Iceland poppy, flowers freely. Plumbago Larpentæ, with deep blue flowers, has been blooming well. It needs well drained soil and some winter covering. Iberis gibraltarica, the lavender-flowered hardy candytuft, is a perpetual bloomer; so is Campanula carpatia, the Carpathian bellflower, and C. rotundifolia, or Scotch bluebell.

Silene Schafta, forming carpets six inches high of rose-pink flowers, is a good late bloomer. Two composite plants, Coreopsis grandiflora and Gailardia grandiflora, are free bloomers, and the various myosotis are quite blue with flowers. The autumn crocus, Colchicum autumnale, gives a welcome touch of coloring as the season wanes, and the plummy bleeding heart, Dicentra formosa, blooms as freely as it did months ago.

These are not by any means all the late fall-flowering perennials. Anyone possessing a mixed border is sure of a beautiful showing at this season, and let it be remembered that he need not lie awake nights and worry about this hardy brigade, which, when cut down in late fall and given a winter mulch, is sure to provide us with flowers next season from the time the late snows disappear until King Frost again seals the ground.

MOTT IN KANSAS CITY.

A Visit with Samuel Murray.

"What promised to be important business prevented my attending the meeting of the F. T. D.," observed Samuel Murray, of Kansas City, Mo. "I fully intended being there, considering it the foremost factor in the development of the retail flower business. The subject of separation from the S. A. F. should be thoroughly weighed before being acted on. Personally, I am of the opinion that they should not be divorced, as I fear it would tend to weaken both, whereas we need to strengthen them. The question of responsibility, as advocated by Patrick O'Mara, is an essential. Those who, like ourselves, have been taken advantage of will be glad to see speedy action taken on this vital subject."

Business was healthy. A wedding order of a bride's and four bridesmaids' bouquets was in the making by Miss Hayden and her sister. The bride's bouquet was composed of valley and cattleyas. Each of those for the maids was distinct, round and shaped by hand with a lace finish. Ward, Ophelia and Killarney Brilliant roses, and delphiniums and double gypsophilas were noted. The latter are grown extensively and are cut, dried and stored in a cool place. Covered with paper, they are ready for use, all winter and are invaluable for floral work of every description. A fine assortment of helichrysum was noted. It was grown in California and is excellent for baskets, now so much in demand. Splendid blooms of chrysanthemums from the same source filled the icebox and formed part of the window display, banked with Adiantum gloriosum. By the way, a silver cup offered by the Kansas City Post for the best florist's window was won and added to the adornment.

Something out of the ordinary was an outside wall space at the right-hand side of the entrance, covered with a flat banking of English ivy with Aralia elegantissima interspersed. The passer-by could not help but be struck with this, which is one of the many clever ideas originating with Miss Hayden. Echoes of the unique decoration in which real grapes were used are still heard. There were five vines with a total of fifty bunches hanging on tripods so that each guest could cut a bunch of luscious Black Hamburgs. The arrangement was around an oval table with an electric fountain in the center.

"Yes," continued Mr. Murray, "there is money in the business, and the one who lends his best endeavors to its advancement will make oil, not such a gusher, perhaps, as we get at our Kansas oil fields now and then, and in which I am to some extent interested, but a steady flow."

The many greenhouses are examples of what can be produced with old-style houses with low roofs and hot water heat. Col. Sharp takes pride in showing the begonias growing from 4-inch pots to 11-inch cedar tubs. He predicts that the variety Mrs. J. A. Peterson will eclipse all when it can be supplied at lower prices than now. Poinsettias and cyclamens complete the trio of leaders. Some extra fine types of Cattleya labiata, also Oncidium varicosum and splendidum are seen. Equally proud, but in another sense, is the colonel of his title, bestowed while he was at the head of a regiment of Missouri sharpshooters, and he regrets that the age limit now bars him from seeing active service.

Arthur Newell on Business.

Arthur Newell had just arrived at the store from the handsome home he recently built and in reply to my question, "How is business?" said: "We are sending the overflow down to Brother Murray, who tries to take care of it for us."

Just below and across the street is the store of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., which had a fine autumnal staging in a deep window. Mr. Rock had not returned from the F. T. D. meeting when I called.

The Alpha Floral Co. is also the Omega in publicity, both in elaborate store decoration and signboards about the city.

R. S. Brown, hale and hearty and owning up to having passed the eighty-third milestone on life's journey, was as busy as ever making cuttings of pelargoniums, a specialty with him.

W. J. Barnes had some fine begonias and cyclamens, the latter in 8-inch pans for the holidays. He is experimenting with Bougainvillea Sanderiana to bloom at the same time. Plants are forward and if too late for the holidays will find sale at any time. A seedling begonia of Lorraine and selections in cyclamens are promising, "and some compensation to the grower for his efforts," added Mr. Barnes. W. M.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The cut flower market last week showed little change from the week previous, conditions and prices remaining about the same. Gladioli are seldom seen. A few asters, from frames, arrive daily. Dahlias also are coming. Serious frosts the last of the week cleaned up most of the outdoor flowers for the season. The flood of chrysanthemums has begun, but prices held up splendidly last week, especially for the novelties. Some of the latter sold for as high as $9 per dozen, it was reported. The cut flower market already is dominated by autumn blooms, but the receipts are still light and the demand corresponds, there being no surplus.

Lilies rose in price last week; nothing under $6 per hundred was obtainable, while most sales were at $8 per hundred. A few choice flowers brought $10 per hundred. Valley was scarce, but a light demand kept the top price below $8 per hundred, and this only for the selected. There are plenty of orchids now, and the prices are again down to old levels. Nothing over 35 cents each is asked for cattleyas, and most of the flowers are selling as low as $25 per hundred. Gardenias are back again. Not many of them have arrived, but the market seems in no hurry for them. Most of the violets are of poor quality and there is little demand.

Good long-stemmed carnations are few, but those that arrive bring excellent prices. Some sell as high as $5 per hundred, but $4 per hundred is the average price. The short-stemmed flowers sell at from $1 to $2 per hundred. The quality rises daily, and it is expected that there will be an abundance of carnations before November 1. American Beauty roses are of poor quality and $30 per hundred is the top price. Hybrid tea roses are up in price for selected flowers. Hadley, Key, Mock, Russell and Prima Donna roses are the favored novelties. There were no roses under $2 per hundred October 13. Hadley roses are fast improving.

The supply houses are almost hidden under great loads of autumn foliage. Fine hydrangeas and evergreens add to the supply of stock for big decorations. There are pansies, tritomas, cosmos, delphiniums, bouvardias and tuberose in abundance.

The retailers are optimistic, made so by the beginning of the season of dances, dinners, weddings and receptions, many of which, calling for elaborate decorations, are announced.

Various Notes.

The New York Cut Flower Exchange has joined with the fifty-seven other wholesalers and has agreed to close its place of business on Sunday. A plan to close the wholesale places at 5 p. m. daily is being considered. Jack Gunther is back of the movement.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held November 12. It will be chrysanthemum night, though novelties in roses and carnations will also be shown. Growers may ship flowers in care of H. C. Riedel, 49 West Twenty-eighth street, and the exhibits will be carefully staged. There will be other shows in New York from November 7 to 12, inclusive, and visitors are invited to attend the club show. The program for the club's ladies' night at the Hotel McAlpin, November 17, includes dancing, refreshments, music and vaudeville.

The death of William Nilsson, of Woodlawn, N. Y., is recorded in the obituary column of this issue.

William P. Ford has recovered from the effects of a second operation on one of his knees and is able to be back at his office.

There is a good prospect of another bowling club this winter. However, since John Donaldson deserted, there has not been much enthusiasm for the sport, though it is expected that New York will be represented at the S. A. F. convention bowling games in St. Louis next spring.

William L. Trumppore, lately with J. H. Small & Sons, is dangerously ill at the hospital, 137 East Sixty-third street.

The news of the death by automobile accident of J. A. Valentine, at Denver, was received with sorrow in New York, where he had a wide circle of friends.

The seedsmen have been busy shipping bulbs since the arrival of the cargoes from Holland.

R. J. Irwin is expected back from his Canadian hunting trip this week, and it is certain there will be more moose heads at 108 West Twenty-eighth street.

Maurice Cohn, buyer for Joseph Trepel's seven stores in Brooklyn, and Miss Lilian Arnold, of that city, were married Sunday, October 14. They are spending their honeymoon on a trip up the Hudson.

John Mallon reports that business is good in Brooklyn. He is also busy in behalf of the Red Cross.

J. K. Allen exhibited two carnations, one pink and one white, on the same stem. They came from C. Hunt, the Staten Island grower. Both were perfect flowers.

D. J. Pappas, of the United Cut Flower Co., has returned from a business trip to Boston and New England.

Charles H. Totty has begun shipping his mum crop to the New York market. Joseph Fenrich had more than a dozen varieties of Autumn Queen from Mr. Totty's establishment October 13.

J. Austin Shaw.

F. S. Heal has purchased C. P. Benedict's interest in the Hazelhurst Dahlia Gardens, Staten Island. He has three greenhouses and specializes in dahlias, gladioli and asters. He also grows stock under glass for the New York market.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Business was not so brisk last week. Shipments were smaller than usual, and barely enough stock reached the market to supply the limited demand. October 12 and 13 the demand became heavier, and retailers had difficulty getting a large enough supply to fill orders. In consequence of these conditions, the supply was cleaned up daily. Indoor stock appears to be later than usual and few chrysanthemums have arrived. Roses are coming in splendid condition. The quality is good and they sell readily. September Morn, which is new to this market, is becoming popular. Sunburst, Russell, Ward and Scott Key roses are good sellers. Sweetheart roses are plentiful. Easter lilies are in shorter supply and prices are higher. Orchids are plentiful and of good quality.

The supply of carnations is short. Asters, too, are scarce. A good supply of dahlias reaches the market, but there is not enough for the demand. The majority of outdoor stock is gone, and what remains is of poor quality. Single and double violets have moved well. A few potted plants are obtainable. They include cyclamens, primroses and chrysanthemums. Greens are more plentiful. They include Asparagus plumosus, Sprengeri and smilax. The sale of palms, Boston ferns and foliage plants is increasing.

Various Notes.

Among the visitors to the trade last week were C. M. Archer, of the Roseville Pottery Co., Zanesville, O.; Milton Selinka, representing Schloss Bros., New York city; F. R. Pierson, of Tarrytown, N. Y.; Robert Greenlaw, representing the S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and Robert Bard, of Syracuse, N. Y.

C. H. Vick was recently elected third vice-president of the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Florists' Clubs. Mr. Vick made a business trip to Buffalo October 8.

The Edwin C. Kaelber, Inc., store on Clinton street had an attractive window display last week. A large vase of Sunburst roses was surrounded by grass basket vases of violets, while quantities of smilax formed a background.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Boucher left October 13 on a vacation to be spent in Canada. They expect to visit the wholesale and retail stores in Quebec, Montreal and Toronto.

James Vick's Sons are showing quantities of Dutch bulbs, which have just been received. Prices are normal.

William C. Ehmann, of Corfu, is cutting some excellent early mums in pink, white and yellow.

George B. Hart, Walter Salmon and Clark Vick recently drove by automobile to Corfu and visited a number of the growers there.

J. B. Keller Sons had a beautiful window display of yellow chrysanthemums arranged with oak leaves last week.

H. E. Wilson has just finished picking the peaches at his establishment. He had more than 3,500 bushels. His mums are coming along in good shape.

The monthly meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association was held October 8 at Musicians' hall, about twenty-five members being present. A letter from the committee in charge of securing the fund for national publicity, asking the cooperation of the Rochester florists, was read, but action was deferred until the next meeting.

Frank La Vigne is cutting fine pink and white chrysanthemums. H. J. H.

Atchison, Kan.—"An excellent season," reported Manager Mengelsdorff, of the Atchison Seed & Floral Co. "Our chrysanthemum show will be made as attractive as usual."

Club Strong for S. A. F. Publicity.

One of the most enthusiastic meetings the Gardeners' and Florists' Club has held since the S. A. F. convention in this city was that of October 8. The subject of the evening was publicity, a committee having been appointed at the previous meeting to formulate plans and bring them before this meeting. Subsequent to the naming of this committee, however, the S. A. F., through Chairman Asmus, appointed Robert L. Graham, chairman, William J. Johnston, Charles J. Bolgiano, Charles F. Feast and Richard A. Vincent a publicity committee for the state of Maryland; so the club committee, instead of making its report through its chairman, asked that it be discharged and that the club work in conjunction with the S. A. F. committee. This was done, and on motion of Mr. Graham the following were added to the committee appointed by Chairman Asmus: J. J. Perry and William McKissick, representing the wholesale houses, and Isaac H. Moss and H. R. Morrison.

Mr. Graham, who had caught the publicity spirit at the New York S. A. F. convention, started the ball rolling with a rousing speech. He said that for years the members had been meeting and discussing ways and means to increase business, but nothing had ever been done; that no one individual could handle such a proposition alone; that the time had now come for the florists of this country to get together and, through coöperation and organization, with the national organization behind them, to make a campaign that would boost the florists' business from New York to San Francisco. He said that now, when flower buying, owing to war conditions, is changing all over the country, is the ideal time to educate the great mass of people who will have money to spend on flowers during the next four years, those who never have been flower buyers.

James Hamilton was enthusiastic over the proposition and said that action was what was needed in the local club. He said that the question had been well thrashed out at the convention and that it was the best thing he had ever known any convention to accomplish. The speaker handed Mr. Graham his subscription blank, filled out for $50 per year. This was quickly followed by like amounts from Isaac H. Moss and the R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co. Messrs. Moss, Vincent and Feast spoke and told of the advantages of publicity in their own businesses.

After the adjournment the publicity committee met and organized, with Robert L. Graham as chairman and Charles F. Feast as secretary. Great things may be expected from this committee, judging by the spirit of determination displayed at the meeting. The slogan adopted is, "Not a slacker in Maryland!" The drive is to be for every florist in Maryland, no matter how small his business or his subscription. He can do his "bit" toward making the florists' business one of the leading industries in the country. Maryland has been first in supplying her men for the army and navy; she was on the spot for the Liberty loan; she has never fallen down on anything she has undertaken; watch her now in this publicity campaign, and see how well she will do her full share. About $860 was contributed before the committee was organized, or before it had gotten to work, and some sent in subscriptions through other sources.

Various Notes.

At all the stores business is reported good. A stroll to the retail establishments found them all taking on a winter appearance; that is, well filled with plants; and I have never seen a better line of palms and ferns than are being offered this fall. At Feast & Sons' store I found Mrs. Hill, busy as usual, just finishing a funeral order. The Feast window decoration was most attractive. In the center were several vases of Sunburst roses, pretty well opened. The store is on a corner and, with show windows on both streets, the firm has a splendid opportunity to make good displays.

Halliday Bros. had a group of crotons in the center of their window, with a green background.

At John Cook's window I became interested in what looked like the finest La France roses I had ever seen. When I asked Miss Cook what they were, she said it was "our new one," and I could readily understand why J. Horace McFarland called it a "glorified La France."

At the wholesale houses they said that, with the outdoor stock still plentiful, prices could not be regulated yet, for they all agree that even for outdoor stock they are getting better prices than last year.

Lohr & Fritze had a pile of coal, 160 tons, lying beside the boiler pit. For about a week they had been smelling gas, but could not locate it until one morning one of the firm saw smoke arising from the pile of coal and found it on fire, from spontaneous combustion. They have good fire protection, however, so they only lost about ten tons.

At William J. Halliday's place we got to talking about prices for the winter. Mr. Halliday said that prices would have to be advanced when he got down to regular business. Mr. Halliday depends on the wholesale houses for all he uses, aside from orchids, and he said that with coal at the higher price, and labor scarce and high, he must expect to pay more for stock with the prices of supplies advanced. Mr. Halliday said an advance was absolutely necessary.

N. F. Flitton, secretary of the Gardeners' and Florists' club, for many years a park superintendent, died last week. Details are given under obituary. Tate.

DES MOINES FLOWER SHOW.

Flower show plans are now rapidly progressing. Committees are working steadily and everything promises a most successful show. An enthusiastic meeting of the committees was held October 8 at the Grant Club. The committees reported and full authority was given to each to carry forward its work.

The publicity committee was instructed to use every effort to advertise the show both locally and among the trade. The decoration committee has in mind extensive decorations of the hall and has been liberally provided for. Musical talent will furnish a program both afternoon and evening. Since Des Moines has one of the large army cantonments, a military night is planned.

All profits of the show will go to the Red Cross. The Girls' Volunteer Aid of Red Cross will be in charge of the sale of tickets.

A limited amount of trade space is available and may be had at 20 cents per square foot. It is advisable for growers, supply houses and others to make reservations for space at once.

An attractive handbook and program on the order of those put out by the New York and Philadelphia shows is being prepared. Those desiring advertising space should make application to the assistant manager, A. S. Thurston, Ames, Ia.

Wesley Greene, Sec'y.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

The queen of autumn reigns in the store of Holm & Olson, Inc., St. Paul, Minn. Surrounded by autumnal foliage, one sees the first showing of fine chrysanthemums sent in by W. E. Tricker from the extensive establishment which is none too big to supply the increasing demands made on it. Never before has it devolved on the grower to study the economy of space and this winter will be the severest test of his mentality. "Summer business has been good," observed Mr. Olson, "and the fall season has opened up well. We are interested in this publicity movement and are of the opinion that to accomplish anything at all a fund of at least $50,000 is essential. Our idea would be to inaugurate a campaign along 'short story' lines, believing this to be the most effective way to get the reader interested. The album of floral photographs we are compiling for our country trade represents an outlay of $4,000 in addition to the labor. Its preparation kept us so busy that vacations were out of the question. The press of business and serious illness of Mrs. Olson prevented me from attending the meeting of the F. T. D. at Detroit, much as I wished to go, especially being a director."

Adam Graham, of Cleveland, is preparing for his annual pilgrimage to the Isle of Pines, but desires to wait until after the election, weather permitting. Adam Graham, Jr., is a member of the public service commission, in addition to his other responsibilities. "We serve the public," is his slogan. Charles Graham is vacationing at the greenhouses, and says it is good to quit the store for a while and revel in the soil.

C. C. Pollworth, Milwaukee, Wis., has found plenty to do since returning from the east. His prowess as a hunter of the finny tribe is well known, and he proposes to cast a strong line in the business pool this season. W. M.

OBITUARY

John H. Hale.

John Howard Hale, one of the foremost horticulturists and growers of peaches in the United States, died at his home in South Glastonbury, Conn., October 12, aged 64 years. Mr. Hale owned orchards at South Glastonbury and at Fort Valley, Ga., where he grew fruit for the market. Mr. Hale was the originator of the Million Dollar peach. He was prominent in the nursery trade and in 1894 was president of the American Association of Nurserymen.

It was more than forty years ago that Mr. Hale first became interested in peaches. Recently, in writing of his career, Mr. Hale declared that a seedling peach tree that grew along a fence row supplied him with "rosy little peaches" while he was at work on a neighboring farm as a "hired boy." Then and there he decided that when he had money enough he would buy some trees and plant them on his mother's farm. The next year he secured a job as a farm hand at $12.50 per month and board, which gave him the chance he desired. At the time of his death he was hailed as the "peach king." Mr. Hale supplied an article on growing peaches in the south for Bailey's Cyclopaedia of Horticulture.

In connection with Prof. Powell, of the United States Department of Agriculture, Mr. Hale conducted the first experiments in precooling peaches. These experiments led the Southern Pacific railroad to invest more than $1,000,000 in precooling stations to preserve fruit in transit.

At the time of his death Mr. Hale was a member of the State Utilities Commission of Connecticut.

William Nilsson.

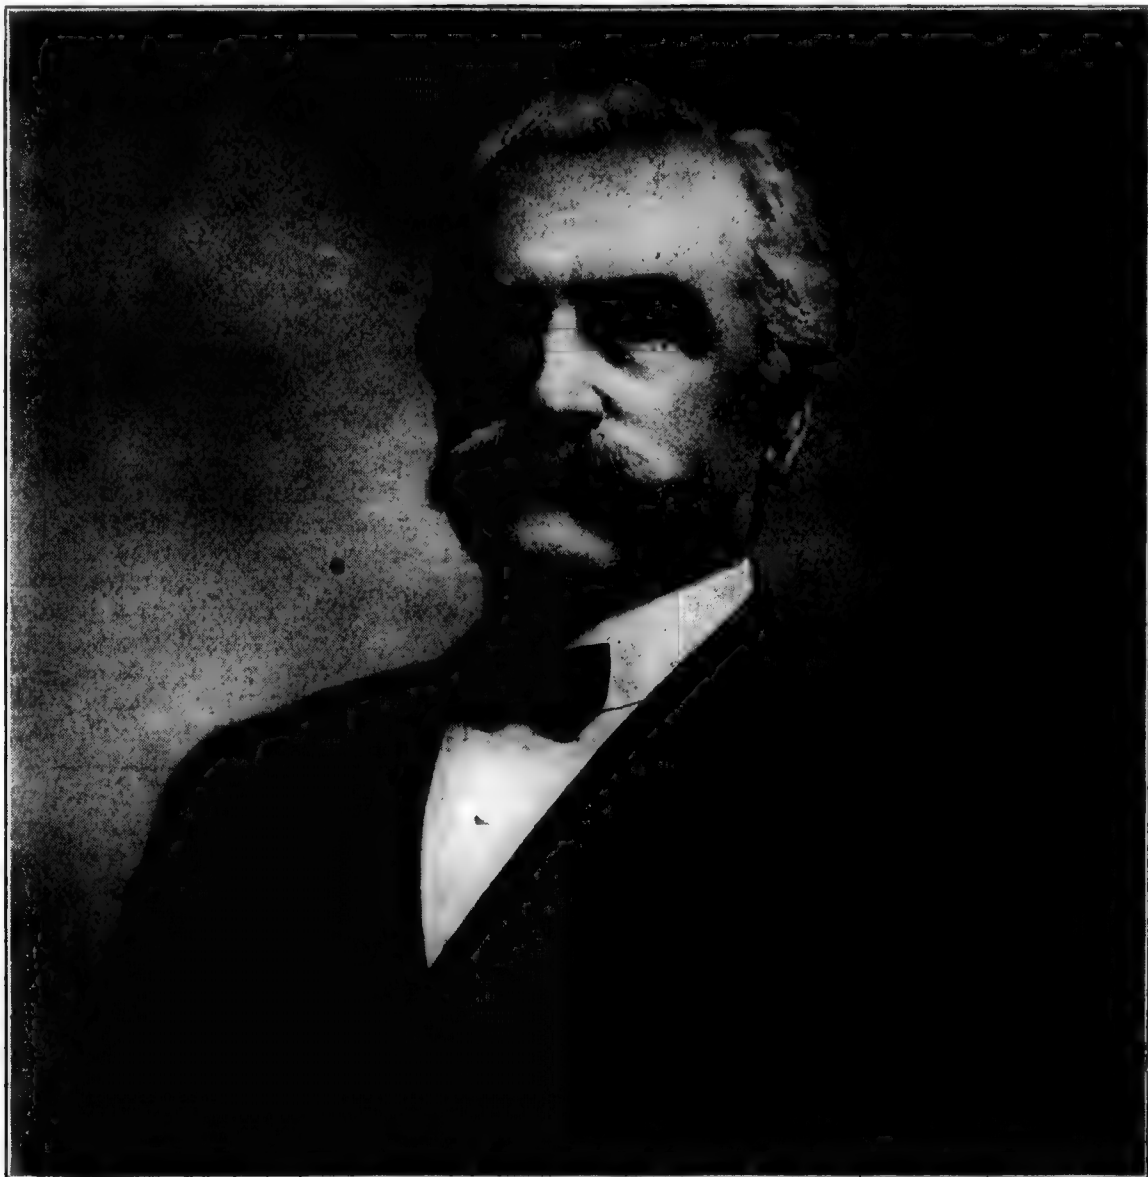

William Nilsson, the Woodlawn, N. Y., florist, died suddenly October 11 of apoplexy. Mr. Nilsson was 65 years of age and for many years conducted a flower store at the entrance to Woodlawn cemetery. He was a member of several florists' societies and held the respect of the trade. He leaves a wife, son and daughter. The son will continue the business. J. A. S.

N. F. Flitton.

Noah F. Flitton, superintendent of the new Gwynns Falls park, Baltimore, Md., and for nearly twenty years connected with the work of constructing that city's park system, died at his home in the park October 8. He is survived by his wife, four sons and five grandchildren.

The funeral services were held October 10 and were attended by many members of the trade in Baltimore. The floral offerings were numerous and beautiful.

Mr. Flitton was born in London, England, August 27, 1840, and studied under the leading landscape architects of that country. When a mere lad he was apprenticed to the landscape gardener on the estate of Sir John Seabright, in Bradfordshire. As his training was designed to equip him to manage large private estates, he was given courses in agriculture and forestry. After finishing his preliminary education, Mr. Flitton made a trip to the United States, returning to his native country to take charge of the nurseries and ornamental gardening at Belvoir Castle, the country estate of the duke of Portland.

When he again visited this country in 1876, Mr. Flitton brought letters of introduction to John Lee Carroll, then governor of Maryland. The meeting resulted in Mr. Flitton's engagement as manager of Governor Carroll's estate, Doughoreghan Manor, in Howard county. His next employment was on the estate of John S. Gillman, now within the Baltimore city limits.

In 1898 the city was looking for a man capable of converting Clifton, the former home of Johns Hopkins, into a park, and the choice fell upon Mr. Flitton. He accomplished the work so well that he was given charge of Patterson park. When work on the new Gwynns Falls park was begun, Mr. Flitton again was called on and was engaged on the project at the time of his death. Thus in Clifton park and the unfinished Gwynns Falls park he leaves monuments that will undoubtedly endure for centuries.

Mr. Flitton, although not in the commercial end of the trade, was always actively interested in florists' affairs. He was one of the founders of the Baltimore Gardeners' and Florists' Club, and served several terms as its president and recording secretary, holding the latter office when he died. He was also a member of the S. A. F., the American Dahlia Society, the Maryland Horticultural Society, the American Park and Outdoor Association and the New England Association of Park Superintendents. Mr. Flitton was a member of the Waverly Masonic lodge and of the Crusade Commandery, Knights Templar. He was prominent in the affairs of the Waverly M. E. church and was superintendent of its Sunday school for many years. Mr. Flitton contributed freely to the leading horticultural and agricultural papers of the country, and his advice was frequently sought on park matters.

In the death of Mr. Flitton the trade in Baltimore has lost one of its most prominent figures. His genial and cheerful disposition and his consideration for those with whom he came in contact made him a host of friends, among whom the news of his death was received with the deepest regret.

ANNUALS BETWEEN PERENNIALS

I have some transplanted perennial seedlings in rows two feet apart. Could seeds of hardy annuals be sown between these rows this fall and transplanted in the spring? What kinds of annuals would you advise sowing in this way for cut flowers next year. The reason for sowing between the rows of perennials is the lack of suitable space elsewhere at this time, but I shall have plenty of room for transplanting in the spring. C. E. W.—Mich.

I do not know of any hardy annuals that could be sown at this late date in the way you suggest, and be transplanted in spring. You will get far better results by starting seeds under glass early in the new year. C. W.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901. Officers for 1917: President, Robert O. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; vice-president, A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.

Officers for 1918: President, Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J.; vice-president, Jules Bourdet, St. Louis; secretary and treasurer as before.

Thirty-fourth annual convention and Fifth National Flower Show, St. Louis, Mo., April 6 to 15, 1918.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

If you can get coal, take it.

THE editor of The Review has received an invitation to go fishing with a subscriber he never has met. Can you conceive a stronger endorsement of editorial policy?

FLORISTS who read the Saturday Evening Post enjoyed a large illustration in the issue of October 13, which showed William F. Gude, in his tall silk hat, marching beside President Wilson in a Washington patriotic parade.

ANDERS RASMUSSEN, chairman of the committee organizing the new Florists' Mutual Casualty Association, which is being started under the auspices of the State Florists' Association of Indiana, states that it is hoped to write insurance on 4,000,000 square feet of glass by November 1, which will enable the committee to complete the organization of the company in compliance with the Indiana laws.

SUNSET, the leading magazine of the Pacific coast, in its October issue has a special article, "It Beats the Dutch," with illustrations printed in colors, descriptive of C. W. Ward's enterprise at Eureka, Cal. The material is familiar to readers of The Review except for one item; Mr. Ward is quoted as saying: "Holland growers are already moving to America. One of the foremost growers there, De Graaf Bros., of Leiden, has purchased a large block of Cottage Gardens Nurseries stock."

APPARENTLY the trade has not been willing to pay the price of Paper Whites and there is a quantity unsold. The cost of the bulbs precludes price-cutting unless the holder can make up his mind to take a loss.

THE indications are that both bouquet green and holly will be in light supply and higher in price this season. The gatherers of these articles have been paid so little in previous years that they are easily drawn away to more lucrative occupations. The additional cost of crates and cases is another factor.

THE editor's desk, seldom without its decoration from some reader who has extra quality or novelty blooms, this week has been adorned by a vase of chrysanthemums from George Fountain, Wilmington, Del. The variety is a seedling of Advance pollinated with Unaka. Mr. Fountain has grown it for four years and thinks it will prove a valuable addition to the list of early sorts. The color is a good pink and there certainly is a place for such a one beside Golden Glow and Smith's Advance.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

Business continues in large volume; but conservatism as regards future buying was noted by Bradstreet's in its report for the week ending October 13. The disposition to wait until the government fixes the prices of commodities has caused a falling off in some lines, but government orders in other lines have maintained a balance. The army cantonments and the high price of cotton are causing a boom in the south. So far there has been little buying for the holidays.

Reports from among the retailers in various trades assert that people are showing tendencies toward economy, but this, it is added, is undoubtedly caused by the existing high prices of commodities and the taking out of the market of hundreds of thousands of young men called for army service.

The tone of the report is optimistic over the outlook for fall business, and intimates that as soon as the government gets through with its price fixing business will resume its boom.

BEATING THE PRICE FIXING.

From reports that have reached The Review, the growers who are having trouble to get coal are the ones who did not make contracts until after the government had set the prices. If it is any consolation, even the government is having trouble getting fuel—a major in the quartermaster's headquarters at Chicago last week told a representative of The Review that getting coal to the cantonments is the slowest and hardest job he ever tackled. On the other hand, a large Chicago grower who was in the office of The Review a day or two later said he was having no trouble at all getting Pocahontas coal, had got in a lot during summer and is getting it regularly now, three cars a week; but instead of paying the price fixed by the government he is paying nearly twice as much, $3.45 at the mine, on a contract made last spring.

This and other evidence seems to show that the trouble for the man who can not get coal is with the price. The coal trade is afraid to sell coal now at prices higher than those fixed by the government, but as the price-fixing did not disturb contracts previously made there still is a place to put the greater part of the output where it will bring the "Peabody" prices or better.

The only hope of relief for the florist short of fuel appears to lie in the promise of the government that an equitable distribution of the output of the mines will be required and this seems too big a task to be accomplished soon. When fuel control becomes a fact there still will remain the question of supply equal to the demand. The major above quoted, who spent a quarter of a century in the coal trade before he joined the army, predicts that coal will be harder for florists to get in midwinter than ever before—and it was bad enough last winter.

PUBLICITY FUND PROGRESS.

The committee in charge of the work of raising the fund for the national publicity campaign has nearly reached the halfway mark toward its goal of $50,000. The actual total of the money subscribed is not available, but the committee's preliminary report shows that $14,262.50 had been pledged up to September 30.

This report was issued previous to the F. T. D. meeting at Detroit, where more than $5,000 was subscribed, $2,500 by the association and $2,600 by individuals. Since that time the New York Florists' Club has voted to give $1,000, the florists of Baltimore nearly as much, and pledges have been secured in many other cities.

Under the direction of the S. A. F. committee, sub-committees are at work soliciting contributions in practically every good-sized city in the country. Added to these efforts are the individual activities of the leaders in the trade, who are overlooking no opportunity to swell the total.

The publicity idea appears to have struck a responsive note among the florists, and there is no doubt that the sum needed for the campaign will be secured within a short time. Then will the slogan, "Send flowers—always a good idea," be heralded to the people of the country.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Good prices, scarcity of stock and close trading have been the rule at the wholesale cut flower market this week. Both city and shipping trade held up well and the end of the day generally found the market pretty well cleaned. The strong, constant demand, which was almost always greater than the available supply, in many cases brought prices even higher than the quality warranted. The quality of stock, on the whole, was satisfactory, with some of it exceptionally fine. There was no difficulty found, however, in moving the inferior grades. Really fine stock was at a premium.

American Beauties were in moderate supply and brought the top prices. All other varieties of roses sold well, the demand being exceptionally strong. The supply generally was short of the demand. The shorter grades were in largest supply, and sold readily. Long and special length stems were a scarcity. Russell maintains its place as the leader, followed closely by the red roses.

POMPONS ARE READY

It will pay you to push them

YOU remember how your customers took to the Pompon mums last year, especially early in the season. We now have a large supply in all colors and types—push them now while they are a novelty. Price, 35c to 75c per bunch.

ALL COLORS MUMS ALL SIZES

We offer fine stock, the production of leading chrysanthemum local specialists—we do not handle California mums nor those of lettuce growers who use them as a catch crop—you know the difference in quality.

FANCY ROSES

You can supply your Rose needs here, but the demand for our grade of Roses is so strong we advise ordering early if shipment is to be made same day.

VALLEY

We always have it.

LILIES

Always in good supply.

FANCY ORCHIDS

You will find Amling is Orchid headquarters. Fine Cattleyas and a large supply of fancy spray Orchids. Order some of each and see how good they are.

SINGLE VIOLETS DOUBLE

You can do a fine corsage business with them, and we can keep you supplied. Try some today and place a standing order when you see how well they sell.

Ophelia claims the next place in line. Probably the poorest seller is Killarney, but even it cleared readily.

Carnations are still in short supply, especially long-stemmed stock, of which there is practically no supply at all. Prices are high and are often in excess of the real value of the blooms, which for the most part are not top-notch quality. The situation now, however, is commencing to ease, as some growers, and especially those who planted early, are now commencing to cut more heavily. In general, carnation crops are late.

Valley remains about the same, enough but none too much. Orchids are more plentiful and prices are lower. Calendulas are commencing to arrive and some excellent stock is being received. The gladiolus season is over, the last blooms probably having reached the market. A few good rubrum lilies may be seen. There are enough Easter lilies. Violets are selling moderately well.

Chrysanthemums arrive in steadily increasing supply. White, yellow, pink and lavender are all coming in. The demand has been excellent, with good prices obtaining. Fancy stock was at a premium. Practically all of the earlier varieties are arriving. Pompons are also commencing to arrive, but the supply is still limited.

To Raise Publicity Funds.

The following committees have been appointed for Chicago and vicinity in connection with the Society of American Florists' national publicity campaign for flowers:

rates on coal 15 cents per ton, effective October 15. This will add another appreciable item to the cost of heating greenhouses, for, since Pocahontas coal became so hard to get, most of the growers are using Franklin county coal.

This is a busy week with everyone who handles Dutch bulbs. After much delay it has been possible to release Waaldyk shipments to the consignees. One forwarding agent has twelve carloads for Chicago and vicinity.

The transportation committee of the Chicago Florists' Club has chosen the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy for the trip to Galesburg on the occasion of the annual meeting and flower show of the Illinois State Florists' Association November 6 and 7, leaving Union Station

November 6, at 10:05 a. m., due Galesburg 1:55 p. m. The fare is $5.91 each way.

Bassett & Washburn purchased a new truck last week.

Many growers still are on the anxious seat in the matter of fuel supply. The forehanded ones, which of course includes most of the larger growers, stood for the high prices asked before the government intervened and made contracts for at least a considerable part of their season's requirements. As a typical case, Wendland & Keimel Co., Elmhurst, contracted for about three-fifths of their needs at a price more than $1 a ton above the price subsequently fixed by the government. A large part of this coal already is in storage and the coal company guarantees prompt delivery of the rest, but will not commit itself beyond the quantity originally bargained for.

Emil Buettner is making a trip to Richmond this week to see Hill's new rose, Columbia, in its native habitat. Mr. Buettner has about decided that he will not plant Mrs. Russell again and he is considering Columbia as its successor. On the trip to Richmond Mr. Buettner was accompanied by his superintendent, Mr. Earl, by F. M. Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., and Ernst Wienhoeber, retailer, the quartette representing an aggregation of talent qualified to pass judgment on pretty nearly anything pertaining to the florists' business.

The management of the Cleveland flower show, which opens November 8, has appointed C. J. Michelsen, Fred Lautenschlager and J. C. Vaughan as a Chicago committee on exhibits. The idea will be that any exhibitors whose flowers are received by Mr. Michelsen, care of the E. C. Only old-timers will remember the Reissig collection of orchids, one of the first for commercial purposes in this section, but the curious may see the cypripediums of that stock by visiting Mt. By getting the plants into crop by Thanksgiving the flowers never fail to pay.

Mr. Clarke came east for the purpose of arranging for an exhibit at St. Louis, for the National Flower Show and S. A. F. convention next April. The azaleas, rhododendrons and bulbs from Eureka will be flowered for him by a St. Louis grower. Mr. Ward's nursery is not yet in position to offer large quantities of stock, but on his trip Mr. Clarke arranged for a carload shipment to Kansas City, another to St. Louis and one to Chicago.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

Business is excellent, the demand being greater than the supply. All kinds of stock are being sold as rapidly as received, at good prices. Roses are in fair supply, most of them being of high quality. Carnations are in about the same supply as last week. Easter lilies are plentiful. Chrysanthemums are coming, but not in quantities. Heavier local cuts are expected soon and November 1 should see the flowers in supply large enough for the demand. Valley may be had. Other offerings include rubrum lilies and snapdragons. Greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

The meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society at Frank Volz's place was well attended. The guests extended a vote of thanks to their host for his hospitality.

Last week C. E. Critchell offered the first valley to be had in this market in some time. It sold well.

R. Witterstaetter is cutting some nice early yellow mums.

Miss M. M. Carroll has opened a wholesale house on Third street.

Among the visitors to the trade last week were Albert Knopf, formerly with the Franklin Floral Co., Columbus, O., but during the last year with the Redondo Floral Co., Los Angeles, Cal. Mr. Knopf attended the F. T. D. convention at Detroit. Other visitors were Julius Dilloff, representing Schloss Bros., New York, and H. J. Millard, of Indianapolis, Ind. C. H. H.

The Climax Line is a Good Line to Tie To

THE FACT that we have in the past seven years built up the largest Cut Flower Box business in the Country is our best advertisement. We strive to please and the results speak for themselves.

is still our slogan.

We manufacture and carry in stock for prompt shipment: Oxford Gray, Mist Green, Mist Tan, White Carnation and our popular Favorite grade—the latter a most satisfactory telescope shipping box. Holiday boxes in season. We make special sizes promptly and at reasonable charge, and specialize in attractive and up-to-date printing and embossing.

With our increased facilities we aim to make our service the best in our line, and if you are in the market it will pay you to wait for the "Climax" Salesman, or send for late price list and samples to nearest office: 141 Milk St., Boston; 2914 11th St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

Frost last week put an end to outdoor stock, thus making cut flowers in smaller supply. Chrysanthemums, roses and lilies are in good demand, but the supply is not large. Dahlias and asters are still seen, but the quality is poor. Begonias are being used in funeral work, owing to the scarcity of other stock. Carnations are not yet plentiful, but are of better quality. Potted plants are beginning to sell rapidly. Business among the retailers last week was good, funeral work being heavy, while there were a number of decorations.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Forest Mitman left October 12 for San Diego, Cal., where she will spend the winter with her father.

M. Anderson reports that business is good, but the supply of flowers is not.

The Abbey Avenue Greenhouses are cutting some good early chrysanthemums.

Miss K. Young, accompanied by her father, made an automobile trip October 14 to Piqua, O.

Saul M. Rosenfeld, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York, called on the trade last week. G. J. F.

The Market.

Business in the wholesale market showed an improvement last week, but it would have been better if there had been more stock. The demand is strong and there is every indication of a good fall business. The cool weather has helped the retailers by increasing the transient business.

Roses and carnations are of better quality and the receipts are increasing each week. The greater part of the supply is from local growers. The heavy frost has killed everything outdoors, and that is what causes the shortage in cut flowers. There is a large offering of lilies, and mums are expected in a rush before long.

Various Notes.

The trade regrets to hear of the illness of Mrs. J. Hepting, who now is PHILADELPHIA.The Market.

Chrysanthemums are coming to the front as the leading flower. The frosts of October 12 and 13 destroyed over one-half of the dahlias coming into this market. Some of the growers still have part of their stock left. The milder weather that followed is keeping these dahlias in fine shape and reviving those that were not killed outright, but the dahlia has ceased to be the leading flower. The effect of these early killing frosts has been to reduce the supply of flowers materially. Usually chrysanthemums and carnations are in heavy crop at this season. Today both are late—chrysanthemums are only just beginning, owing to the fact that early varieties have not been so heavily planted as in the past. Winter carnations are later than for many years. Many of the plants are under size; those that are in fine shape are not in crop.

The tendency in chrysanthemums is toward moderate-sized blooms; but little fancy stock is offered. Golden Glow is still the leading yellow. Chrysolora is coming in more strongly than a week ago and there are some Comoleta blooms. Crystal Gem is a pleasing white. Unaka is the leading pink. While it is not wholly satisfactory, it remains the leader until something better appears. Good old Tint of Gold has reappeared to represent bronze. The remainder of the list includes Polly Rose, October Frost, Smith's Advance, Oconto and a few Pacifics. Pompons have arrived.

Roses are good, plentiful and of moderate price. They form the backbone of the market. Valley and cattleyas are obtainable now, the latter at normal prices. The mixed orchids include oncidiums, dendrobiums and vandas. Sweet peas have come. They are surprisingly good in white, pale pink, cerise and lavender, and their strength is increased by Yarrawa.

Marie Louise double violets have come from the Hudson river district. Yellow daisies are offered here and there.

The express situation is improving; shipments are going forward with but few delays.

Dahlias.

One of the most important of the outdoor specialties at the Riverview nurseries of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., is the dahlia. The space devoted to this sterling fall flower has steadily increased since its first appearance here not many years ago. The improvement in the quality of the plants grown, and in the varieties, has kept pace with the increase in their number. Formerly outside specialists were depended upon for the dahlias sold in the Dreer store in Philadelphia. The passing of that day was directly due to the failure of those specialists to do what is technically termed "true" their dahlias. It was more than the Dreer spirit of reliability could stand to have a red dahlia, such as Lyndhurst, go out under the label of the yellow dahlia, Mrs. C. W. Bruton. Yet in those days such glaring errors did occur. The specialists said mistakes would happen, but the house had to stand for it, and it couldn't. So dahlias were grown on its own farm.

At first the work of truing was something tremendous, but gradually determination and perseverance carried the day. While getting the varieties true to name still is, and always will be, a serious matter, vigilance, eternal vigilance won. Today the dahlias at Dreer's are true to name. Of course, this much-to-be-desired result means occasional empty spaces in the rows. A fine-looking plant has to be sacrificed because it is a rogue, and it is always pulled out the instant it is detected.

There are twenty-five acres or more planted to dahlias at Riverview. The number of varieties, standard and on trial, is extremely large, so that it requires knowledge and no small amount of experience to keep track of them. These varieties are constantly being increased by the introduction of new sorts from the best hybridizers of Europe and America. The varieties are selected both with a view to their fitness for the garden and for cut flowers. The improvement in the varieties grown is marked. Year by year some kinds are dropped as their particular type, form or color is improved upon.

ty of bright, lively chamois color, with a faint orange suffusion. Attraction is a hybrid cactus of large size, with a shade of lilac. This is Mr. Michel's ideal style of name. He prefers attraction, sensation, dazzling, to the habit—may I say weakness?—of immortalizing one's sweetheart by giving her name to a new creation. Hortulanus, with long stem, a pure white, is an exceedingly fine thing. Dora is reddish-salmon, deepening toward the center. Here Mr. Michel commented with a happy laugh: "The introducer wasn't going to let all the outsiders know exactly who his sweetheart might be. He called her Dora, nothing more." Twentieth Century has given us a type that is followed by a long line of splendid varieties of singles or semidoubles. Excelsior has narrow petals, a deep maroon. Eten-dard de Lyon is six inches in diameter, four inches deep, a carmine rose or royal purple. Flamingo, rose pink, frequently shows an open center. Red Flamingo has mammoth flowers, crimson red in color. Others are Snowflake, single, pure white; Mme. Coissard, crimson, passing to a white center; Catherine, primrose yellow; Mrs. Roosevelt, immense size, delicate silvery rose; Mondscheibe, yellow, entirely distinct from Leo XIII; Thais, pure white, with soft mauve suffusion, which is deposited over the snowy petals like dew; Pierrot, amber color, showing white tips, named after a famous French clown because of its comical appearance; Nancy May, a combination of brilliant colors that suggested to Mr. Michel's imaginative mind the idea that the originator must have named it after his colored cook. He explained this to William Engler, the faithful representative of the Florists' Exchange. Mr. Engler gravely introduced Mr. Michel to his better half, remarking that his wife's name is Nancy May. Nothing daunted, Mr. Michel propounded his colored cook theory to the originator of the variety Nancy May. "I named that variety after my wife," was the great hybridizer's answer; "her name is Nancy May." Oregon Beauty is oriental red, with golden sheen and garnet suffusion; a the choicest creations of the hybridizer's art. There are improvements in the other types, but none is so marked as that in the cactus dahlia. Much of the credit for the fine showing made in dahlia fields is due to the improved methods of cultivation. Only the growers can tell what faithful care has been bestowed on the dahlias. To the visitor it appeared as though cultivate, cultivate, cultivate, were the three watchwords to success. It is pretty generally recognized at Riverview that dahlias grown from tubers make stronger plants than those grown from cuttings. Propagation from cuttings is a necessity in new varieties or in those that demand a rapid increase in the stock. It is also recognized that to keep a standard variety up to the mark it is absolutely necessary to discard all those plants that show a tendency to retrograde.

Various Notes.

Charles H. Grakelow was the only retail florist from this city who attended the F. T. D. convention in Detroit. Mr. Grakelow went to Detroit expressly for the convention and felt fully repaid for the time devoted to the meeting. He said the convention was the best he had ever attended, full of live business ideas that were invaluable to him.

Joseph Meehan has gone to St. Petersburg, Fla., for the winter, by his physician's orders. Mr. Meehan's wonderful botanical knowledge will find a new and delightful field of research in the sunny south.

William E. Earnshaw, sales manager for the Floral Nurseries, says that the business done at the opening of the new salesroom exceeded expectations.

J. J. Habermehl's Sons have experienced increased business at the Bellevue-Stratford. There are no large affairs at present.

5th year on the market. Two types. Makes all kinds of Festooning. Type No. 1 will wrap on any size wire used for its center. One turn with handle gives two wraps on Festooning. Center wire can be measured while Festooning is wound, which eliminates measuring of Festooning. Type No. 2: Fine wire is used for the center, one turn with handle gives one wrap on Festooning. Does equally as good work as Type No. 1. We furnish machines ready for work, with enough wire to make 500 yards. Three days' trial allowed. Money refunded if machine is not what you want. radical a step, but the street generally considers it as a bright move that meets the unusual conditions.

Phil.

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

Business conditions suffered a slight relapse last week. There was a good frost, but not heavy enough to end the remaining outdoor flowers. Roses, which have improved and are in larger supply, bring good prices. Carnations are good, but are still on the short side, the blooms bringing 50 and 75 cents per dozen at retail. Orchid receipts are larger, while snapdragons are scarce and clear quickly each day. Chrysanthemums rule the market, the large and pompon varieties finding equal favor. A large number of potted mums are moved, as well as obconica primulas.

Various Notes.

Out-of-town florists present at the funeral of J. A. Valentine, October 10, in addition to those mentioned in last week's obituary, were S. Knudsen, of Boulder, Colo.; Charles Fohn, of Colorado Springs, Colo.; P. O. Hansen, of Greeley, Colo.

Carl Gross, formerly with the Alpha Floral Co., has accepted a position as traveling salesman with the S. S. Pennock Co., of Philadelphia. His territory is large—from Chicago to the coast.

Samuel Lundy is at the Mercy hospital, where he underwent an operation for rupture. He is convalescing nicely and expects to be at the store in another week.

Were you lucky enough to attend the
F. T. D. convention at Detroit October
2 and 3? If you were, you are a better florist today, are you not? And if you were not there, make a memorandum to go to Cleveland next year. President W.
F. Gude and Secretary Albert Pochelon started the convention and kept it going for two days, and by a unanimous vote they will be at it again next year.
H. P. Knoble, of Knoble Bros., Cleveland, got Secretary Pochelon's "goat" for $50. He had been after it four years.
After W. J. Palmer, of Buffalo, had bid $125 for an oil painting contributed by Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, typifying the work of the F. T. D., Philip Breit-meyer, the auctioneer, raised the bid to $150 and sold the picture to himself.
The picture will soon start on a journey to a number of cities, where it will be exhibited, the rental price being $25 per week.

The Market.

There continues to be a marked scarcity of flowers of all kinds. The retail demand is not robust, and with any larger arrivals a slump would be inevitable. Outdoor flowers are practically gone. The growers, fearing an acute coal shortage, are husbanding their fuel, and have not started fires unless absolutely necessary. We have had a spell of markedly low temperatures for the first half of October, and as a result flowers have opened extremely slowly. A few mild days probably will bring about an entire change in the situation, as the chrysanthemum wave is almost due, a period when all values crumble.

Roses have shortened up materially and growers have an easy task in cleaning them out at good prices, which remain about the same as a week ago. Carnations are in short supply and bring from $4 to $6 per hundred. Chrysanthemums are not yet sufficiently abundant to have a decided influence on the market. Unaka, Oconto, Advance, Glory of the Pacific and Golden Glow are mostly seen. Some good pompons have come in and have sold quickly at 75 cents per bunch. Violets have stiffened somewhat and easily made $1 per hundred October 13 and 15.

Lilies remain high-priced, and there is no surplus of cornflowers, marguerites, snapdragons and pansies. Small lots of sweet peas are seen; they sell at $1 to $2 per hundred. Orchids are more abundant and cattleyas are down to half the level of three weeks ago. A better business is being done in pot plants, cyclamens, crotons, dracaenas,

The Club Vegetable Exhibition.

The exhibition of vegetables given in Horticultural hall by the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, of which brief mention was made in the last issue of The Review, was a superb one, the finest seen in Boston for some years. Although the prizes offered were small, competitors came long distances, one 325 miles, from Seal Harbor, Me. The principal interest was centered in the class for twelve varieties, arranged for effect, in which William McGillivray, of Newport, R. I., won by a small margin over James Methven, James Donald coming in third. W. N. Craig was first for six varieties and also won for a collection of salad plants and the silver medal offered by the state board of agriculture to the winner of most points. Other large and successful exhibitors were William Thatcher, Frederick Cave, A. K. Rogers, J. L. Smith, F. W. Little, George C. McDonald, of Newport, R. I.; C. O. Childs, of Peacedale, R. I.; David L. Fiske, Edward Parker, Walter H. Golby, David R. Craig, William McKenzie, of Seal Harbor, Me., and Miss E. B. Thatcher.

Splendid honorary groups were put up by W. R. Thornhill, superintendent to August Hemenway; John L. Smith, superintendent to A. W. Preston; the Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co., and Thomas J. Grey Co. The W. W. Edgar Co. had a group of foliage plants. The Janiten & Wollrath Co. showed cut chrysanthemums; also cyclamens and Begonia Mrs. Heal. The Blue Hill Nurseries showed numerous vases of hardy perennials. Joseph Breck & Sons and Carter's Tested Seeds, Inc., also contributed toward the success of the show. At the business session an additional $250 worth of Liberty bonds were voted to be purchased for the club's account.

Various Notes.

James Donald, head gardener to Mrs. A. T. Cabot, of Canton, Mass., won the large silver cup offered by W. B. H. Dowse, of Newton, to the winner of the greatest number of points in the vegetable classes of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society during 1917.

Penn's windows have been displaying a fine lot of California-grown specimen chrysanthemum blooms, which looked fresh after their long journey. Large vases of kniphofias, or tritomas, with red autumn foliage, were used effectively in one window.

Harry Quint's Boylston street store is doing an active business in Paper White narcissi and other French and Dutch bulbs, in addition to the plant and cut flower business.

The W. W. Edgar Co. has had a splendid season with Golden Glow, Advance and Oconto mums. Its cyclamens are splendid and move as fast as they open.

The Boston Rose Co., of the Flower Exchange, is receiving fine shipments of American Beauty roses from Scarborough, N. Y., and fine Hadley, Russell and Stanley roses from the Montgomery Co., South Hadley, Mass.

At David & E. J. Welch's wholesale store shipping business is good, but the present abnormally high prices of flowers restrict business. Messrs. Welch anticipate a good winter business.

John A. Nelson, of Framingham, is shipping in good sweet peas and snapdragons. His carnations are in fine crop. Matchless, Ward, Benora, Fenn and Beacon are of extra fine quality for so early in the season.

At his Revere establishment, Thomas Roland has a splendid lot of pink Ophelia roses, of which he thinks highly. Killarney Queen and Double White Killarney are also in fine shape. Excellent crotons, ferns and Massangeana dracaenas arrive from Nahant.

Robert Montgomery, of Natick, is cutting Russell roses of as fine quality as I have seen this season. Hadley and Richmond are also good. Among his carnations Rosalia and Nancy are doing finely.

Richard R. Haley, of Malden, is cutting a splendid lot of Oconto mums. He has a fine house of cyclamens and one of Cincinnati and Melior begonias, which promise to be in good shape for the holiday trade.

John W. Foote, of Reading, is our local Bouvardia Humboldtii specialist and all his shipments this season are eagerly bought up at advanced prices.

W. R. Nicholson, of Framingham, is the heaviest local shipper of pompon mums. These are in active demand. His early single-stem mums are now mostly cut. He is particularly well pleased with the new rose-pink carnation, Albert Roper, which possesses great vigor and flowers freely. Mr. Nicholson paid a visit last week to establishments near New York, including the new range of the Duckham-Pierson Co. and that of C. H. Totty, of Madison.

Charles T. Beasley & Co., of East Milton, pansy specialists, are picking splendid blooms of their special strains of this popular flower. They are doing remarkably well with pompon mums, which they are marketing in quantity.

Thomas Iliffe, son of Daniel Iliffe, the local greenhouse builder, is with the aviation corps at Camp Kelly, Tex. Charles A. Stellberger and Norman W. Hunter, members of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, are in training. The former is at Ayer, Mass., and the latter is with the Pennsylvania engineers, training at Camp Hancock, Augusta, Ga.

Peter Hylen, of Randolph, is cutting excellent Smith's Advance mums. He

The Market.

The market last week was in splendid condition. Sales increased with the retailers, which caused a large demand at the wholesale houses. Prices stiffened somewhat over the week previous. A greater part of the outdoor stock was destroyed by frost earlier in the week, and dahlias and cosmos, which had been plentiful, are out of the market, the trade being greatly handicapped by the absence of the cheaper flowers. Gladioli and asters also are over for the season. Chrysanthemums are not arriving in the quantities expected, and the demand cleans up the supply daily. Most of the growers have only the later varieties, which they claim are more profitable. Rose consignments were strong last week. Quantities of Russell, Ophelia, Sunburst and the Killarney roses arrived and met a good demand. Ophelia is the most popular, with Russell a close second.

Carnations are coming in fine, with better flowers and stems. The supply has been satisfactory and prices advanced a little. The cold nights have improved violets considerably. Some really good quality stock was seen last week. Extra good valley reached the market. It sold for $8 per hundred. The supply of Easter lilies is not heavy, but the few in are of extra good quality. These, too, are up in price. Orchids are scarce and the demand large. Smilax, asparagus, adiantum and flat ferns are in good supply.

Florists' Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club was held October 11 at the greenhouse establishment of Joseph Hauser at Webster Groves, Mo., the members making the trip by automobile. The cold rain early in the day kept many from attending, but eight cars were necessary to transport those who went.

The meeting was held in one of the big greenhouses, with President Jules Bourdet presiding. After preliminary business was disposed of, Vice-president August Hummert was installed in office. August Hartmann was elected to membership, and applications were received from T. J. Vollmer, of the St. Louis Pottery Co., and Vincent J. Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly. A committee was named to convey the sympathy of the club to Mrs. J. A. Valentine, of Denver, whose husband was killed in an automobile accident October 5.

The trustees were instructed to secure a meeting room for the club in the downtown section of the city for the winter gatherings, this being the last of the outdoor meetings. It was also decided that there would be an exhibition of chrysanthemums at the next meeting. Fred C. Weber, Jr., district representative of the F. T. D., was called upon and gave a report of the meeting of the association at Detroit. He said that only four St. Louis members were present, and urged that the trade attend the meeting to be held in Cleveland next year.

After the meeting adjourned, Mr. Hauser entertained the members at luncheon. A rising vote of thanks was extended for the afternoon's entertainment. The next meeting will be held November 8.

Various Notes.

The meeting of the St. Louis County Growers' Association October 3 was well attended. The proceedings were interesting, especially the discussion of the S. A. F. publicity plan and the National Flower Show. President Rowe presided.

Columbus day, October 12, brought considerable business to the florists. The statue of Columbus in Tower Grove park was decorated, the work being done by Windler's Flowers.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle met at the home of Mrs. Emil Schray October 10. It was decided that a meeting in the interest of the National Flower Show should be held in parlor A of the Planters' hotel, November 7, to which the ladies are expected to bring their husbands who are members of the trade.

The Blossom Shop has organized a bowling team. This is the third team among St. Louis florists, the Brix Floral Co. and the Shadd Florists already having organized.

Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill., are shipping splendid Russell, Ophelia, Sunburst and Milady roses to this market. They expect soon to be cutting mums.

Busy times are reported by the various local nursery concerns. The H. J. Weber & Sons Co., the Sanders Nursery Co. and the Western Nursery are all working overtime, owing to the inability to secure extra help.

Fred W. Ude, Jr., of Kirkwood, Mo., has started cutting chrysanthemums, of which he has a large stock. He has several large houses of pompons.

Count von Hoffmann, manager of George Waldbart's Grand avenue store, is carrying his right hand in a sling. He refuses to tell what happened.

George Schmidt, rose grower for W. J. Pilcher at his Kirkwood establishment, has a new touring car.

Frank Windler did jury duty last week, sitting in five cases.

The W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. is rearranging its supply department on the second floor.

At the Mullanphy Florists' downtown store there was a handsome display of early chrysanthemums. Martin Seeger said that trade had increased considerably since frost killed outdoor flowers. The chairmen of the local committees

The Market.

A killing frost arrived toward the end of last week and put the finishing touch to the little outdoor stock that was being cut. This did not help the market conditions, as it generally does, due to the fact that the carnation crop is particularly late this year; the quantity of blooms received daily is only a drop in the bucket. The carnation plants, however, look better every day, and it is only a question of a few weeks when this stock will produce a normal cut and orders will be filled, with some satisfaction, at least.

Roses also are scarce; the cut is not nearly large enough to take care of the demand. The quality of the stock is fine, with some exceptionally good Russells and Ophelias.

Cattleyas are in good supply. While the demand is good, there are plenty to go around. The quality is fine and some exceptional specimens are being disposed of at fair prices. The demand for Easter lilies seems to have been greater during the last week, and as the supply is large a good number of the flowers are moved. Valley remains about the same; that is, extremely scarce, and of only medium quality. Violets are coming in more satisfactorily every day and are consumed with no particular effort. The supply still is limited, of course. Chrysanthemums are more numerous and of finer quality. The demand, however, is more than sufficiently large to keep the supply down. Pompons also are in great demand and orders for this stock remain unfilled.

While business does not compare so favorably with that of last year as it should, this is attributed to the lack of stock rather than to a poor demand. The business is there, and it is only a question of supplying the stock to bring the total up to its usual standard for this time of the year.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Advertising Club, which had its inception about six weeks ago, is progressing, and all but a few members of the trade have signified their willingness to abide by the rules, by signing the articles of organization, which are being circulated. The plan bids fair to be most successful, and as all the leading firms have joined there seems to be no doubt as to its merits among the larger and more progressive florists of this community.

F. H. Holton is busy taking subscriptions to the second Liberty Loan. He has received a number of subscriptions from members of the trade and is working hard in conjunction with the other members of his committee, W. C. Zimmermann and C. C. Pollworth, to make a good showing for the trade when the campaign is over. There are a number of members who have not subscribed, but if they would get in touch with one of the committee mentioned above the trade would make a good showing in the final accounting at the end of this week.

M. H. Moore, of 522 Grand avenue, has gone to visit his mother in Arizona. He will be away from his business for about a month.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.;
Secretary-Treasurer, O. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

ALFRED WATKINS, of Watkins & Simpson, London, has been elected president of the Horticultural Trades' Association of Great Britain.

ONION sets continue in good demand at from $2 to $2.25 in good-sized orders to jobbers, for yellow and red. White stock sells at from $3 to $3.50 for good stock.

F. W. BRUGGERHOF, dean of the American seed trade and president of J. M. Thorburn & Co., New York, last Saturday celebrated his eighty-seventh birthday anniversary. He still keeps in active touch with the business.

THE WHITE SEED Co., Plainview, Tex., has let the contract for a new building to cost $10,000. The old buildings will be sold and removed. The new building will be ready for occupancy in December. The company will continue to sell seeds, bulbs, incubators and poultry supplies.

S. F. LEONARD, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, is inspecting crops of sweet corn the company is growing. He reports a fair crop of choice narrow-grain Evergreen, which is one of the company's specialties. Edward Leonard has started on his annual duck shooting trip with some Wisconsin friends.

J. CHARLES McCULLOUGH, the Cincinnati seedsman, returned recently from a fishing trip to the Florida coast. He brought back a fish so large that it is said it was necessary to remove one of the doors of his seed warehouse to get it into the building. Which is some fish for a man 65 years old to land.

THE first shipments of giganteum bulbs from Japan have come in and gone out. Orders have been filled only in part, but later shipments are expected to supply the quantity necessary to fill all orders for autumn delivery. The indications are that the quantity of bulbs received will not leave many to go into cold storage.

DUTCH bulbs have come to hand little if any later than last year. Statistics as to the quantity imported this season are lacking, but apparently it is not so large a quantity as last year. It will be remembered that last season the only surplus was of stock received much later than this and it is probable that the bulbs constituting the two cargoes thus far received will clean up promptly.

CERTAIN importers of French bulbs are said to have had another illustration of the folly of depending on ungetatable sources of supply. Certain concerns, located neither in America nor France, took advance orders for French bulbs at prices that did not permit them to cover themselves when they tried to buy, so they simply lay down and left their customers to supply themselves as best they may.

is stated that the nursery stock is being sold out, with the intention of discontinuing that branch of the business this fall.

BURPEE ADOPTS CENTAL SYSTEM.

David Burpee, general manager of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., makes the following announcement:

"Of course you are familiar with the general tendency of the present time for seedsmen to do away with the inadequate system of selling seeds by the bushel, peck, quart, etc. W. Atlee Burpee & Co. have decided to discontinue the system entirely and in its forthcoming catalogue will list all seeds on the cental system. It is unnecessary for me to tell you of the advantages of the cental system, but we bespeak general assistance in the campaign to educate people to buy seeds by the pound. We feel that everyone interested in the trade should help push the good cause along."

The American Seed Trade Association some years ago urged, through resolutions adopted in convention, that the cental system be generally adopted. A number of houses employed it the next year, and increasingly thereafter, but this action on the part of the House of Burpee probably will go farther toward making the system universal than has any other one incident in the campaign.

tion to know what our percentage will be. In the west the crop is only fair.

The pea crops, both in Michigan and Idaho, have been seriously injured and our crops in both places will be only partial.

Corn is the latest we have ever known it since coming to Sioux City and we had a slight frost the latter part of September, although not sufficient to injure the corn in any way, but the last days of September and the first days of October have been favorable for the maturing of corn. While we do not anticipate a full crop, we expect to make a fair delivery. The superintendent of this department is hoping to get data together to give detailed information in the near future. We would say that the sweet corn in our territory is fairly good.

HOW AUSTRALIANS WANT SEED.

The U. S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce has received from one of the officials of the bureau abroad some interesting information relating to commerce and quarantine acts applying to the import of seed into Australia. The circular embodying this information states, in part, that all seeds consigned to Australia must comply fully with the regulations of the commerce and quarantine acts, which are as follows:

The country of origin of the seeds must be stenciled on the outside of package or bag; the seeds must be in good order, and, in addition, free from weeds and foreign matter, and must be of strong germinating power. A declaration to this effect must be stenciled on the bag. It is not sufficient that this declaration be written on a tag and attached by string. The prescribed wording for the above is Sound, clean and new.

For instance, all consignments of rye grass seed being shipped to Australia would need to have stenciled on the outside of every bale or sack:

Rye Grass Seed,
Produce of U. S. A.,
Sound, clean and new.

Similarly, red clover seed shipped from U. S. A. would need the inscription:

Red Clover Seed,
Produce of U. S. A.,
Sound, clean and new.

The specific country of origin must appear, and it will not be sufficient to brand the bags "America," but U. S. A. must be plainly specified.

The quarantine act insists that any seed having the slightest trace of dodder or ergot is prohibited admission to the commonwealth, and it is absolutely essential that all seeds consigned to Australian houses are free from the same. This regulation applies particularly to alfalfa and red clover as far as dodder is concerned, and rye grass as far as ergot is concerned.

The act further prescribes that no bags must be of greater weight than 200 pounds gross, so as to facilitate handling and save the backs of the stevedores. Even if the bags weigh a fraction more than 200 pounds, they have to be opened and the excess quantity taken out.

and is "making good." To quote George Wedge: "We are hammering away, and with our extensive nursery expect to extend our business considerably."

"Business was never better; the local trade has greatly increased since the opening of our retail store," said Manager William Kucker, of the Faribault Seed & Nursery Co., Faribault, Minn.

The Currie Bros. Seed Co., of Milwaukee, Wis., is awaiting the course of events before sending out its bulb catalogues. It keeps all hands explaining why those long-expected bulbs have not arrived. Never will they be more acceptable and valuable for counter sales. The seed business is good.

George Hunkel & Co., of Milwaukee, do an extensive garden seed business and are getting their patrons in line for another mutually good season.

J. J. Sluis, of the Sluis Seed Store, Chicago, reading from a telegram just received, remarked: "Some contracts are so many 'scraps of paper.' Fortunately, indeed, are we to have some good growers to hitch to. We look for another big seed season."

The L. L. Olds Seed Co., of Madison, Wis., is putting the finishing touches to next season's catalogue, which has been prepared with the greatest care and conservatism.

Meltzer's Seed Store, at Watertown, Wis., reports a steady counter trade. Some fine samples of home-grown stocks were noticed.

E. T. Peirce, manager of the Iowa Seed Co., Des Moines, Ia., predicts a merry time for the mail-order trade when the stamp tax goes into effect. "Aside from the labor, the additional stamps will cost several thousands of dollars, and we cannot pass the burden along," said Mr. Peirce. "So we must wait with patience the outcome. Business has been good and a continuation is looked for. Though some war gardeners were discouraged, others were encouraged, and with a stimulating press an increase may be anticipated."

There hangs in the office of the president of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., at Grand Rapids, Mich., a picture of the proposed group of seed warehouses. Owing to the intervention of the war, the plan has gone no farther, but the land is secured for what is intended to be a complete modern structure. A new building of four floors has been temporarily secured to help accommodate the storage of from thirty to forty cars of peas and beans alone, the crop turning out fairly well. Manager Remington remarked that, owing to the dry weather, the clover crop will be light, but will be fully compensated for in the return of cereals and corn.

The Page-Philipps Seed Co., of Toledo, is making a strong bid for country trade, following the method so successfully carried out from Greene, N. Y.

J. F. Stamm & Co., of Toledo, are putting a concrete foundation in their building to carry the additional weight consequent upon an increasing business.

Tucker's Seed House, Carthage, Mo., is making preparations to handle a banner business from now on.

The Redding & Clark Seed Store, Joplin, Mo., is the oldest in the state. "And yet," said Joseph Redding, "we have to keep continually at it to hold our trade, or the other fellow gets our goat."

Kan., "never had so good a season since being associated with the squash that bears our name," reports C. E. Hubbard.

J. N. Draper, of Springfield, Mo., a market gardener of note, has had big success with a bean of recent introduction, by name Guada, or New Guinea Butter. From one seed a vine bore thirty-six beans, in shape resembling a mammoth spine cucumber. Grown on an overhead trellis, sliced and cooked as eggplant, it is delicious and promises to be a valuable acquisition to our list of everyday vegetables.

Charles Lohrman, of the Lohrman Seed Co., Detroit, Mich., observed that while the counter trade exceeded all precedent, he looks for a duplication next year, for the reason that while there were many disappointed war gardeners, there will be a new crop of workers, especially if the authorities encourage the scheme, as was the case this year. "As I was on the committee of community war gardens, I was able to do good service for the gardeners," said Mr. Lohrman; "in fact, I loaned a large piece of land, well fertilized, free of cost, and saw satisfactory crops grown. But the richest yield to me is that the piece for which I paid $8,000, I have sold for $50,000." W. M.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

J. W. Vestal & Son, Little Rock, Ark.—"Vestal's Guide," an illustrated fall catalogue of bulbs, seeds, greenhouse plants, roses, nursery stock, fertilizers and insecticides; forty compactly printed pages, in a colored cover. Included is an "abridged list of vegetable seed for fall and early spring planting."

Arthur T. Boddington Co., Inc., New York, N. Y.—"Boddington's Garden Guide," a 20-page, illustrated catalogue of bulbs, plants and sundries. The cultural directions are comprehensive and include instructions on the growing of bulbs in fiber. Darwin tulips are especially conspicuous, being featured in the embellishments of the front cover and in the full-page illustration which constitutes page 1. The merits and distinguishing marks of the Darwins are described on page 2.

Wood, Stubbs & Co., Inc., Louisville, Ky.—"A Catalogue of Spring-flowering Bulbs and Ornamental Plants"; twenty-four well illustrated pages, in a particularly tasteful cover. Roses, hardy shrubs and evergreens are included in the lists. The cultural and descriptive matter is unusually comprehensive.

D. Hill Nursery Co., Inc., Dundee, Ill.—Illustrated wholesale catalogue, "for nurserymen, florists, seedsmen, dealers and landscape architects"; twenty-two pages and cover. Evergreens, being the specialty, are listed in great quantity and variety and in all sizes, from small seedlings and grafts to large specimens. An assortment of dwarf evergreens is offered as "adapted for rockeries, terraces, foundation planting, Japanese gardens, etc." Another line of evergreens is intended for tubs and window boxes. A more limited collection of deciduous stock is listed.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

MR. WARD'S PROGRESS.

The Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Eureka, Cal., which have attracted attention throughout the United States, as C. W. Ward's attempt to grow the bulbs and plants usually imported from Europe, are preparing to distribute something like 10,000 azalea plants to customers up and down the coast, a few small lots being sent east. The nurseries contain a large quantity of year-old azalea grafts and 200,000 are being grafted this season, but the stock to be sold is of Belgian origin, grown on for one or two years at Eureka. It will be two years before any considerable quantity of the Eureka-grown azaleas can be offered.

Last year a considerable quantity of azaleas was ready for shipment. For one day packing in the open air had been under full headway, when an unusually heavy frost destroyed the buds on all the plants not then packed. This was because of conditions incidental to starting the business and is not expected ever to happen again. The method of growing azaleas has been revised since the start. The use of slat houses has been discontinued. The plants will be wintered under glass and planted in the field in the summer, following practically the Belgian method.

No bulbs will be shipped from Eureka this season, except, perhaps, a few high-priced narcissi or some retail orders. It has been found that the bulbs grown here reproduce much more rapidly than the freshly imported bulbs. As the stock, although it now numbers millions, has not yet been worked up to the size contemplated, there seems to Mr. Ward to be no reason for selling the prolific stock on hand when it must be replaced with less prolific imported bulbs. Consequently, all the stock grown here is to be retained for another year, with a considerable addition through imports made via the Waaldyk and Schiedyk.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Apparently 1917 will go on record as the year of the big glut of mums. The heat, arriving after a rather late season, has brought the late midseason and early varieties all in together. Just now Monrovia, Golden Glow,

"The season just closed has been a most successful one, and we are more than pleased with the results of the advertising we carried in The Review." — Los Robles Nursery, Santa Cruz, Cal., Sept. 17, 1917.

Chrysolora, Bonnaffon and Appleton, in yellow, are competing with one another for a place. The consequence is that every place is filled with mums, and another consequence is that mums probably will be scarce later.

In carnations the glut is not so great, but the demand is not so good as usual at this season. Roses are arriving in fair condition, but poor in color, from some of the growers. The local-grown Beauties are fine.

Orchids are more plentiful, but valley continues scarce.

Much funeral work has been the rule and the opening of several large stores has called for a number of large designs. The weather is too fine for the flower business to be good, as auto trips, the mountains and sea still call many of the best patrons. It is hard to prophesy, but when the present glut is over, it looks as though there will be a scarcity of stock and high prices. There is not nearly the acreage in carnations and other flowers that was planted in previous years.

Various Notes.

Walter Siebrecht, brother of Henry Siebrecht, Jr., of Pasadena, arrived here this week. He is likely to stay for some time in connection with his brother's new orchid business.

George Chandler, of the staff of Howard & Smith, is speaking of a trip to England. Fred Howard, president of the firm, says that in all his experience things never looked brighter for large landscape contracts. Many inquiries are coming in and many orders already secured for work of the better kind.

Thomas Wright, of Wright's Flower Shop, is much improved in health and is at the store a large part of each day.

H. W. Turner has had to stay away from business temporarily on account of a severe cold and threatened lung trouble. If he can get away, he may take a winter trip to Arizona.

Walter Armacost & Co. are opening a wholesale branch for the distribution of their flowers at 221 East Fourth street. The store is in the same block as the S. Murata & Co. establishment, and close to the L. A. Floral Co. and other houses. The wholesalers are bunching up—a good thing. The Beauties now arriving from the Armacost range at Sawtelle are extra fine.

Walter Polder, of Polder Bros., Montebello, was married recently to Miss Jessie Hoekstra. Mrs. Polder was a Chicago girl who came out some time ago and then went back, but the loadstone in sunny California was too strong.

Albert Knopf, of the Redondo Floral Co., writes that he is having a good time in the east. Mr. Knopf has been visiting his old home town, Columbus, O., and other towns where the name of Knopf is not altogether dissociated with the flower business. In the meantime, F. Borden is holding down the stand and, as the days are getting shorter, putting in less time growing vegetables. The high cost of gardening will not worry him much more this season.

J. W. Wolters' store always looks a little "different" from any other store on account of the great variety of stock he brings in from the Hollywood ranch. Mr. Wolters has reached San Francisco on his homeward trip from the east.

Everyone seems busy at the store of the California Cut Flower Co. The stock handled is fine.

Good requests continue to arrive at the L. A. Floral Co. store, with regard to long-distance shipments. Some of these shipments went as far as Minnesota.

Lichtenberg's store is splendidly arranged. With the large quantity of fine stock and the telling color of the decorations, the store certainly is bright and attractive. Harry C. Soelke, formerly with Podesta & Baldocchi, of San Francisco, has joined the staff here, adding one more to a strong team.

Orders continue to come from an ever widening territory to S. Murata & Co.

H. R. Richards.

SPOKANE, WASH.The Market.

The principal topic in Spokane is the weather, which everyone is enjoying except the florists. Frost, which would kill the garden flowers, is a month overdue. While that has helped out in the coal bill, it has held back the demand for flowers to an alarming degree.

Chrysanthemums are being flowered earlier than is customary, and as a consequence we may not have blooms as late as usual. In Spokane the mum season extends into and sometimes through February. Flowers of all kinds are plentiful and good. Roses are fine and carnations show a decided improvement, both in bloom and stem.

Various Notes.

The H. L. Olsson Co., Inc., is perhaps the only concern which is grateful for the continued warm weather. Up to last week the company did not have its greenhouse boilers connected or its pipes in. However, the management expects to be in condition to have steam up by the last of this week.

Burnette Bros. are making a good cut of carnations now. Next week they will have their first cut of chrysanthemums. Oconto, a new one in this locality, looks like a winner.

Peters & Sons are cutting good roses, particularly Russell and White Killarney. Because of the great scarcity of white roses, White Killarney finds a ready market.

J. F. Austin expects to leave for the coast sometime during the winter. He will dispose of his interests in the Spokane Greenhouse Co., Inc., and will devote his attention to his other business interests.

Thomas Christensen, of Wallace, Idaho, was a recent visitor among the growers, buying supplies for the winter. Jolly and smiling as always, Mr. Christensen reports business fair at Wallace. "Too much fair weather and not enough frost," said Thomas.

L. B. H.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The stock situation is more satisfactory than for several weeks. Chrysanthemums are at their height, roses show marked improvement, and more good carnations are to be had. The weather has been fine for chrysanthemums and the blooms leave nothing to be desired. Quantities of mums are being shipped and the local demand was never better. Many more varieties have put in an appearance during the last few days. At the retail establishments everything has to give way to chrysanthemums; windows are banked with them, and the interior displays leave little room for other flowers.

While most of the business is being done in chrysanthemums, the arrival of better roses is much appreciated. Ophelia probably averages the best, although there is a good cut of Shawyer, and Russell shows much improvement. Cecile Brunner roses are plentiful and good. Carnations, which have been a negligible quantity for some time, are coming nicely. Dahlias are about gone. Cut cyclamens are not so plentiful as a week ago, but there are plenty of plants. The supply of violets is increasing steadily; the shipping demand is heavier. The limited offerings of Marie Louise clean up readily. Gardenias are plentiful and their quality is excellent; the same may be said of orchids, and there is enough valley to go around.

Various Notes.

Earl Poehlmann, of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, arrived in San Francisco a few days ago, having made the trip by automobile. He has been visiting the large flower stores in the city and has been the guest of members of the trade on trips to many of the nurseries in the outlying districts. Mr. Poehlmann planned to drive to Seattle, Wash., and to ship his machine home from there. He has been away since August 5.

PALMS PALMS

NEW GREENS FROM CANADA

Cedar Fronds. Most useful for florists' work; keep in good condition for months. Packages of 100, 6 to 9 in. long, $3.50 per 1000. (Special prices on cedar branches on application.)

Oregon Grape. Very effective in design work, also sell well for parlor decoration, put in damp soil or water; keep for long time; come in varied shades of green, as season advances some turn red, brown, bronze and purple. Once tried, repeat orders follow. Per 1000, $3.50.

Salal. One of our native plants, green all winter, sprays very useful. Per lb., 35 cts.

Vaccinium. This shrub turns from green to bronze-red as season advances and is in a class all by itself. Sprays from 1 to 2 feet. Per lb., 35 cts.

All these goods take classification as "Florists' Cuttings" and take N, or second class express rate. Rate to Chicago is $7.50 per 100 lbs. U. S. duty is 10 per cent and port of entry is Portal, North Dakota. Orders with cash receive preference. Trial order solicited. Canadian florists now use these largely.

the field artillery, which was the department he wanted to serve in.

Albert O. Stein was extremely busy with the fashion show at the Palace hotel. His force made all the brides' and other bouquets. The beginning of dinner dances at the Fairmont hotel is bringing Mr. Stein many table decorations.

William Scanlon has left the employ of Albert O. Stein to enlist in the medical corps of the army. He is stationed at Angel Island.

F. C. Jaeger, of F. C. Jaeger & Son, says business has been good at his store on Powell street, despite the street car strike, which undoubtedly has interfered with trade, especially in the evenings.

The greatest number of floral tributes seen at a funeral for some time were supplied this week by the various retailers for the three firemen who lost their lives in a lodging house fire.

Miss Recardie Lee Murray reports business good at her store on Geary street and at her stand in the Clift hotel.

Walter Hofinghoff, of MacRorie & McLaren, has been on a trip to Nevada. His brother, E. Hofinghoff, who is manager of the company's retail business, reports business well up to expectations.

The Florists' Bowling Club is meeting regularly Tuesday evenings and the attendance is increasing steadily.

Frank Pelicano is experiencing success with shipments of his Adiantum Pelicanii to Chicago. This is the first year that the supply has been sufficiently large to justify out-of-town shipment.

Ferrari Bros. are bringing in a good cut of orchids; also unusually fine gardenias. Both lines are comparatively new with them, but they are having fine results.

Orchids arriving from J. A. Carbone's place at Berkeley are plentiful and leave nothing to be desired in quality.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is rushed with chrysanthemum shipments. In roses, J. A. Axell says the company is filling a strong shipping demand for Cecile Brunner. It is forwarding many violets, too.

J. Dieterich, of Los Angeles, paid his respects to San Francisco friends a few days ago.

A. F. Podesta, of Podesta & Baldocchi, says the increased supply of good orchids, gardenias and valley, together with the splendid offerings of chrysanthemums, has greatly improved market conditions.

For a wedding this week Fred Bertrand, of Joseph's, used a large lot of orchids and other high-class flowers. A special "baby" window has been at-

The Market.

Clear, warm weather continues, causing flowers to bloom outdoors. Consequently there is little business for the retailers. Roses and carnations are plentiful, the price of carnations having dropped to $2 per hundred. Local chrysanthemums are poor, but considerable stock is shipped in from California. Pompons are more plentiful, but as yet are not having a large sale. The hardy asters are popular. Dahlias are now in their prime and until frost comes will occupy considerable space in the retail stores.

Among true patriots who are doing their "bit" must be enrolled Arthur Gleave, proprietor of Gleave's Flower Shop. Mr. Gleave has a fine business, but is leaving it, having enlisted in the army, though he is over the age of conscription. During Mr. Gleave's absence the store and business will be looked after by Miss Trussell, who has been connected with it ever since Mr. Gleave started it.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

A clean-up of stock nearly every day indicates a fairly good business. The demand is robust for every kind of flower, but there is a shortage in many seasonable items. Chrysanthemums are becoming more plentiful. Much of the stock, however, coming from California, is alternately good and bad, so that retailers hardly break even on the transaction. Local mums are scarce. The outdoor-grown mums have been spoiled by the depredations of the tarnish bug and not many from under glass are arriving as yet.

Carnations are none too plentiful and still show the effects of thrips, but they are selling well and, as usual, are largely used for funeral work, of which there has been considerable. Roses are plentiful and meet with a good demand, the larger number of them coming from the south. Asters are about over for the season. Not so many were grown this year, so growers had some returns on their investment. Gladioli are still plentiful. They help to decorate the stores and are in constant demand. Lilioms are selling well; both longiflorums and speciosums are arriving in moderate quantities. Pot plants still are exceedingly scarce; few flowering plants, except chrysanthemums, are offered.

Various Notes.

W. D. Desmond now is manager of the Hollywood store. Mr. Desmond has been employed at the store for some time under Charles E. Sullivan. When the latter resigned Mr. Desmond was appointed manager, a position he is eminently qualified to fill. He is well known in the east and middle west, having been manager of L. C. Donaldson's store in Minneapolis for eight years. Recently he traveled this district for the Poehlmann Bros. Co., of Chicago, and he became so enamored of our city that he decided to make it his home.

HILL IS HAPPY.

A. H. Hill, of the D. Hill Nursery Co., at Dundee, Ill., has returned from a trip through northern Wisconsin, where he succeeded in locating a long-needled and large-coned type of Abies balsamea. This is a form that Prof. Sargent, of Arnold Arboretum, is exceedingly interested in and that he has been trying to locate in the wild state for some time. The type is noticeably different from the common balsam. It has a darker and richer coloring, the needles are longer and the cones are considerably larger. Another marked characteristic is that the trees hold their lower branches and even the old trees are perfect specimens. Prof. Sargent calls this type Abies balsamea macrocarpa and describes it as being an exceptionally beautiful and desirable type of fir.

other great commercial industries of the world. This book also embodies an effort to elevate the trade. As the author states, the book "is designed to lift horticulture from the basement to the upper stories."

Of course, the elevation which the author has in view differs in scope and character from the elevation sought by the florists' organizations, for the author's object is chiefly æsthetic; he is preaching "the gospel of beauty." Yet one of the main purposes of the florists' publicity campaign is to cultivate the artistic taste of the people and cause a clearer discernment of the beauty of flowers.

The prestige and prosperity of the florists' trade are founded on the public appreciation of the beautiful, and this appreciation must be most fully developed among the florists them-

BOX-BARBERRY

DWARF TYPE OF BERBERIS THUNBERGII

New Edge and Dwarf Hedge Plant

ORIGINATED at our Nursery sixteen years ago among a batch of Japan Barberry seedlings. It attracted attention in the seedling bed and has been under careful watching since. The original plant is now about two and one-half feet wide, and globe-like in shape, its natural form.

It is pronounced a most valuable find by all who have seen either the original plant or the stock we have propagated from it, including experienced nurserymen, landscape architects and gardeners, experiment station men and amateurs.

The public will take to it immediately. It's just what is wanted. As a formal-garden edge plant it is ideal—this means thousands of it for many a single order. Equally desirable as a low and medium hedge plant, assuring a heavy demand. Trims into perfect formal specimens.

Propagates readily from either hard or soft wood cuttings. Will not come true from seed.

OFFERED TO THE TRADE FALL, 1917—NO RESTRICTIONS

Offered to the general public and will and will be freely advertised in Fall, 1918, and Spring, 1919. Get up a stock and be ready for the certain heavy demand.

The Market.

The market is almost destitute of flowers. With a steadily growing demand, and no increase in the supply of stock, the condition appears serious. It has been necessary for the retailers to refuse numerous orders, and still the shortage continues. Chrysanthemums are coming in small supply, the prices ranging from $1 to $4 per dozen. A fair supply of roses is being cut and consumed, but there is not enough to meet the demand. Lilies, also, are scarce, and sell for $1.50 per dozen. Few carnations are available, and buyers fairly fight over them at $3 per hundred. Violets are coming in limited numbers. Potted plants are popular, with potted chrysanthemums selling well. Begonias and Jerusalem cherries are being offered. An abundant supply of potted ferns is being offered.

Various Notes.

Hartje & Elder are cutting fine early mums.

Revising the Figures

Something we all have to do this year. We have always prided ourselves on quality of stock. We are going to maintain that same good quality, but we cannot at the old prices under present conditions. The coal man has passed the buck to us. We're passing it on and it will be continually moving for some time to come.

Our new prices for 1918 are based on the increased cost of production. It is the time to count cost—a day of reckoning. Won't you as producer or retailer do likewise? Keep our business in line with others. Let us get out of it the extra cost of production.

We shall offer our new prices for 1918 without more apology. We are simply passing the buck

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The demand for cut flowers is reported to be unusually brisk for this time of the year, with a somewhat limited supply of first-grade stock. With few exceptions, early chrysanthemums are disappointing as to quality and the same may be said of carnations. On some days it has been impossible to obtain sufficient numbers of locally grown flowers to meet the demand. Roses are not up to the seasonable standard. However, better offerings are daily expected. A feature of the present conditions is the heavy demand for orchids.

Various Notes.

James Hacking, of Central Falls, has been reelected superintendent of the Moshassuck Cemetery Corporation.

Robert Johnson, of Johnson Bros., and Mrs. Johnson returned recently from an 8-day automobile trip through Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts.

Samuel Kinder, of Bristol, left last week for a fishing trip in the vicinity of Block island, off Narragansett bay, with other members of the Prudence Island Fishing Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick B. Luther have returned from an automobile trip to the Berkshires.

Alexander Macrae, of F. Macrae & Sons, last week tied the highest score ever made at 300 yards at the rifle range of the North Providence Rifle Club.

Large invoices of bulbs were received through the local customhouse last week for growers in this vicinity.

Charles J. Nichols, of S. J. Reuter & Sons, Inc., at Westerly, is confined to his home by a severe attack of the grip.

The Rhode Island Horticultural Society held its monthly meeting in the lecture room of the public library October 17.

There is general complaint about the scarcity of help, many of the greenhouse men being unable to secure men at any price. This and the coal question are giving the growers considerable concern. W. H. M.

Eagle Grove, Ia.—John Buhner opened his greenhouse to the public October 1, and more than 800 people visited the place. Each visitor was presented with a flower as a souvenir. The principal flowers grown are carnations.

DREER'S SELECT FRENCH HYDRANGEAS

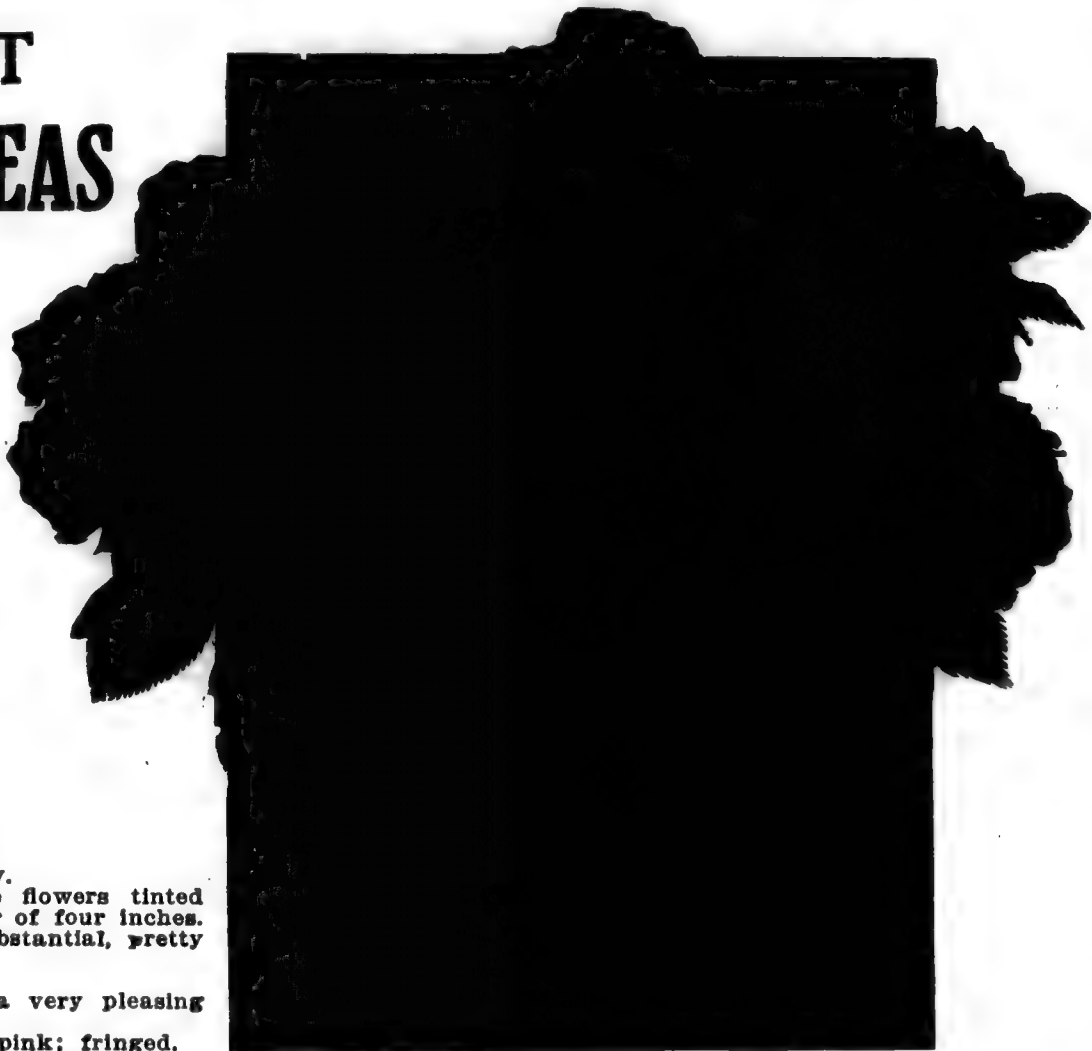

Realizing that the practical elimination of Azaleas and other imported plants for Easter forcing will create an extraordinary demand for Hydrangeas, we have made every possible effort to prepare a sufficient supply of these useful plants.

We have the largest and most up-to-date stock of French Hydrangeas in this country. Our plants this year promise to be the best we have ever offered. The demand exceeds that of all previous years. Orders will be reserved in strict rotation. If you want some of these for Easter forcing, you should place your order at once for either October or later delivery.

The varieties named below are offered, except where noted:

6-inch pots, at $35.00 per 100.

Attraction. A very pretty pink, early and free.
Avalanche. A deservedly popular white variety.
Beaute Vendemoise. Immense heads of white flowers tinted pink. The individual florets attain a diameter of four inches.
Directeur Vuillermot. Great trusses of good substantial, pretty pink, fringed, medium-sized florets.
Eclairer. Carmine-rose.
E. G. Hill. Trusses of immense size. Color a very pleasing pink. Early, vigorous.
Galathea. Large trusses. White, changing to pink; fringed.
General de Vibraye. One of the most popular and reliable pink sorts.
La France. A new fringed white of vigorous habit and producing large trusses.
La Lorraine. Large flowers, pale rose, turning to bright pink.
La Perle. An exceedingly attractive white variety with large fringed flowers.
L'Islette. Rosy-carmine. Large trusses of deeply fringed flowers. A very promising and reliable sort.
 6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.
Louis Mouillere. A fine deep rose-pink. Substantial and vigorous.
Mme. A. Rich. Late, free, sturdy, good compact pink.
Mme. Aug. Nonin. An unusually pretty clear pale-pink. Growth vigorous. Foliage strong and attractive.
 6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.
Mme. E. Mouillere. Large white.
Mme. Legou. Immense trusses of compactly placed florets, pure white.
Mme. B. Jacquet. An unusually attractive variety of unique coloring. The flowers when opening remind one of clusters of apple blossoms.
 6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.
Mont Rose. Immense panicles of pale-rose flowers. Early and practically everblooming.

Opale. Quite distinct in color. A lively pale rose with attractive pale-green, vigorous foliage.

6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.

Radiant. A reliable and popular carmine-rose.

Souv. de Lieut. Chauré. Immense heads of bright rose-carmine, flowers on bold upright stems.

Souv. de Mme. E. Chautard. Deservedly the most popular forcing variety. Early and free. Bright rose.

Souv. de Mme. Victor Raoult. Very large lively rose.

Vieux Chateau. Late, large, vigorous, fringed white, shading to pale-rose. A striking novelty.

Otaksa. The old reliable form still fancied by many. We have an immense stock of well-grown plants.

We have also limited stocks of the following in 7-inch pots, which we offer at 75 cents each; $8.00 per dozen.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

There was a good demand for second-grade roses last week. A grade that retails at $2 per dozen is much in demand. Shipments of this grade of stock sold at sight. Fancy Hoosier Beauties brought good prices, but there was a limited demand for fancy stock and shipments have been large enough to go around. Ophelias have been of good quality and cleaned up. American Beauties have been plentiful. Some extra fine flowers have come in. All of the outdoor stock was cut down by the heavy frost October 9. The week was cloudy and chilly. Asparagus plumosus, which is usually scarce in this market, has been plentiful. However, most of it was southern stock and is usually shaky. Fancy indoor-grown strings are not to be had. Shipments of indoor smilax and fancy ferns have been satisfying. Dahlias are not so good as one would expect. The existing congestion on railroads is frequently having a demoralizing effect on florists' patience. In the last two months not a few shipments coming from points only a few hours away have arrived from one to three days late.

Various Notes.

W. H. Grever, who has had charge of the W. J. Palmer store on Delaware avenue, will soon take over Mollie A. Smith's store at 77 Allen street.

L. W. Neubeck has made up ivy pyramids in tubs for spring selling. These will no doubt be good substitutes for boxwoods.

F. P. Adams, manager of the S. A. Anderson store on Elmwood avenue, reports an exceptionally good week. Sunday, October 7, he had some nice orders, including a casket cover of white and pink roses and Easter lilies; a cluster of 100 special Richmond roses and croton branches, and several other large designs. Mr. Anderson is showing florists the advantage of buying Liberty bonds. He has been appointed to solicit subscriptions among the trade.

Charles Felton has a new Ford delivery car with a green body trimmed with black. F. P. A.

Kent, O.—S. P. Pike opened his new store at 244 North Water street September 29. Hundreds of people visited the store and were delighted with the display of cut flowers and plants. Red roses were given as souvenirs.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Florists are agreed that the present scarcity of practically all kinds of stock is unprecedented in this market. The unusually early freeze of last week, which suddenly eliminated a splendid abundance of outdoor stock; the general and perplexing lateness of carnations; the dark, cold weather, which has served to retard the roses and chrysanthemums, are the primary causes of this trying situation. Substantial relief is slow in making its appearance. Perhaps the pompons were never before so welcome as at present, but a week or two will elapse before their arrival.

The larger mums are arriving in slightly increased quantities, as are the carnations, both items clearing especially early in the day. Of the former, the varieties Unaka, Golden Glow, Smith's Advance and October Frost are of good quality.

Wholesalers refuse to sell more than fifty carnations to a customer, thus making the inadequate supply serve as many as possible. Pink Delight, Winsor, Matchless, Alice, Enchantress Supreme, White Wonder and Belle Washburn are the leading varieties offered. They are now bringing 3 cents each.

The market is practically destitute of Easter lilies. Valley is in fair supply and about equal to the demand. Greens of all kinds are abundant.

Various Notes.

The trade's sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Martin Janoch, whose little daughter was instantly killed when struck by an automobile October 13. Mrs. Janoch, who was carrying the child at the time of the accident, was seriously, if not fatally, injured. Mr. Janoch is one of the growers at the Wilson Florist Co. range.

Miss Elvira Schmidt, of the Gasser Co. wholesale store, is spending a couple of weeks in the larger eastern cities.

D. R. White and family, of Sandusky, O., autoed to Cleveland October 12.

A meeting of the various committees in charge of the November flower show was held at the Hollenden October 15. There was a large attendance and practically every detail of the coming event was discussed. Much interest and zeal were shown by every club member and a determination to make the show an unprecedented success was much in evidence. The next and final meeting of the show committees is scheduled for October 23, at which every committeeman is requested to be present.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

ILLINOIS COAL FREIGHT UP.

Illinois members of the trade will have to pay an additional charge of 15 cents per ton for coal purchased during the year beginning October 15. The Illinois State Public Utilities Commission October 10 granted to the railroads permission to increase the rate on coal 15 cents per ton. This, of course, applies to intrastate transportation, the state commission having power only to regulate rates within the state. The increased rate is effective for one year.

PIPING VEGETABLE FRAMES.

I am writing to you for information about the heating of some frames. I have been using the frames for, the growing of vegetable plants in the spring, but I also wish to use them for winter lettuce. Will it be necessary to run hot water pipes in the soil in order to germinate the seed of the vegetable plants, or will pipes run along the top of the bed answer the same purpose? The beds are 6x30 feet. At the low side the soil is about fourteen inches from the glass. M. A. & S.—Okla.

So far as securing the required temperature in the frames is concerned, a 2-inch hot water pipe would maintain the temperature needed for lettuce, but the crop will come on in one-half the time if bottom heat is given. For a bed thirty feet long, we would suggest running a 2-inch flow pipe at the back of the frame near the top and two 1½-inch pipes about two feet from each edge. If possible, we would have the return pipes slightly above the top of the boiler.

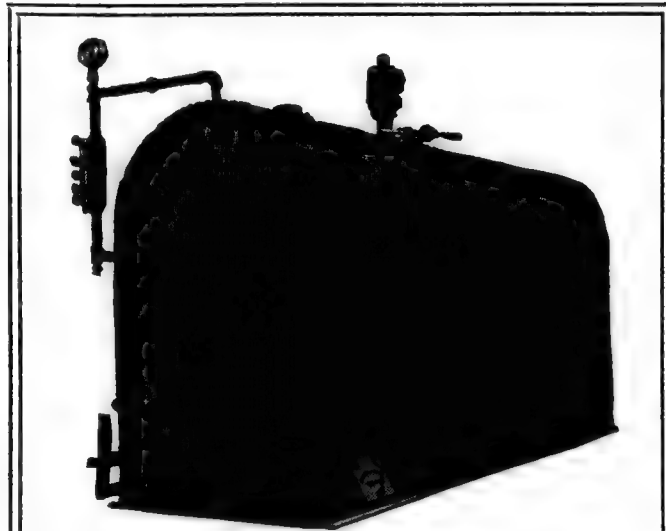

USE THREE OR FOUR FLOWS.

Please give me some directions about the heating of a greenhouse 24x125. A hot water system will be used. How many main flows will be needed to feed eight 2-inch returns? I suggested that two 2½-inch flows would be enough. Was I right? What temperature would that amount of piping maintain in the house, with the outside temperature 5 degrees below zero? For a lettuce house, would one 2½-inch pipe be enough to feed fifteen 1½-inch returns? What size of pipe should be connected with the main to feed two 2½-inch flows? F. H. W.—O.

To feed eight 2-inch return pipes in a house 24x125, we would use three 2½-inch mains or flow pipes. If there is no glass in the side walls, it will be easy to maintain a temperature of 50 degrees with that amount of piping, using the mains as overhead flows.

We would not use 1½-inch returns in houses more than seventy-five feet in length. For a house fifty to seventy-five feet long we would use two 2½-inch flows, if fifteen 1½-inch returns are have a larger proportion of direct fire surface than any other boiler, and are known as the quickest hot water heaters and the fastest steamers ever designed—easily installed—burn any kind of fuel.

You must keep up a uniform heat—

—why not do it in the most economical way?

TWO big points to bear in mind in the heating of your greenhouses: You must keep condensation out of your steam lines—and save fuel. Widely separated points, you may think. But they are not.

The condensation in your lines prevents circulation of the steam—thereby making uniform heating impossible, which is, of course, a waste of fuel. Now if you can remove this condensation and return it to your boilers you have served a double purpose, better heating and fuel saving.

The Morehead Back-to-the-Boiler System automatically removes all condensation from the lines and takes it back to the boilers. Hundreds of florists declare that it saves an astonishingly large percentage of their fuel. Requires no attention—always on the job. Let us tell you more about it.

needed. However, if the house is but twenty-four feet wide, only twelve 1½-inch returns, with two 2½-inch flows, will be needed. If the house is 100 to 125 feet long and twenty-four feet wide, we would put in three 2½-inch flows and eight 2-inch returns, for a lettuce temperature.

A 3-inch main will supply two 2½-inch flow pipes. If a temperature of 60 degrees is required in a house 24x125, we would suggest the use of four 2½-inch flow pipes and eleven 2-inch returns.

to use in the houses and we desire to run the feeder on the purlin supports over the benches. The boiler to be used is a No. 17 Kroeschell, with two 8-inch openings for feeds and two 8-inch openings for returns. As the sketch indicates, houses No. 1, 2 and 3 run east and west, while house No. 4 runs north and south across the west end of the others. At the east end of houses 1, 2 and 3 are the boiler room and service shed. The houses are fifteen feet high to the ridge.

J. J. & S.—Ill.

The sketch shows three houses 33x80, with house No. 4, 20x100, built across the end of the other three houses. The letter does not state the amount of glass, if any, in the side walls, or the uses to which the houses are to be put.

If the entire radiation is to be of 4-inch pipe, we would use two flows and six returns in each house 33x80, for 50 degrees, with an additional return in the outer houses if they have more than two feet of glass in the side walls. For 60 degrees we would use two flows and ten returns. In the house 20x100, we would suggest the use of two flows and four returns for 50 degrees and two flows and six returns for 60 degrees.

If smaller pipe can be secured, we would use three 2½-inch flows and ten 2-inch returns for 50 degrees in each house 33x80, with fifteen returns for 60 degrees. In the house 20x100, use three flows and six returns for 50 degrees and nine returns for 60 degrees.

is shy. Pompons are more numerous, but they take well. Roses are exceptionally short in supply. One large grower declared that he had not cut a Russell that week. This shortage is keenly felt, as the demand is unusually large. Carnations are coming on nicely and sell extremely well, considering the inferiority of the stems. W. J. Vesey, who left October 5 for Camp Taylor, Louisville, Ky., to train for the national army, Vice-president Edgar Wenninghoff was unanimously elected to fill the unexpired term.

The details of the annual fall flower show were discussed. It was decided to hold the show November 14 and 15, and to charge an admission of 25 cents, the proceeds to go to the Red Cross Society. Attractive posters announcing the show will be used and some newspaper publicity will be carried. A special meeting of the club will be called by the

A. J. Lanternier & Co. are cutting fine roses and mums. They are planning to plant one house to the new rose, Columbia.

The Flick Floral Co. featured handsome baskets of bronze and yellow pompons in its window last week. Funeral work has been excellent.

Edgar Wenninghoff had an attractive window last week of Major Bonnaffon mums and Shawyer roses. Business has been excellent.

Mrs. W. J. Vesey, Jr., is convalescing after a week's illness. W. J. & M. S. Vesey report business about as usual for this time of the year.

The Doswell Floral Co. reported a rushing business last week, with not enough stock to fill the demands. The men are cutting fine mums at the greenhouses, as well as Ophelia and Shawyer roses.

The Market.

Business last week was about up to last year's record, but there was no considerable rush at any of the stores. The weather was quite cool and October 12 there were a few snowflakes. Chrysanthemums and carnations are arriving later than usual this year, and now that outdoor flowers have disappeared, there is a shortage. There are a few gladioli still coming. Roses are the only flowers that are really plentiful. The stock is good. Good lilies have been short of the demand.

PLANT TUBS

EVERLASTING VIRGINIA WHITE CEDAR

EVERYBODY agrees that Plant Tubs made of everlasting Virginia White Cedar will best resist rot or decay. The "Keystone" brand of White Cedar Plant Tubs are made of this celebrated wood, and these goods are painted inside and out with best oil paints, a rich green.

They are bound with heavy steel hoops for the large size, and electric-welded wire hoops (galvanized) on the small size. The large sizes are trimmed with handsome drop handles and metal feet, and have perforated, removable bottoms.

These Cedar Tubs are made in all sizes, from 24 3/4 inches top diameter down to 6 inches, amply large for a Bay Tree and small enough for a Hyacinth. Every one guaranteed. Booklet in colors, with prices, furnished upon request.

DAVENPORT, R. ISLAND, MOLINE.

The Market.

Frosts heavy enough to kill all garden flowers made business good last week, but it also created a shortage of stock. The only item plentiful is Killarney and White Killarney roses, the quality of which is good. Chrysanthemums are not plentiful enough to meet requirements, and the call is largely for the small type, the prices evidently having something to do with this. Carnations are short in supply as well as in stem, and of poor quality. The prices are fair, when comparing the value with that of other offerings. A few lilies are to be had.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Tri-City Florists' Club was held at the residence of William Goos October 11. Mr. Anderson showed a number of fine carnations, some of his new seedling, and also chrysanthemums and roses. An invitation from J. S. Wilson, manager of the Iowa state flower show, was read, and the members of the club expect to attend the show in a body, if possible. Some exhibits probably will be sent.

C. O. E. Boehm, superintendent of the Davenport parks, invited the club to meet at his residence November 18, when the members may view the annual chrysanthemum show. Each member will bring blooms of some of the newer chrysanthemums, which will be discussed.

Various Notes.

John Staack has been cutting good carnations, but not enough to keep up with the demand. Stock is scarce, while business is good.

J. R. Tuckis reports business good. His store is being moved into larger quarters one door east of the present location.

Koopmann Bros. have seven benches of ferns ready for 5 and 6-inch pots. J. Koopmann has broken ground for a new residence to be completed this fall. W. G.

RALEIGH, N. C.

Florists of North Carolina are planning to organize a state association. A meeting was scheduled for October 17 at which it was expected that the organization would be completed. The unusually high price of coal and the possibility of a shortage even at the current prices are two of the reasons for the organization, the florists believing that much can be accomplished by a concerted movement.

J. L. O'Quinn & Co. have completed two pipe and steel frame houses, 42x167 feet, and are installing a large boiler that will take care of both the new and old sections of the range. This concern had the foresight to put in its supply of fuel, although a portion of it was piled in the field. Firing was begun September 13, a month earlier than usual, and has been continued since.

Business has been good since October 1. Retailers have felt the effects of the exodus of young men to the army camps, but under the conditions sales have been excellent. J. L. O'Q.

St. Joseph, Mo.—Irving Benning and Miss Nellie Benning have acquired the retail business conducted here by G. Frederickson for many years.

The Market.

Business is starting out in fine shape, the demand for potted plants of all varieties being large, while the cut stock sells well. Mums are bringing splendid prices, as are carnations, which are more plentiful than they were.

Various Notes.

Some of the florists are still on the anxious seat in regard to the coal situation.

The usual number of October weddings keeps the cut stock moving. One of the local firms furnished the decorations for an unusually attractive wedding recently, using bay trees, palms and hydrangea blooms at the church, while the reception hall of the Brooklawn Country Club was banked with ferns and roping of the hydrangea blooms with pink dahlias and gladioli.

While there have been no shipments of Dutch bulbs received, French bulbs have arrived and are being planted, as are Formosa lilies, which are of fine quality.

An interesting meeting of the Bridgeport Florists' Club was held at the store of Gus Herthal on Broad street, October 2, and was largely attended. The next meeting will be November 6.

George Pflomm says that the fall trade is all that can be desired at the Rosery.

Frank Schleichert has a fine lot of orchid-flowering sweet peas for later cutting, also a splendid assortment of poinsettias and mums.

James Horan & Son have their French bulbs and Formosa lilies planted. They have a fine display of potted plants for their holiday trade coming on.

Julius Reck reports business good. He has had as splendid a display of dahlias as was ever seen in the city.

James Beach is cutting some fine mums, Golden Glow, Unaka and October Frost being popular.

John Reck & Son recently furnished the decoration for a large wedding at Fairfield, Conn., consisting of white asters and palms. Carl Reck is on the job again, having returned from a hunting trip in the Maine woods.

Frank Foehrenbach, who recently purchased three houses from James Beach, has one completed and filled with a fine lot of carnations.

The Park Garden Floral Shop was among the first to cut some fine Silver Pink snapdragons.

Gus Herthal, Jr., having been called to the colors, is stationed at Fort Terry on Long Island sound.

G. C. Bouton & Sons, of Myrtle avenue, are cutting some splendid mums. They are having their share of October weddings. I. L. B.

NEWPORT, R. I.

The decorations of palms, dahlias and ferns at the Fulk-Allen wedding were by Schultz.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Bunyard and family have returned to New York for the winter. Eric Otto, of Mr. Bunyard's Bellevue avenue branch, has returned to New York for the winter.

Albert Smythe is reported to be convalescing comfortably and his full recovery is expected. W. H. M.

The Market.

Business is steadily increasing with the passing of outdoor flowers and the departure of warm weather. The market clears each day, stock being scarce. Chrysanthemums are coming into their own and the stores are looking their best. American Beauty roses are in short supply, while the demand is heavy. Long-stemmed Russell, Hoosier Beauty, Shawyer, Ophelia and Mott roses sell as fast as they can be unpacked. Medium roses and corsage buds are slightly more plentiful, but clear readily. Valley can be had, but there is not much demand for it. Orchids are scarce, with the demand good. Violets are coming in nicely. Carnations meet a good demand, while lilies are not abundant and their scarcity is felt.

MEMPHIS, TENN.

Smith's Advance and October Frost chrysanthemums were knocked out by Jack Frost, who descended on the night of October 8, causing havoc. C. H. Hune, of the Memphis Floral Co., reports a total loss of a fine crop of chrysanthemums, which were just coming in. Dahlias also suffered. He indorses A. D. Livoni, both the yellow and pink varieties. Jack Rose, red, and John Walker, white, are the best for store sales. Delice is too uncertain. Business right along has been good.

The Idlewild Greenhouses are making a fine showing of bulbs, French stock. Sales are good. The season's business thus far shows an increase of thirty per cent, says Manager Englehardt. Charles E. Heckle, the working member, was several years connected with Otto Schwill & Co., and, though only two doors removed, has that concern's good will for success.

Johnson's Greenhouses are sharing in the general flourishing conditions, making a bonny display in the new store, which, while located some distance from the center of trade, is by its attractive appearance a magnet that draws from afar.

Otto Schwill & Co. are lamenting the advent of the recent severe frost, as it will seriously affect fall sowing. It must come in spring, but a "bird in the hand, etc.," observed Manager Hyde.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is a mixture of over 50 thoroughbred varieties of show and fancy pansies. It contains every giant variety known with many shades of red, bronze and new fancy varieties in large numbers, and all the colors in the right proportion for the retail trade.

Hundreds of my customers say it is the best they ever had. I have received thousands of testimonials from amateurs and florists of which this is a sample: "This is the 7th year I have used your pansy plants and each year I have found them satisfactory in size of flowers, colors and other respects. J. W. McCabe, Washington, D. C." See other samples in my last week's ad.

I have made the growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for nearly 50 years, and believe I have the largest and best stock of plants for the wholesale trade in America. The seeds were sown in light, sandy soil, thinly broadcast, with a sower of my invention, more evenly than the most expert hand can do it; and the plants have room to grow strong and stocky, with extra good roots. Largest plants, 12 weeks old, 1000 $4.50, 500 $2.50; 250 $1.50, 10,000 $43.00; medium size, 10 weeks' old, 1000 $3.50, 500 $2.00, 250 $1.25, 10,000 $33.00; 8 weeks' old, 5-6 leaves, 1000 $3.00, 500 $1.75, 250 $1.25, 10,000 $28.00. Cash.

THE original Album of Designs was published in response to many requests from florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book that could be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it was not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it would be when ready for use. With the publication of this album it became possible to show the finished work in beautifully printed pictures. The first edition sold like hot cakes, a second and third edition went quickly. Now a fourth edition is off the press. Everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new pieces.

96 pages, nearly 300 designs and decorations, beautifully printed on heavy art paper, handsomely bound in a cover that will stand wear.

CUT FLOWERS ALL SUMMER.

Will you please tell me what to grow so as to have cut flowers from June until October? W. J. H.—Kan.

The bulk of the flowers would naturally be outdoors and would be either annuals or herbaceous perennials. Indoors you could have cold storage giganteum lilies right through the summer, and speciosums potted in fall could be kept in bloom in July, August and September, by holding some back in a cellar after potting and keeping the rest of them under a greenhouse bench.

These annuals would be valuable: Asters, sweet peas, candytuft, Gypsophila elegans, larkspurs, bachelor's buttons, sweet sultans, coreopsis, calendulas, cosmos, mignonette, nasturtiums, marigolds, scabiosas, nigellas, stocks and zinnias.

In hardy perennials some of the best for cutting are: Larkspurs, peonies, Gypsophila paniculata, Euphorbia corollata, phloxes, hemerocallis, liatris, physostegia, Pyrethrum roseum, sweet williams, spiræas, Stokesia cyanea, Achillea Ptarmica The Pearl, Scabiosa caucasica, Lysimachia clethroides, veronicas, German and Siberian irises, helianthus, asters, rudbeckias, Coreopsis grandiflora, Gaillardia grandiflora, Clematis recta, Shasta daisies or Chrysanthemum maximum, Campanula persicifolia, Anemone japonica, aquilegias and aconitums. All of these may not succeed with you, but all are good for cutting. In addition, dahlias, if they succeed, would be useful in early fall, and gladioli give a long succession of flowers if several batches are planted. Tuberoses also would succeed well with you.

If restricted to but a few varieties of the foregoing, I would grow: In annuals, asters, bachelor's buttons, sweet sultans, Gypsophila elegans, cosmos, sweet peas and nasturtiums; in hardy plants, Achillea The Pearl, Gypsophila paniculata, irises, larkspurs, peonies, Shasta daisies, aquilegias and helianthus. These would be likely to succeed well with you.

Hybrid tea roses give flowers all summer if you can give them water. Such shrubs as Hydrangea arborescens, H. paniculata grandiflora, Buddleia magnifica and the new forms of Philadelphia Lemoinei, to mention only a few shrubs, are useful for cutting. C. W.

Franklinton, Md.—William Stehling, of Baltimore, has purchased the greenhouses formerly owned by John Eberhard. His son, Vernon M. Stehling, is conducting the business.

A Money Making Proposition for Progressive Florists

Showing one style of Evergreen Window Box Planting

A very good substitute for Box trees would be small Evergreens, which our American nurserymen are already preparing for this purpose. Winter boxes filled with nice Evergreens, dwarf Evergreens, which, to my mind, are even prettier because more diversified than the Box trees, would prove very attractive.

ROBT. CRAIG.

HILL'S HARDY EVERGREENS FOR WINDOW BOXES AND TUBBING

With the growing scarcity of Boxwoods and other imported plant material, Hardy Evergreens easily rank first in the class of plants for outside Fall and Winter decoration. Push Evergreens now and the coming months. Talk Evergreen Boxes and Hardy Tubbed Evergreens to the people who have had summer decorations. Both are as easy to sell as Summer stocks and give complete satisfaction. Try out this line now and see for yourself. Realizing florists' needs, we have spared no efforts to prepare a sufficient supply for all requirements, but the demand exceeds that of all previous years. Orders should be placed now for immediate or late delivery.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANTING EVERGREEN WINDOW BOXES

- No. 1. Evergreens planted close together, all the same height, give a hedge-like appearance.
- No. 2. High at the ends and low in the center produces, with a little clipping, a graceful curved effect.
- No. 3. Tall pyramidal plants at the ends, with a lower compact line straight across, presents a good appearance.
- No. 4. Each tree planted so as to show its individuality is another plan.
- No. 5. A box filled with assorted gives a shaded color effect that is very attractive.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

FRENCH HYDRANGEAS IN LIEU OF AZALEAS

The favorite slogan, "Accept no substitutes," is not applicable this season to azaleas. The motto for the present case is: "Find the best substitutes available." Plants of many species and genera may help to supply the deficiency, but French hydrangeas are especially suitable for the purpose.

WHEN commercial products are requisitioned for war purposes, or are prevented by blockade or embargo from reaching the country in which they are needed, substitutes for them must be obtained without delay. Necessity so decrees—the same well-known necessity that has the credit for being the mother of invention. Florists, as a class, must endure a large share of these war-inflicted privations, but the members of the trade who are quickest to find remedies—in the form of satisfactory substitutes for the missing commodities—will suffer the least. This is a time of emergency, and an emergency demands both prompt and wise action. An emergency is the strong man's opportunity. Present conditions not only try men's souls, but also test their mental resourcefulness. When azaleas, for instance, are wanted and cannot be procured, the florist who makes the best appeal with other stock will realize the best profits.

A Good Substitute.

There will be no imports of azaleas from Belgium this year. Growers who carried over any unsold azalea plants, and cared for them well, will assuredly get excellent prices for them. The carried-over stock, however, will prove but a drop in the bucket of the people's needs. Seeing, then, that azaleas will be practically unavailable, what can we substitute for them? Probably many more primulas, cyclamens and begonias will be sold. But all these, though beautiful and satisfactory in their way, carry small flowers and are dwarf in habit. There is need of something with larger and showier flowers—something which is not difficult or expensive to grow, and which will flower early, keep well when in bloom and give satisfaction in the average home. What plants will fill these requirements better than the French hydrangeas?

French hydrangeas are propagated with the greatest ease. They grow rapidly, force splendidly, bloom much earlier than the older H. otaksa, produce splendid heads of flowers and can be had in a fine range of colors, thanks to the work of Nonin and other French hybridizers, who happily are continuing their good work in spite of the great world war.

Procuring the Plants.

To anyone who has not hitherto grown many of these hydrangeas and may now wish to increase their culture, we would say that this is a suitable time to purchase either pot-grown or field-grown stock. If you want the plants to bloom extra early, purchase pot-grown plants in 5-inch to 6-inch sizes, or even a size larger if your customers are willing to pay for larger and more fancy stock. Having secured these pot-grown hydrangeas, keep them in a coldframe for some time and gradually reduce their water supply, not causing a complete drying up but a gradual shrinkage.

If, however, you want the plants to bloom at Easter—which in 1918 will be March 31—and to continue in bloom until Memorial day, field-grown plants will answer just as well. Secure these now and pot them up promptly in a generous soil to which some old cow manure and bone meal have been added. After potting them, place them in a sunny spot where they can be easily protected from heavy rains and sharp frosts. For a time water them freely; later let the soil gradually run drier. What you want is nutty brown and well ripened wood, if you would be sure that the plants will force and bloom creditably.

It might be said in passing that well ripened French hydrangeas will withstand severe weather. The writer has plants in mind which have wintered outdoors in a border for two seasons without any protection and have been subjected to occasional temperatures of 10 to 15 degrees below zero. They do not winterkill and they bloom splendidly. H. otaksa, tried under similar conditions, was killed practically outright.

Their Culture.

When you buy French hydrangeas you can be reasonably sure that nearly all the shoots will flower. You are far less certain with H. otaksa. We have seen French varieties blooming at Christmas, but somewhat sparsely. These were plants which showed a few flower heads at potting time and were kept along in a good growing greenhouse. Ordinarily the wood on these plants will be well ripened and gentle forcing can start by Christmas. For a start, 50 degrees at night is ample. This can be increased 10 degrees as growth advances.

Among the requirements of these hydrangeas are an abundant water supply when they are well rooted around the pots, and liquid manure from the time the flower heads show until they start to turn color; afterward the plants should get clear water only. Plants can be flowered from early March until July. Three or four large heads on a 5-inch or 6-inch pot will make a good showing, but on an average we like to get at least double that number from each pot and we have seen specially good plants in 6-inch pots carrying as many as twelve to sixteen heads each. Much depends on how well the wood has been ripened before forcing, and whether the plants are amply watered and fed.

Hydrangea Avalanche, White.

In the culture of French hydrangeas it is important to remember that their flower heads are somewhat softer than those of H. otaksa and that as they show color they need a little shade to prevent burning. Another point is to stop the use of liquid manure as soon as the flower heads show their natural color.

Plants which happen to be unsold, if planted outdoors in good soil, will make splendid plants for 12-inch to 16-inch tubs the following fall, especially if grown where some water can be furnished in dry weather.

Their Propagation.

The propagation of these hydrangeas can commence as soon as shoots of suitable size are obtainable. Select for this purpose the smaller shoots which are unlikely to bloom, so as not to disfigure your plants. These may be put in the propagating bench from January until June and even as late as September. The early cuttings must be potted as soon as rooted and will probably need a shift before time to plant outdoors arrives, about May 20. The tops must be pinched out to make the plants branch. Cuttings rooted after May 1 are better if grown along in pots. It will pay to grow some of the earliest rooted cuttings along in pots. They will make smaller plants than those planted outdoors, but are better for early forcing. These hydrangeas root with the greatest ease.

A question sometimes asked is how late cuttings of these hydrangeas can be profitably taken. For several seasons we have taken a late batch early in September, placing these singly in small pots of sandy loam in a frame which is kept close and moist until the cuttings root. These cuttings are later shifted to 4-inch and 5-inch pots and are never allowed to rest. They produce big single heads of flowers the following spring.

A Boiled-down Selection.

There are now a large number of varieties of French hydrangeas and new ones are being added yearly. A first-class boiled-down selection for commercial growers is as follows: La Lorraine, pale rose, turning to light pink; Mme. E. Mouillere, large pure white, with rosy eye; Avalanche, fine pure white; Radiant, beautiful rich carmine rose; Mme. Auguste Nonin, lovely pale pink; Mme. E. Chautard, beautiful rose, a grand variety; General de Vibraye, splendid pink, reliable; Gloire de Boissy, deep brilliant pink; Mlle. Renee Gailard, fine white; Mlle. de Tremcault, pure white, and Eclairer, carmine rose.

ANSWERING THE CALL

PREPARE FOR "OVER THERE."

Florists Getting Ready.

In the military camps scattered over the country Uncle Sam is turning erstwhile civilians into trained fighting men. In these cantonments are many members of the florists' trade getting instruction in military tactics and the use of arms, and at the same time are being made physically fit for the hardships of the trenches. Before many weeks are past, thousands of other young men will be called and among them the trade will be represented. When they are summoned they will be proud to go, and those who remain at home will also be proud of them. The Review will be glad to publish the names of those who go, and news about those who have gone.

Randall's Honor Roll.

Many of the large concerns in the trade have given numbers of their young men to the service of the nation. The following is the honor roll of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago:

Fred W. Haeger, second lieutenant, commanding 18th Company, Depot Brigade, 36th Division, Camp Bowie, Tex.

Edward Soderberg, U. S. S. Wilmett (formerly the Eastland), South Chicago, Ill.

Carl Ness, Company A, Motor Section, Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill.

R. Lindquist, Company K, 343d Infantry, Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill.

Henry B. Dahlberg, Company C, Naval Reserves, Grant park, Chicago.

Louis Oswald, Company D, 343d Infantry, Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill.

Stanley Gieskowak, Company H, 64th Infantry, Fort Bliss, Tex.

Louis Podkriavsky, Company G, 344th Infantry, Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill.

Frank McCabe, one of the Randall travelers known to the trade from coast to coast, was called before the examining board October 20 and passed. He is not married.

Chicago Florist Serving.

"Somewhere in Camp Grant," Rockford, Ill., Carl Meinersmann is learning the art of soldiering, of trench digging, and becoming accustomed to the smell of powder. Mr. Meinersmann is the proprietor of the Albany Floral Shop, 4753 North Kedzie avenue, Chicago, and was called to the colors under the draft, leaving his business in charge of his brother, H. D. Meinersmann, until his return from "over there." Mr. Meinersmann, who is a landscape architect, 24 years of age, opened his florists' establishment only a little more than a year ago and has been successful in this undertaking. Last spring he was the moving spirit in a one-season store that did a big business on Madison street, Chicago, as the Albany Nurseries.

R. O. King an Aviator.

Roy O. King, president of the King Construction Co., North Tonawanda, N. Y., expects to help the allies win the war from the air. Mr. King is now a student aviator at one of the British aviation schools and soon will be ready to join the fliers at the western front. Mr. King was one of the pioneer builders of large greenhouses, the one he planned for David Feurstenberg, of the Florex Gardens, North Wales, Pa., a number of years ago, attracting much attention at the time because of its size, 72x700 feet.

Comfort Kits for Fighters.

The florists of Cincinnati are chipping in toward a fund with which to purchase comfort kits for those of their fellow-workers who have been called into Uncle Sam's service. C. J. Jones started the ball rolling, and W. R. Murphy, of the William Murphy Co., is fund banker.

Private Piggott.

The government has called another florist to the colors. Percy Warren Piggott, of Cleveland, is one of the owners of Piggott Son Co. His father will miss him, as it will be hard to fill his place. He went to Camp Sherman, Chillicothe, O., October 20.

On the Briny Deep.

Lloyd W. Polsley, son of J. W. Polsley, grower at Wahoo, Neb., is serving his country in the medical department of the navy. J. W. says his son has always hankered for a salt-water experience.

Fighting Men of Boston Club.

Two more members of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston have gone to war, David H. Guild, of the Ames Implement & Seed Co., of Boston, and Donald J. Crighton, of Readville, Mass. Both men are in the medical corps of the army and expect soon to be sent to France.

Soldier Stoehl Takes a Wife.

"The girl I left behind me" is not exactly the case with Fred Stoehl, of Indianapolis, who recently became a rooky at Camp Zachary Taylor, near Louisville, Ky. After a good initiation in the business of drilling at Camp Taylor, Mr. Stoehl staged a military wedding, with himself and an Indianapolis miss as principals.

DES MOINES SHOW PLANS

With the approach of the opening day of the show, November 8, the meetings of the show committees of the Iowa Society of Florists are becoming more frequent. The splendid spirit evidenced at these meetings, and the zeal with which each member is entering into his work, assure a splendid success. To all florists, and particularly those of the middle west, the show management extends a cordial invitation to attend. The reception committee promises a good welcome to visitors and assures them that they will enjoy their stay in Des Moines. Florists are reminded that Hotel Chamberlain will be the headquarters and that reservations should be made to avoid disappointments.

At a meeting of the premium committee, October 22, at Ames, the schedule was checked over. The program, or handbook, is being printed. It will be an attractive and useful book, containing, in addition to the classes and prizes, tables and articles of interest. It is the intention of the management to place this book in the hands of show visitors without charge. Reservations for advertising space should be made at once. J. S. Wilson is chairman of the executive committee and manager of the show.

THE BANK THAT FAILED.

When Joseph Bancroft, of Joseph Bancroft & Son, Cedar Falls, Ia., recently sought a safe place to hide his money during the night, he selected the oven of the gas stove in his home. Mrs. Bancroft arose before her husband, mixed up a batch of muffins and put them in the oven. Mr. Bancroft arrived in the kitchen some time later and opened the oven door. The muffins were brown, but the money, $85, had turned into ashes and smoke. Which leads the florist who relayed the story to observe that "in view of the high cost of coal we were wondering how any florist could keep that amount of money long enough to get it to a gas stove."

BUSINESS EMBARRASMENTS.

Peoria, Ill.—The D. U. Augspurger & Sons Co., doing a wholesale and retail florists' business, filed a petition in bankruptcy October 20. The assets are estimated at $10,000, with liabilities of $10,500. The creditors will hold a meeting soon to elect a trustee.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

TATE'S TIPS.

Employees and Employers.

There is no phase of the retail florists' business that is more important than the selection of those who have charge of the sales. In selecting saleswomen or salesmen, too much care cannot be exercised, for on the salespeople in most cases will depend the success or failure of the business. Your store may be all that is desired in attractiveness, and your stock may be of the best; yet, while these are most important factors, you must remember that there are plenty of stores in your locality that also have these factors. From my experience, the most important thing to be reckoned with in order to attain success as a retail florist is the personality of those coming in contact with the customers.

As I write this, I recall the skill of a saleswoman of one of the oldest and best establishments of the city in which it was located. She possessed an aptitude for studying her customers, and she got to know just what their tastes were. She acquired all the qualities of an efficient saleswoman; she was courteous, kind and painstaking, and always made it a point to see that each customer left the store entirely pleased. She had a good eye for color, with good ideas of the artistic, and a capacity for unremitting toil. Combined with these qualities was a disposition that was bright and cheerful, one that made and held friends.

There Are Many Jobs Open.

The customers of this establishment got to feel that when they placed an order with this woman, all worry about that particular order ceased. It made no difference who really executed the order, the customers felt that under her careful supervision they would get what they had ordered.

The day came, however, when this young woman conceived the idea of bettering her condition, an idea that usually comes to every individual in the same circumstances. Therefore, especially in these times when labor in all lines is in such demand, it behooves the employer to see that his help is satisfied. If you have someone in your employ who is taking an interest in your business, who has your business at heart, who is trying to work in new ideas for the advancement and success of the business, encourage him in this valuable work and reward him accordingly for his untiring interest and labor. Do not put it off until it is too late, and perhaps let someone else derive the benefit of this efficient saleswoman or salesman, who, nine times out of ten, got his or her experience at your expense. Help the worker and, in turn, you will derive the benefit. Let him know and feel that you appreciate his efforts, for there may be someone watching your man, someone who would be glad to make him a better offer. Anyone who has the ability and forethought to take an interest in your business, can be depended on to look out for his own personal interest at every turn.

Ambition Works in Two Ways.

In these strenuous times workers who are willing to go along under old conditions are not worth any more than you are paying them. In other words, they do not know the value of the services they are giving you, and are not to be depended on to build up your business. If they are lacking in ambition for themselves, it is only natural that they would be more so in another's interest.

The young woman referred to opened an establishment of her own, and all the customers of her former employer seemed to follow her, for in a comparatively short time the house with which she had been associated was obliged to close its doors, while her business prospered from the start. The proprietor of this store should have appreciated the value of this young woman's service to his business, and should have made it so interesting for her that she would not have thought of leaving.

I could, if space permitted, tell of several cases of similar nature. The good business man is the one who can select and hold a good staff of subordinates. His position is an executive one, to be quick to see the worth of an employee and to develop and encourage the employee to greater things. It is more to his own interest than to that of the employee. Some will say that this applies only to a large business, but it applies to the small place just as much, and maybe more.

Rewards for Those Who Will.

Now, let us look for a moment at the employee. There was a time not so long ago when the majority of those engaged in the florists' business really were born in the business and therefore most familiar with it. At the age of 14, for instance, I gave up school and went to work in my father's greenhouses, so that there is no part of the business that I have not had some experience in. In those days the business was in its infancy and the individual business, in most cases, was a close corporation, the members of which were the florist and his immediate family. But this is no longer the case—the florists' business has forged ahead until it is one of the recognized industries of the day. Young men and women from other lines are entering it, and for those who possess the qualifications I know of no better field in which they can place their abilities. The retail florists' business offers, to anyone who is willing to work, a good opportunity to succeed.

The young men and women in the florists' business find that in the majority of cases their work is the indirect result of births, deaths, marriages and the anniversaries of happy or sad occurrences. The idea is to put yourself in the position of the customer and think of the sentiment attached to the occasion, whatever it may be. Enter into sympathy with that customer, and you are binding him to you with hooks of steel. It will not be long before it will become a custom with him to ask for you. It is the little things like these that go to make the successful business.

I recall an order at the beginning of my store career which turned out to be one of the best advertisements we ever had, and at the time when we needed it most. The daughter of a family, members of which had been good customers, was to be married, and as this family was in reduced circumstances the young lady and I arranged a scheme of decorations, with economy in view. I entered into it with a youthful enthusiasm, and she told me that I was taking as much interest in her wedding as she was herself. Everything about this wedding decoration was unique and was much talked about by just the people we wanted to reach. Space will not permit a description in detail, but I will mention one feature. That was about thirty years ago, and the first shower bouquet I ever saw was made by my sister and myself for this wedding, and we copied it from a picture in one of the trade journals. Tate.

THE FIRST CHAUFFEUSE?

In The Review for October 18 there was a description of an innovation in the line of florists' delivery service, and a half-tone of Miss Beatrice Keeler, recently engaged by A. T. Pollard, of Canton, O., to take the place of a truck driver gone to war. Now comes news of another Ohio girl who has undertaken the unaccustomed duties of driving a florist's delivery truck, as chauffeur for the Tong & Weeks Floral Co., of Ashtabula, O. As the lady's term of employment had been of six weeks' duration when The Review appeared, the Ashtabula concern thinks it is in position to claim priority.

These correspondents also report satisfactory results and recommend the employment of women in delivery service, wherever expedient. Doubtless in this suggestion will be found satisfactory solution of the perplexities of many florists who have had difficulty in filling the post of chauffeur as a result of enlistment of their young men.

The accompanying illustration shows the Tong & Weeks delivery truck and its efficient young driver. Her trim, becoming costume is admirably adapted to the activities of the strenuous position she has assumed, and the easy poise of her youthful figure and her alert and businesslike air contain suggestions of the qualities that have made her six weeks' service a precedent worthy to be followed by others of her sex who desire to "do their bit." Girls of her type and of that of Miss Keeler are the ones to whom Uncle Sam is looking to fill the posts made vacant by the draft, and confidence may safely be reposed in them.

It may not be desirable for florists to employ women as drivers in cities where traffic is heavy, but The Review endorses the recommendation of the employers of these patriotic young women, that other florists go and do likewise. The Review will be interested to learn of other instances of the employment of women in this work, and in those departments of floristry in which they may find congenial and suitable occupation, but space forbids the publication of pictures hereafter in this connection.

PITTSBURGH'S NEW STORE.

Pittsburgh's newest flower store, and one of its most beautiful and elaborate retail establishments, was opened recently at 6022 Penn avenue by M. Kronis. It is to be known as the Alpha Flower Store. The store is 21x101 feet and opens into two of the busiest business streets in the East End district of the city. As will be seen by the accompanying illustration, the fixtures and decorations are exceptionally attractive, the feature of which, of course, is the electric fountain. The color scheme is light blue, which sets off the large white icebox, a Bernard Gloekler Co. installation, and the marble-topped counters. Around the walls are glass shelves for displaying vases and baskets. The display window, which extends across nearly the whole front of the store, is open.

By way of advertising the new store, Mr. Kronis has been having pictures of the interior and front thrown on the screens at a number of moving picture theaters. Besides the Alpha, Mr. Kronis conducts the flower stand at the Pennsylvania railroad station.

THE CLEVELAND PROGRAM.

A Busy Three Days.

There will be two important meetings of national organizations in Cleveland November 8 and 9.

The annual meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America will be held at 8 p. m. Thursday, November 8, in the club room of Grays Armory, the same building in which the flower show is to be held.

The fall meeting of the American Rose Society will be held November 9, late in the afternoon. The hour will be set by the secretary of the society and announced next week.

Entertainment.

The entertainment committee, in charge of Charles Graham, E. A. Bause and Frank Ritzenthaler, chairman, requests that all out-of-town florists register at Grays Armory on their arrival in Cleveland.

There will be no set program on the first day except the bowling match between Detroit and Cleveland. This will be the first leg of the inter-city match, the prize for which will be a valuable trophy cup. There will be individual prizes for the winning team, also for the highest individual score, and a number of others.

The annual banquet will be held in the Hollenden November 9 at 7:30 p. m.

sharp. Mr. Ritzenthaler announces that a splendid program is being prepared, which will include a strong speaker and some of the best musical talent in Cleveland.

Florists desiring to inspect greenhouses, either private estates or commercial establishments, will be provided with autos for this purpose, these being in charge of S. N. Pentecost, chairman of the reception and information committee.

A special committee of the Cleveland Women Florists' Club is being appointed to take care of the large number of out-of-town women florists and wives of florists who are expecting to attend the Cleveland show.

All Rotary florists are invited, by Rotarian H. P. Jones, of the Jones-Russell Co., and Rotarian H. P. Merrick, manager of the Cleveland office of Lord & Burnham Co., to attend the weekly Rotary lunch November 8. Messrs. Jones and Merrick will appreciate hearing from all Rotary florists of their intentions of being in Cleveland on the date mentioned.

Shipping Exhibits.

Exhibitors are asked to address their exhibits care Cleveland Flower Show, Grays Armory, Cleveland. There will be a special show representative at each of the depots, with a special truck at hand for the purpose of handling all the incoming express as soon as it is unloaded from the cars, assuring the exhibitor of no delay after the arrival of exhibits in Cleveland.

The exhibitors are requested to select an express train that will arrive in Cleveland before 8 a. m. on the morning of November 8 for chrysanthemums and November 9 for roses and carnations. All exhibits are to be completely staged by 11 a. m., at which hour the judges will start their work.

A large party of florists has promised to come from Toronto, through the efforts of J. H. Dunlop, who is organizing the party.

TATE'S TIPS.

Employees and Employers.

There is no phase of the retail florists' business that is more important than the selection of those who have charge of the sales. In selecting saleswomen or salesmen, too much care cannot be exercised, for on the salespeople in most cases will depend the success or failure of the business. Your store may be all that is desired in attractiveness, and your stock may be of the best; yet, while these are most important factors, you must remember that there are plenty of stores in your locality that also have these factors. From my experience, the most important thing to be reckoned with in order to attain success as a retail florist is the personality of those coming in contact with the customers.

As I write this, I recall the skill of a saleswoman of one of the oldest and best establishments of the city in which it was located. She possessed an aptitude for studying her customers, and she got to know just what their tastes were. She acquired all the qualities of an efficient saleswoman; she was courteous, kind and painstaking, and always made it a point to see that each customer left the store entirely pleased. She had a good eye for color, with good ideas of the artistic, and a capacity for unremitting toil. Combined with these qualities was a disposition that was bright and cheerful, one that made and held friends.

There Are Many Jobs Open.

The customers of this establishment got to feel that when they placed an order with this woman, all worry about that particular order ceased. It made no difference who really executed the order, the customers felt that under her careful supervision they would get what they had ordered.

The day came, however, when this young woman conceived the idea of bettering her condition, an idea that usually comes to every individual in the same circumstances. Therefore, especially in these times when labor in all lines is in such demand, it behooves the employer to see that his help is satisfied. If you have someone in your employ who is taking an interest in your business, who has your business at heart, who is trying to work in new ideas for the advancement and success of the business, encourage him in this valuable work and reward him accordingly for his untiring interest and labor. Do not put it off until it is too late, and perhaps let someone else derive the benefit of this efficient saleswoman or salesman, who, nine times out of ten, got his or her experience at your expense. Help the worker and, in turn, you will derive the benefit. Let him know and feel that you appreciate his efforts, for there may be someone watching your man, someone who would be glad to make him a better offer. Anyone who has the ability and forethought to take an interest in your business, can be depended on to look out for his own personal interest at every turn.

Ambition Works in Two Ways.

In these strenuous times workers who are willing to go along under old conditions are not worth any more than you are paying them. In other words, they do not know the value of the services they are giving you, and are not to be depended on to build up your business. KING'S COMING BACK.

Pretty nearly everyone in the trade knows what happened to A. D. King, of Mattoon, Ill. May 26 his place of about 50,000 feet of glass was struck by the big cyclone which swept across the state and what was left of it really was worse than if there had been nothing; if the ground had been clear, instead of encumbered with wreckage, it would have been easier to start rebuilding. Mr. King was put in the hospital by the blow and it was some time before he was in condition to undertake rebuilding. Many members of the trade came to his assistance with donations of stock and in the course of time he got his courage back, with the result that he started in to reestablish himself; it seemed a pity to let a storm wipe out so good a business.

Today Mr. King is in position to take care of his trade in the good old way, for seven new houses are being completed for him by the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago. Some of these already are planted. It was the same as starting a new establishment and it has been done on modern lines. The houses are 28x125 and the contract included, besides the material and erection, the installation of a central heating plant to replace the antiquated system of several separate boiler plants that had been added from time to time as the original establishment had been added to.

The accompanying illustration will be of interest to many florists who have sympathized with Mr. King and who feel a personal acquaintance with him through their effort to help him; it shows that indomitable gentleman in his working uniform; he is much too old for khaki.

1, and the blooms have been good. This year, however, I put them in July 12, and at present they are all in bud and extremely short-stemmed. Should I blame the short stems on the late planting, or are there other reasons for this condition?
S. L. L.—Ia.

Most likely the reason why Chrysolora is short-stemmed is because the plants were set out too late. Naturally, Chrysolora should be throwing buds at this time, but the chrysanthemum, in common with any other plant, must have a season of growth, and if plants are set out some six weeks later than usual you cannot expect the same results in growth or length of stem.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

Annual Meeting at Cleveland.

The annual meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America will be held at Grays Armory, Cleveland, November 8, at 8 p. m., the first day of the Cleveland show.

Work of Chicago Committee.

The Chicago examining committee of the C. S. A. has submitted a report on the following new variety:

Chas. W. Johnson, Sec'y.

MUMS NEED FERTILIZER.

I am sending you some chrysanthemum plants that seem to be in a weakened condition, and I would like to know if this trouble is due to something faulty in my culture of the plants.

S. L. L.—Ia.

The plants submitted apparently were in a healthy condition and did not show any signs of trouble, except possibly lack of nutrition. I suggest that you use one-quarter decomposed cow manure with your soil at planting time; then I do not think you will have any further trouble. The thing to do at this time, since the stock is

CLEAR ACROSS THE CONTINENT.

A florist from the Pacific coast dropped in at a widely known Boston store the other day and, imagine his surprise, found them busy opening a shipment of chrysanthemums from California! Clear across the continent!

His interest being aroused, the traveler began to make inquiries. He found that the wholesalers as a class do not care to handle the California stock, because in a sense it competes with that of home growers whose all-the-year-around shipments must be considered, but he found that retailers in many cities where there are wholesale houses, Boston, Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, are obtaining mums direct from the growers or shippers on the coast. He was told that it is not a question of cost, but one of supply and of quality. Mums are ready on the coast before they are in any other large producing district; in early October they may be had in quantity and of excellent quality. The price is low, but the expressage is high enough to make the saving no special object. Waste formerly was an important item, but for those on the routes of the through refrigerator cars two of the express companies now run the matter of waste has been eliminated; so far this season the flowers have come through in good shape, opening up a little soft but hardening up nicely if a piece of stem is broken off and the flowers left over night in a cool basement.

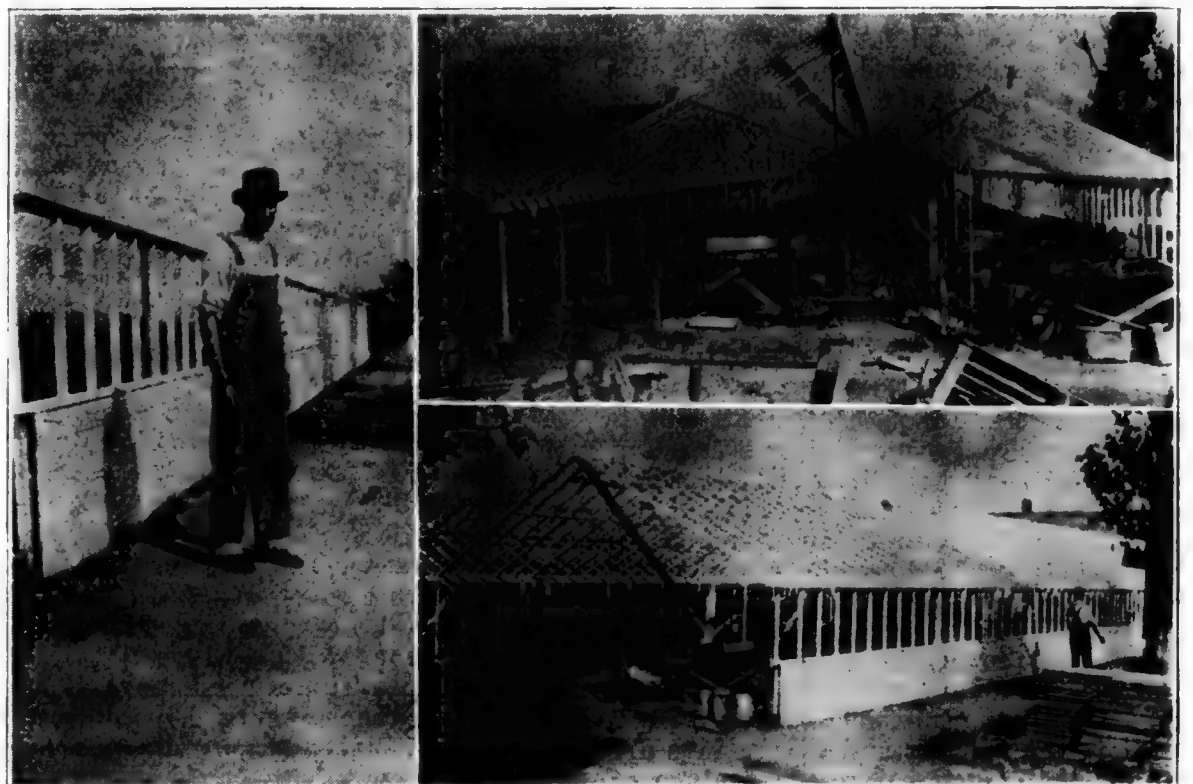

To the investigator the thought occurred and he asked in several cities, "What is the effect on the local mums?" The reply was that the California stock has been available each year before the local flowers were ready, with the result that the local cut came on a market in which the demand was reduced by the fact that some of the principal buyers had regular supplies from outside. The effect was not encouraging to the growers, who more and more each year discarded the early varieties and planted only those that come in after the height of the season on the coast has passed. This is virtually an abandonment of the market in the early part of the season, in certain cities, to the Pacific coast shippers.

Visiting a number of small cities and towns on his route, the traveler from the coast found that California mums had not yet penetrated, and probably never will. In such places dependence is put on flowers cut in the seller's own greenhouses, with an occasional special order filled by ordering from Chicago or some other wholesale market. It seemed to the traveler that Chicago serves the regular and transient needs of a large part of the country, with Philadelphia caring for a considerable section and Boston supplying New England. Wholesale in other cities he found to be largely local.

MUMS PLANTED TOO LATE.

In previous years I have planted or benched Chrysolora mums about June

THE INDIANA ASSOCIATION.

Meeting at Evansville.

The Evansville Florists' Club entertained the State Florists' Association of Indiana at Evansville October 16, it being the association's monthly meeting. The guests arrived early in the morning and found breakfast prepared for them. Then came dinner at noon, and in the evening there was a burgo supper with barbecked chicken, and a theater party afterward. Between meals the members of the association found time to make an automobile trip over the city, hold the business session and inspect a number of greenhouses. Pleasant weather added to the enjoyment of the day.

Liederkrantz hall was the headquarters for the visitors. The business session was called to order by President Bertermann, of Indianapolis. Mayor Bosse made a short address welcoming the association to Evansville. At the invitation of the president, J. D. Carmody, the first president of the association, made an address in his usual happy manner. Mr. Carmody also welcomed the members and told them of the early struggles of the association. He is past 89 years of age, but shows none of the infirmities of his age. W. W. Coles followed Mr. Carmody and voiced the appreciation of the association for the work he had done during the organization. A. F. J. Baur also paid tribute to the older members of the organization. President Bertermann called on the members to arise in turn and give their names and place of business, and to make any remarks they wished. At this time Fred Heintz walked in bearing an American flag, which aroused much enthusiasm.

After the minutes were read and approved, the following were proposed for membership: Oscar Carlsteadt, Indianapolis; James A. Blackburn, Mt. Vernon; Mr. Servis, Indianapolis; A. B. Cunningham, Columbus; Karl Zeidler, Evansville; P. C. Schultz, Vincennes, and C. F. Beard, Evansville.

President Bertermann praised the work of the committee which is organizing the wind storm and hail insurance association. A. F. J. Baur made a report for the committee in which he stated that the work was progressing rapidly and that a great deal of insurance had been written. Nixon Gano, of Martinsville, is visiting florists in the interests of the association. Theodore Kuebler pledged himself to write twenty policies among the florists in and near Evansville.

A letter from the Indiana Floral Festival Association, which recently disbanded, was read. The association turned over the balance in its treasury to the state association. Mr. Baur read an invitation from the Cleveland flower show committee asking the association to attend the coming chrysanthemum show at Cleveland. Plans are being made for a delegation from Indiana to leave Indianapolis. Reservations can be made by addressing the secretary. An appeal from the New York Horticultural Society for assistance in preserving the trees of France was also read, but the association decided to take no action at this time. Action on a letter from John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., asking coöperation in the work of raising funds for national publicity, was also deferred until the next meeting.

It was unanimously decided to remit the dues of the members who have enlisted in the United States army. Final resolutions were read by E. E. Temperley, and the committee for the next meeting was appointed. The members are Harry White, William Roepke and Glen Moore. The meeting will be held at Richmond, Monday, November 5.

President Bertermann suggested that the members make it their policy to get higher prices for stock. A committee to work out plans for following the suggestion was appointed, with the following members: W. W. Coles, Charles Pahud and William Roepke. The meeting ended with the singing of "America" and a rising vote of thanks to the Evansville Florists' Club for its hospitality.

Notes of the Gathering.

An automobile trip was made, which ended at the greenhouses of Karl Zeidler, who served the burgo supper and barbecue.

The Evansville florists proved real hosts, allowing their guests to pay for nothing. At the suggestion of President Bertermann, a purse of $50 was collected and presented to the Evansville Florists' Club for the Evansville chapter of the Red Cross.

The Expanded Wood Co. had an exhibit of its products.

Robert Catron, foreman for Joseph Hill, Richmond, Ind., was present with a large vase of Columbia, the new Hill rose.

C. A. Morgan, of the Morgan Floral Co., Henderson, Ky., showed some excellent carnations.

Fred Heintz, of Terre Haute, exhibited some fine ferns.

The Schnute-Holtmann Co. presented those at the meeting with souvenirs in the shape of paper weights made from sashbars.

Probably the man who received the most encomiums was Karl Zeidler, who combines the art of cooking with the art of growing flowers. Mr. Zeidler prepared the breakfast and dinner at the hall and the supper at his establishment.

Among the establishments visited were those of Theodore Kuebler and Julius Niednagel & Sons, Emil Niednagel doing the honors at the latter place.

Meadville, Pa.—The first snow of the season, which arrived October 12, has made the burning question the principal topic of the day. Those who are without coal are sleuthing hard for the precious article. G. W. Haas & Son say that they are fortunate in getting their greenhouse supply, but that it set them back $5.15 per ton delivered, which is $2.65 per ton more than two years ago. Business, says Mr. Haas, has greatly exceeded that of any other year, however.

KING'S COMING BACK.

Pretty nearly everyone in the trade knows what happened to A. D. King, of Mattoon, Ill. May 26 his place of about 50,000 feet of glass was struck by the big cyclone which swept across the state and what was left of it really was worse than if there had been nothing; if the ground had been clear, instead of encumbered with wreckage, it would have been easier to start rebuilding. Mr. King was put in the hospital by the blow and it was some time before he was in condition to undertake rebuilding. Many members of the trade came to his assistance with donations of stock and in the course of time he got his courage back, with the result that he started in to reestablish himself; it seemed a pity to let a storm wipe out so good a business.

Today Mr. King is in position to take care of his trade in the good old way, for seven new houses are being completed for him by the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago. Some of these already are planted. It was the same as starting a new establishment and it has been done on modern lines. The houses are 28x125 and the contract included, besides the material and erection, the installation of a central heating plant to replace the antiquated system of several separate boiler plants that had been added from time to time as the original establishment had been added to.

The accompanying illustration will be of interest to many florists who have sympathized with Mr. King and who feel a personal acquaintance with him through their effort to help him; it shows that indomitable gentleman in his working uniform; he is much too old for khaki.

1, and the blooms have been good. This year, however, I put them in July 12, and at present they are all in bud and extremely short-stemmed. Should I blame the short stems on the late planting, or are there other reasons for this condition?
S. L. L.—Ia.

Most likely the reason why Chrysolora is short-stemmed is because the plants were set out too late. Naturally, Chrysolora should be throwing buds at this time, but the chrysanthemum, in common with any other plant, must have a season of growth, and if plants are set out some six weeks later than usual you cannot expect the same results in growth or length of stem.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.Annual Meeting at Cleveland.

The annual meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America will be held at Grays Armory, Cleveland, November 8, at 8 p. m., the first day of the Cleveland show.

Work of Chicago Committee.

The Chicago examining committee of the C. S. A. has submitted a report on the following new variety:

Chas. W. Johnson, Sec'y.

MUMS NEED FERTILIZER.

I am sending you some chrysanthemum plants that seem to be in a weakened condition, and I would like to know if this trouble is due to something faulty in my culture of the plants.

S. L. L.—Ia.

The plants submitted apparently were in a healthy condition and did not show any signs of trouble, except possibly lack of nutrition. I suggest that you use one-quarter decomposed cow manure with your soil at planting time; then I do not think you will have any further trouble. The thing to do at this time, since the stock is

CLEAR ACROSS THE CONTINENT.

A florist from the Pacific coast dropped in at a widely known Boston store the other day and, imagine his surprise, found them busy opening a shipment of chrysanthemums from California! Clear across the continent!

His interest being aroused, the traveler began to make inquiries. He found that the wholesalers as a class do not care to handle the California stock, because in a sense it competes with that of home growers whose all-the-year-around shipments must be considered, but he found that retailers in many cities where there are wholesale houses, Boston, Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, are obtaining mums direct from the growers or shippers on the coast. He was told that it is not a question of cost, but one of supply and of quality. Mums are ready on the coast before they are in any other large producing district; in early October they may be had in quantity and of excellent quality. The price is low, but the expressage is high enough to make the saving no special object. Waste formerly was an important item, but for those on the routes of the through refrigerator cars two of the express companies now run the matter of waste has been eliminated; so far this season the flowers have come through in good shape, opening up a little soft but hardening up nicely if a piece of stem is broken off and the flowers left over night in a cool basement.

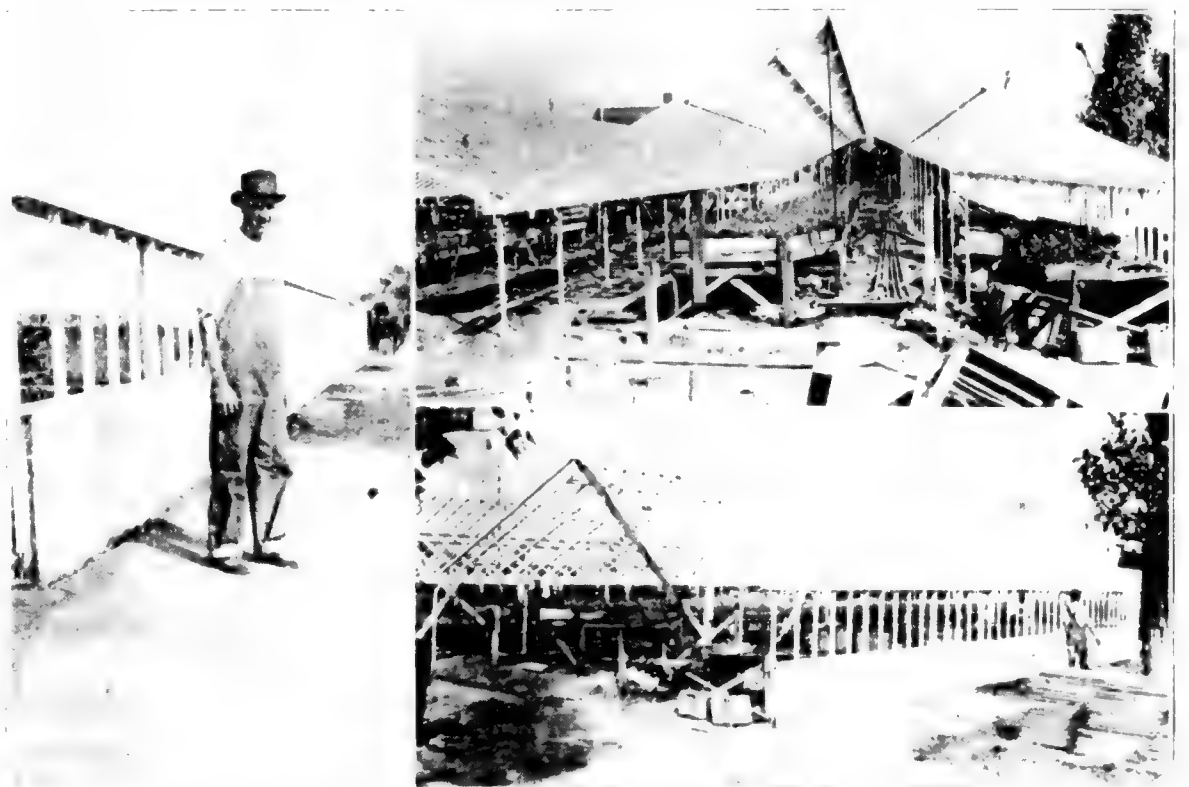

To the investigator the thought occurred and he asked in several cities, "What is the effect on the local mums?" The reply was that the California stock has been available each year before the local flowers were ready, with the result that the local cut came on a market in which the demand was reduced by the fact that some of the principal buyers had regular supplies from outside. The effect was not encouraging to the growers, who more and more each year discarded the early varieties and planted only those that come on after the height of the season on the coast has passed. This is virtually an abandonment of the market in the early part of the season, in certain cities, to the Pacific coast shippers.

Visiting a number of small cities and towns on his route, the traveler from the coast found that California mums had not yet penetrated, and probably never will. In such places dependence is put on flowers cut in the seller's own greenhouses, with an occasional special order filled by ordering from Chicago or some other wholesale market. It seemed to the traveler that Chicago serves the regular and transient needs of a large part of the country, with Philadelphia caring for a considerable section and Boston supplying New England. Wholesale in other cities he found to be largely local.

MUMS PLANTED TOO LATE.

In previous years I have planted or benched Chrysolora mums about June

THE INDIANA ASSOCIATION.

Meeting at Evansville.

The Evansville Florists' Club entertained the State Florists' Association of Indiana at Evansville October 16, it being the association's monthly meeting. The guests arrived early in the morning and found breakfast prepared for them. Then came dinner at noon, and in the evening there was a burgo supper with barbecked chicken, and a theater party afterward. Between meals the members of the association found time to make an automobile trip over the city, hold the business session and inspect a number of greenhouses. Pleasant weather added to the enjoyment of the day.

Liederkrantz hall was the headquarters for the visitors. The business session was called to order by President Bertermann, of Indianapolis. Mayor Bosse made a short address welcoming the association to Evansville. At the invitation of the president, J. D. Carmody, the first president of the association, made an address in his usual happy manner. Mr. Carmody also welcomed the members and told them of the early struggles of the association. He is past 89 years of age, but shows none of the infirmities of his age. W. W. Coles followed Mr. Carmody and voiced the appreciation of the association for the work he had done during the organization. A. F. J. Baur also paid tribute to the older members of the organization. President Bertermann called on the members to arise in turn and give their names and place of business, and to make any remarks they wished. At this time Fred Heintz walked in bearing an American flag, which aroused much enthusiasm.

After the minutes were read and approved, the following were proposed for membership: Oscar Carlsteadt, Indianapolis; James A. Blackburn, Mt. Vernon; Mr. Servis, Indianapolis; A. B. Cunningham, Columbus; Karl Zeidler, Evansville; P. C. Schultz, Vincennes, and C. F. Beard, Evansville.

President Bertermann praised the work of the committee which is organizing the wind storm and hail insurance association. A. F. J. Baur made a report for the committee in which he stated that the work was progressing rapidly and that a great deal of insurance had been written. Nixon Gano, of Martinsville, is visiting florists in the interests of the association. Theodore Kuebler pledged himself to write twenty policies among the florists in and near Evansville.

A letter from the Indiana Floral Festival Association, which recently disbanded, was read. The association turned over the balance in its treasury to the state association. Mr. Baur read an invitation from the Cleveland flower show committee asking the association to attend the coming chrysanthemum show at Cleveland. Plans are being made for a delegation from Indiana to leave Indianapolis. Reservations can be made by addressing the secretary. An appeal from the New York Horticultural Society for assistance in preserving the trees of France was also read, but the association decided to take no action at this time. Action on a letter from John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., asking coöperation in the work of raising funds for national publicity, was also deferred until the next meeting.

It was unanimously decided to remit the dues of the members who have enlisted in the United States army. Final resolutions were read by E. E. Temperley, and the committee for the next meeting was appointed. The members are Harry White, William Roepke and Glen Moore. The meeting will be held at Richmond, Monday, November 5.

President Bertermann suggested that the members make it their policy to get higher prices for stock. A committee to work out plans for following the suggestion was appointed, with the following members: W. W. Coles, Charles Pahud and William Roepke. The meeting ended with the singing of "America" and a rising vote of thanks to the Evansville Florists' Club for its hospitality.

Notes of the Gathering.

An automobile trip was made, which ended at the greenhouses of Karl Zeidler, who served the burgo supper and barbecue.

The Evansville florists proved real hosts, allowing their guests to pay for nothing. At the suggestion of President Bertermann, a purse of $50 was collected and presented to the Evansville Florists' Club for the Evansville chapter of the Red Cross.

The Expanded Wood Co. had an exhibit of its products.

Robert Catron, foreman for Joseph Hill, Richmond, Ind., was present with a large vase of Columbia, the new Hill rose.

C. A. Morgan, of the Morgan Floral Co., Henderson, Ky., showed some excellent carnations.

Fred Heintz, of Terre Haute, exhibited some fine ferns.

The Schnute-Holtmann Co. presented those at the meeting with souvenirs in the shape of paper weights made from sashbars.

Probably the man who received the most encomiums was Karl Zeidler, who combines the art of cooking with the art of growing flowers. Mr. Zeidler prepared the breakfast and dinner at the hall and the supper at his establishment.

Among the establishments visited were those of Theodore Kuebler and Julius Niednagel & Sons, Emil Niednagel doing the honors at the latter place.

THE WHISKERS—AND THE MAN.

When in the course of human events the boy reaches manhood, one of the most significant indications of his new state is his desire to grow whiskers, or rather not to interfere with nature's work in that direction. In the course of time whiskers either become a habit and are not minded, or the wearer decides that he has lived in retirement long enough, and once more allows the public to see what he really looks like.

In the accompanying illustration is presented the portrait, taken some twenty years ago, of a man whose name is known to almost everyone in the trade. Twenty years, however, have worn the edge off his modesty and now he greets his friends in his true light; that is, minus the shrubbery. He moves so rapidly and has so many interests, not all of which are selfish, that perhaps he had to remove what the wind once blew through because they impeded his progress.

This portrait is of a man who is doing much for the retail florists, being one himself. He performs the secretarial duties of one of the trade's foremost organizations, and has performed so splendidly that he will continue on the job another year. Now and then, too, he performs much more conspicuously than some members of other trade organizations might wish. In pushing along his own organization, he sometimes projects an idea, the effect of which is not unlike that of those projectiles in common use in Europe. They hit, explode and cause considerable excitement in that immediate neighborhood.

Yes, you have guessed it—the portrait is that of Albert Pochelon, of Detroit, secretary, present and future, of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association. Perhaps Mr. Pochelon does not remember having had the picture taken; perhaps he has forgotten the whiskers, but, little as it looks like him now, and little as it does him justice, the portrait shows him as he was a score of years ago.

THRESHING IT OUT

A SHARP STICK.Its Bearing on S. A. F. Advertising.

Sometimes it's good to have someone get after us with a sharp stick.

Yesterday I had one used on me. It worked so well that I am going to pass it pleasantly along to you.

It happened this way. Joe Shelly and I are chums. He borrows my rake and I swipe his wheelbarrow. Yesterday he came back from a 5,000-mile western trip looking chirk and happy. Just naturally I said, "Well, Joe, how did you find business?"

"By going after it," he replied.

His reply kind of pricked me at first. But this morning, when I was thinking it over again, I became convinced that it is a first-class rule for business getting. It made me think about the big business-getting advertising and publicity campaign that the S. A. F. is engineering.

Then I got to thinking of how some people do not get after business until some other business gets after them. There are the candy business and the fruit business, for example; they are trying to get all the dollars they can away from the flower shops.

Must Meet Competition.

Do not tell me that the thousands of dollars that are being spent in big candy advertisements in the Saturday Evening Post are not making a lot of the young chaps buy more and more candy for their girls. If they buy more candy, it's only natural that they buy less flowers. That is why we need your money for the S. A. F. national advertising.

And what a mistaken idea it is to send fruit to friends leaving on a voyage! What good is it to most of them, when they are so seasick they can't eat boiled water, let alone fruit? How cheering and always delightful are flowers, to the sick and well alike! But the fruit man is getting some of your business, and is going to get more.

That's why we need money for the S. A. F. national advertising.

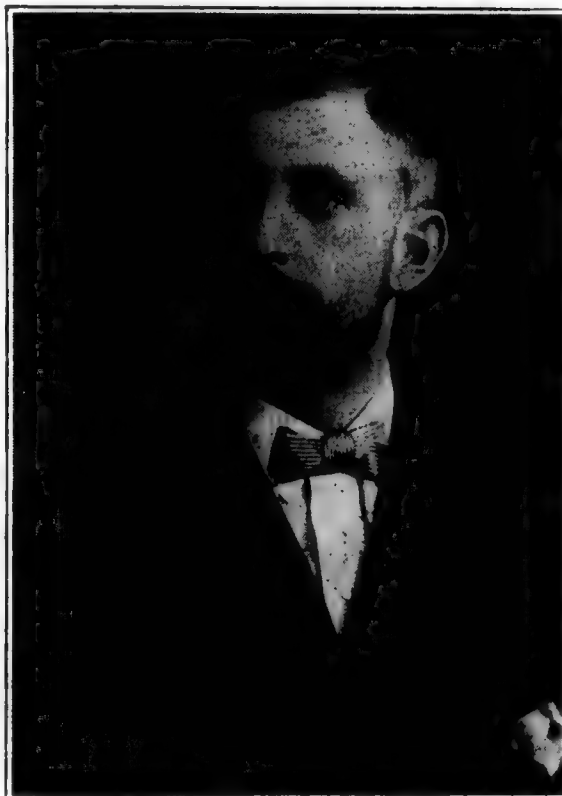

Then there are some societies and organizations that have made rules against flowers in general or some one in particular.

War times will cause more of it than ever.

That's why we need money for the S. A. F. national advertising; not next year sometime, but right now.

You chip in your dollars, and get your neighbor to chip in his. Then if your neighbor gets his neighbor to get his neighbor, before you know it that $50,000 needed will be raised.

The candy advertisements and the fruit advertisements are the sharp sticks that are after you. Get after them by putting your dollars into the advertising of the S. A. F. national campaign.

THE NATIONAL SLOGAN.

In behalf of the publicity committees of the S. A. F. and the great movement now on foot to nationally advertise flowers, and with the knowledge that the trade press at all times is willing to cooperate and assist committees who are working gratuitously for the cause, I wish you would ask the trade at large, through the columns of The Review, to use the slogan endorsed by the committees and adopted by the society, which is, "Send Flowers—Always a Good Idea," in all or as much of its advertising literature, billboards, displays, etc., as possible. It is our desire to have this phrase become known to all throughout the United States and Canada. The publicity thus secured will aid materially in making effective the advertising which will be done in the national magazines.

The importance of this can be seen immediately, and it is hoped that stationery, tags, letterheads, envelopes and flower boxes will, in the future, blaze with the slogan, "Send Flowers—Always a Good Idea."

LET'S PUT IT OVER.

National publicity for flowers; will it pay? The answer is yes, and it has been demonstrated and proven by the St. Valentine's day and Mothers' day national coöperative advertising campaigns inaugurated by the Chicago Florists' Club recently.

These campaigns were put on for two days only, and those two days have gone down in history as the two biggest flower selling days in the year 1917. Can it be done again? Yes; the demand for flowers can be increased every day in the year. It can be done effectively by national advertising, and with a minimum cost by coöperative action.

Stop and think what it means to everyone in the flower business when the 100,000,000 people of our country, and the millions in neighboring lands, read these magic words, "Send Flowers—Always a Good Idea."

So far many of us have been only talking and reading about national publicity; fortunately, however, a few of our men have not been satisfied to only talk and read; they did better than that, they acted; they came across with their hard-earned money.

Three cheers for the man who started it! A grower; $500 was the amount. Three cheers for Heacock, of Wyncote, Pa.! That was only the beginning; retailers, wholesalers, greenhouse builders donated; every branch of the trade came to the front. Thus far $20,000 has been subscribed, with the biggest part of the trade yet to be heard from. Fifty thousand dollars is required for the 1918 campaign, and you should and must help to build up this fund.

Now then, altogether: Let's make a united effort to raise the $50,000 in the next two weeks, and you will be well repaid for your contribution. Act as once, fill in the subscription blank and mail it tonight to John Young.

Friends of national publicity, a few words to you. Get busy; there are thousands of florists willing to contribute to this fund; make it easy for them to do so.

The present subscription blanks demand a 4-year contribution. Is this not a mistake? Why should anyone obligate himself four years in advance? It is not convenient to do so, and besides it is not good business, for the reason that it is a general practice to set aside advertising appropriations from year to year, which is the only practical and safe way.

It seems to the writer that annual subscription blanks should be issued, and that the committee in charge issue at once these blanks in sufficient quantities. In sending out the annual subscription blanks, let it be known and understood that if anyone cares to subscribe for any number of years in advance, he may do so, and such subscription may be put on record under the years specified.

Distribute the new annual subscription blanks immediately; distribute them everywhere; send sufficient lots to each and every cut flower and supply house in the country, in order that they may be mailed to every grower and retailer.

Establish S. A. F. national publicity booths at each and every flower show, and at each and every florists' club meeting for the balance of the year. The local chairman in charge can make the necessary arrangements in each case; every friend of publicity will be willing to work for the good of the cause at flower shows and other trade gatherings. Let everyone help; why not oversubscribe this fund? It can be done. Retailers, wholesalers, growers, allied tradesmen, put forth your best efforts in behalf of the S. A. F. national publicity fund. United national advertising will blaze the trail for bigger business. Act immediately, and watch results.

WINTER COURSES AT CORNELL.

The short winter courses in the New York State College of Agriculture begin November 7 and continue until February 15. This is an opportunity for young men on greenhouse ranges, or engaged in any line of horticultural work, to get information regarding the technical and scientific features of the subject at a low cost. The tuition is free to all residents of New York state; non-residents pay a tuition fee of $25. Board and room may be had at a comparatively low figure. Courses are offered in nearly all branches of agricultural work. For the horticulturist there are courses in agricultural chemistry, insects, plant breeding, plant diseases, soils, fruit, flower and vegetable culture, forestry and many other subjects. In flower growing there are special courses for the professional. Marked emphasis is laid on the commercial aspects of the work. Students are given practical instruction at the greenhouse range shown in the accompanying illustration. A booklet giving full information regarding the courses may be had by writing Dean A. R. Mann, College of Agriculture, Ithaca, N. Y., or to the Department of Floriculture.

EXPRESS RESPONSIBILITY.

The recent order of the express companies to their agents to stamp all shipping tags, "Subject to delay account of congestion," brought a storm of protest from the various trades that rely on express service to transport their products. Appeals to the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Federal Food Administration followed, while representatives of the florists' trade in Philadelphia made their protest direct to the officials of the express companies. This combined action caused the express companies, October 16, to send out the following circular letter to shippers:

"We have no desire whatever to seek relief from responsibility or loss growing out of the negligence of the companies or that of employees, and this is to confirm the statements made to the effect that the endorsement on receipts for perishable shipments, 'subject to delay, account of congestion,' does, and can only, apply to delay beyond control of the express companies, and primarily to put shippers on notice that this traffic to or from the territory described cannot be accorded, under existing conditions, that expeditious express service which formerly we have been able to afford."

While this letter puts the companies on record as not desiring to dodge claims for damages other than those caused by unavoidable delays, there appears to be no relief from the conditions that the florists of Philadelphia and other cities complain of. The railroads, it is declared, are being called upon to handle twenty-five per cent more traffic than under normal conditions and are

LET'S PUT IT OVER.

National publicity for flowers; will it pay? The answer is yes, and it has been demonstrated and proven by the St. Valentine's day and Mothers' day national coöperative advertising campaigns inaugurated by the Chicago Florists' Club recently.

These campaigns were put on for two days only, and those two days have gone down in history as the two biggest flower selling days in the year 1917. Can it be done again? Yes; the demand for flowers can be increased every day in the year. It can be done effectively by national advertising, and with a minimum cost by coöperative action.

Stop and think what it means to everyone in the flower business when the 100,000,000 people of our country, and the millions in neighboring lands, read these magic words, "Send Flowers—Always a Good Idea."

So far many of us have been only talking and reading about national publicity; fortunately, however, a few of our men have not been satisfied to only talk and read; they did better than that, they acted; they came across with their hard-earned money.

Three cheers for the man who started it! A grower; $500 was the amount. Three cheers for Heacock, of Wyncote, Pa.! That was only the beginning; retailers, wholesalers, greenhouse builders donated; every branch of the trade came to the front. Thus far $20,000 has been subscribed, with the biggest part of the trade yet to be heard from. Fifty thousand dollars is required for the 1918 campaign, and you should and must help to build up this fund.

Now then, altogether: Let's make a united effort to raise the $50,000 in the next two weeks, and you will be well repaid for your contribution. Act as once, fill in the subscription blank and mail it tonight to John Young.

Friends of national publicity, a few words to you. Get busy; there are thousands of florists willing to contribute to this fund; make it easy for them to do so.

The present subscription blanks demand a 4-year contribution. Is this not a mistake? Why should anyone obligate himself four years in advance? It is not convenient to do so, and besides it is not good business, for the reason that it is a general practice to set aside advertising appropriations from year to year, which is the only practical and safe way.

It seems to the writer that annual subscription blanks should be issued, and that the committee in charge issue at once these blanks in sufficient quantities. In sending out the annual subscription blanks, let it be known and understood that if anyone cares to subscribe for any number of years in advance, he may do so, and such subscription may be put on record under the years specified.

Distribute the new annual subscription blanks immediately; distribute them everywhere; send sufficient lots to each and every cut flower and supply house in the country, in order that they may be mailed to every grower and retailer.

Establish S. A. F. national publicity booths at each and every flower show, and at each and every florists' club meeting for the balance of the year. The local chairman in charge can make the necessary arrangements in each case; every friend of publicity will be willing to work for the good of the cause at flower shows and other trade gatherings. Let everyone help; why not oversubscribe this fund? It can be done. Retailers, wholesalers, growers, allied tradesmen, put forth your best efforts in behalf of the S. A. F. national publicity fund. United national advertising will blaze the trail for bigger business. Act immediately, and watch results.

WINTER COURSES AT CORNELL.

The short winter courses in the New York State College of Agriculture begin November 7 and continue until February 15. This is an opportunity for young men on greenhouse ranges, or engaged in any line of horticultural work, to get information regarding the technical and scientific features of the subject at a low cost. The tuition is free to all residents of New York state; non-residents pay a tuition fee of $25. Board and room may be had at a comparatively low figure. Courses are of fered in nearly all branches of agricultural work. For the horticulturist there are courses in agricultural chemistry, insects, plant breeding, plant diseases, soils, fruit, flower and vegetable culture, forestry and many other subjects. In flower growing there are special courses for the professional. Marked emphasis is laid on the commercial aspects of the work. Students are given practical instruction at the greenhouse range shown in the accompanying illustration. A booklet giving full information regarding the courses may be had by writing Dean A. R. Mann, College of Agriculture, Ithaca, N. Y., or to the Department of Floriculture.

EXPRESS RESPONSIBILITY.

The recent order of the express companies to their agents to stamp all shipping tags, "Subject to delay account of congestion," brought a storm of protest from the various trades that rely on express service to transport their products. Appeals to the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Federal Food Administration followed, while representatives of the florists' trade in Philadelphia made their protest direct to the officials of the express companies. This combined action caused the express companies, October 16, to send out the following circular letter to shippers:

"We have no desire whatever to seek relief from responsibility or loss growing out of the negligence of the companies or that of employees, and this is to confirm the statements made to the effect that the endorsement on receipts for perishable shipments, 'subject to delay, account of congestion,' does, and can only, apply to delay beyond control of the express companies, and primarily to put shippers on notice that this traffic to or from the territory described cannot be accorded, under existing conditions, that expeditious express service which formerly we have been able to afford."

While this letter puts the companies on record as not desiring to dodge claims for damages other than those caused by unavoidable delays, there appears to be no relief from the conditions that the florists of Philadelphia and other cities complain of. The railroads, it is declared, are being called upon to handle twenty-five per cent more traffic than under normal conditions and are unable to transport shipments as expeditiously as heretofore.

At the conference between the committee of Philadelphia florists and the vice-presidents of the Adams and Wells Fargo express companies, suggestions as to methods of relieving the situation were made by the florists. While the express company officials promised that the suggestions would receive careful consideration, they gave no assurance that conditions could be improved.

Growers and wholesalers in all parts of the country have been put to much inconvenience and considerable loss through the failure of stock shipped by express to reach its destination without delay. In some cases reported to The Review, shipments from points not far distant that ordinarily would have arrived in a few hours have been half a day late, and in isolated cases they have been received several days late.

In the meantime growers are being urged to put their shipping time several hours ahead, so that the stock may reach the market at a time when it is needed.

As a rule, little firing is required during October, and inexperienced growers are prone to close down the houses to save coal. This will surely invite a healthy dose of mildew. If the firing has not begun, always be sure to leave on plenty of air to prevent condensation, no matter if the house drops several degrees below normal. A mere crack of air will not suffice; open the ventilators several inches. It is safer to err on the side of too much, than too little, ventilation. There is no excuse for mildew in a rose house. Let the boiler and ventilators each play their proper part and mildew will be a thing unknown. L.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

The following new carnations, submitted by Evenden Bros., of Williamsport, Pa., have been registered in the American Carnation Society:

White Pearl—Parentage, Flora Hill x Lissie McGowan; color, pure white; size, three to three and one-half inches; vigorous grower and robust constitution; fringed edges. Stem is good and never splits.

Williamsport—Parentage, Flora Hill x Lissie McGowan; color, white; size, four and one-half to five inches; strong, free and healthy grower; unusually robust.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

ROSES IN THE SOUTH.

Timing for Holidays.

The month of October, or rather the culture observed during that month, is of decisive importance to the health of southern roses and to the quality of the crop for the rest of the season. The plants are making great progress this month, throwing many good flowering shoots, and the temptation is strong to cut flowers with good stems. Even in the sunny south such a course is extravagant. The only permissible thing is to cut the flowers with stems just long enough to use in designs, culling, here and there, a few particularly strong stems, just a little longer, to sell over the counter. While the chrysanthemums hold the boards, roses are not so much sought after. The timing of the crop for the holidays is always more or less of a problem, because the seasons are so variable. A week or two weeks of exceptionally cold or warm weather in the beginning of December is liable to upset calculations. Of teas and hybrid teas, American Beauty excepted, the plants may be pinched in the northern sections from October 20 to November 1. American Beauty plants should be pinched from October 15 to 25. In the southern section the pinching may be done a week later. Pinching at these dates will, in all seasons, give a good cut at the holidays, even if the best cut is past or has not yet arrived.

Temperature and Ventilation.

A good, heavy mulch of fresh cow manure may be laid in ridges between the rows. It will bring in the holiday crop in good shape. On some of the hybrid teas black spot may cause trouble if good conditions are not maintained in the houses. I find that in the south the principal cause of black spot is leaky houses, or houses where water works in from the outside through the foundations. Remove this evil and black spot will give you little trouble. Of course, a check in the plant growth, or a heavy, damp atmosphere in the houses, will cause the trouble.

Let the syringing be done in the morning of clear days, and begin ventilating as soon as the house temperature rises 4 degrees. Continue to raise the sashes with the rise of the temperature. If there are ventilators on both sides of the ridge, as there should be, always raise the ventilators on the lee side first, and if that is not sufficient then raise the one on the windy side a little. There will be cloudy days when the weather may be either cold or warm. In such a case a day temperature in the houses of 60 degrees will be proper, but there should be a crack of air on, even if you have to run a little fire heat to maintain this temperature.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

FOR PRIMULA POISONING.

There have appeared at various times in The Review remedies for primula poisoning, but in most cases the formulas have called for ingredients that usually are not on hand or are difficult to procure. A simply made solution which we have found most efficient as a cure for obconica poisoning, therefore may be of interest to growers who daily come in contact with the plants.

Take some common kerosene—say one-half of a pint—and place in the oil as much gum camphor as can be dissolved in the liquid. At night apply the solution to the affected parts, and in the morning the trouble will have disappeared. G. W. Haas & Son.

THANKS FOR THESE KIND WORDS.

We wish to offer you words of praise for improving The Review of late with articles that are of great benefit to the "man behind the hoe," the producer. Conventions and reports of them are all right, but to the average grower cultural directions and seasonable suggestions are always of the greatest aid, if they are from a practical grower and not a writer only.

For instance, the articles on carnation culture from A. F. J. Baur are of great importance to every grower, and we trust from time to time he will contribute more articles on this subject, which he has learned from years of practical experience.

And so it is, cultural directions from the knowledge of practical growers of different plants do more to make The Review the best of all florists' papers than any other method that can be devised. Ralph B. Lamb.

VALENTINE MEMORIAL.

In the death of J. A. Valentine, of Denver, we have sustained a loss of one of the greatest men in our profession. Those who came in contact with him found him to be a man of sterling qualities. He was a true friend, and a man who was always glad and willing to give us the benefit of his valuable experience and good judgment. And those of us whom he assisted in the time of trouble realize that we have lost one of our best friends in the profession. He was always ready and willing to help others. Only a few days before his death, a number of us received letters from him, through which he was trying to help the helpless. He was a great civic worker and a good Rotarian.

He is the man who gave us the Florists' Telegraph Delivery. This was a great idea and advancement for retail florists. I feel that the Florists' Telegraph Delivery members should establish a memorial to him.

Just thirty days previous to the fatal accident, Mrs. Kerr and I spent the day in the mountains with him. Mountain driving was his great delight. He was a most careful driver, and knew every foot of the road, and I can hardly conceive how an accident could happen.

Long live the memory of this great and good man!

R. C. Kerr, Pres. S. A. F.

DUTCH BULBS

BULBS UNDER GLASS.

Planting Suggestions.

Growers are now receiving the Dutch bulbs that arrived several weeks ago and are busy planting them. There were notes on tulips, hyacinths and narcissi in the issue of October 18, and herewith are some suggestions as to the culture of the miscellaneous bulbs so as to bring them along to have the flowers ready for market at the time when they are most in demand.

Gladiolus Nanus.

The small early-flowering gladioli are invaluable for cutting and may be had over quite a long season. They are of special value for Memorial day. Peach Blossom and Blushing Bride are the two most popular market sorts. Colvillei The Bride, pure white, is splendid for bouquets and funeral work. Mathilde, white, tinged with lavender, a later bloomer, is also fine.

Spanish Irises.

Grown in benches or in flats containing five to six inches of soil, the Spanish irises have proved to be valuable forcing bulbs for florists. These irises, sweet-scented, orchid-like and aristocratic, come in a fine range of colors. The bulbs need cool treatment, and with the gladioli do not need covering with soil, sand or coal ashes, as they start to grow quickly. A small list of good varieties is: King of Whites, or Blanche Fleur, pure white; Cajanus, yellow; Midley, pale blue; Louise, porcelain blue and yellow.

Ranunculi.

Popular colors are obtainable in ranunculi, including crimson, yellow, dark maroon, white, scarlet and pink. Plant eight to ten bulbs in 6-inch or 7-inch pans, or grow them in a bench, dotted between your single violets, or in a portion of bench by themselves, giving them a porous compost containing plenty of sand. They must have a cold house.

Anemones.

The anemones and ranunculi have a charm all their own and appeal especially to critical flower buyers who want something different from the ordinary routine of tulips and daffodils. Half a dozen anemone roots suffice for a 6-inch pot, but they may also be grown in flats or benches. Another method is to plant them in coldframes, and I have had superb flowers grown in this way. The St. Brigid anemones give a wide range of colors, especially in the blue, scarlet and purple. Anemone fulgens, with dazzling scarlet flowers, with a black center, is popular in Europe and should be more largely forced here. A. coronaria The Bride is a handsome, single, pure white variety. Treatment of anemones should be similar to that of ranunculi.

Ixias, Sparaxis, Tritonias, Babianas.

Ixias, sparaxis, tritonias and babianas are interesting and charming spring bulbous flowers, all of which succeed well in small pans in a cold greenhouse. They may also be grown in benches, but pans are safer, as the plants are then less liable to damp off. Ixia crateroides major, scarlet, and I. rosea plena multiflora, soft rose, are splendid, but a mixed assortment looks well. Mixed sparaxis and babianas are also the best to plant. Tritonia crocata, coming in shades of orange and scarlet, and T. aurea, golden yellow, are beautiful, carrying stalks eighteen to twenty-four inches in height in early spring.

Small Early-Flowering Bulbs.

In the class with small early-flowering bulbs may be placed crocuses, snowdrops, Scilla sibirica and chionodoxas. These are rarely seen on the market, but are often grown in small receptacles for retail trade. A nice way to utilize them is in mixed arrangements of flowering bulbs for table centerpieces, some tulips, narcissi or daffodils being planted somewhat thinly and a mixture of the small bulbs being used below them. Such centerpieces are refreshing and appeal to anyone after a long season of mums, carnations and roses.

Bulbs are unusually late in arriving and should be unpacked and spread out at once after being received, and got into the soil with as little delay as possible. It will not be possible to force any Dutch stock for Christmas and all may be expected to bloom a little later than usual.

PLANTING OUTDOOR BULBS.

Preparing the Beds.

Dutch bulbs were late in arriving and a smaller number than usual may be available for bedding out. The last half of October and the first half of November is a suitable season for the planting of the majority of hardy bulbs. They succeed best in beds which have had a coating of well-decomposed manure. If you grow mushrooms the spent manure from old beds will be ideal for them. Do not, on any account, use fresh barnyard manure, which is harmful to all bulbs.

Tulips.

Tulips are the leading bulbs for bedding. A few really fine varieties for this purpose are: Chrysolora, Ophir d'Or and Mon Tresor, yellow; Joost van Vondel and Pottebakker, white; Prince of Austria and Thomas Moore, orange; Keizerskroon, red and yellow;

Rose Luisante, deep rose; Pink Beauty, rose pink; Queen of the Netherlands, satiny pink; Scarlet Pottebakker; Dusart, deep crimson. Any of the foregoing make a good bed by themselves, which is really the most effective way to use tulips in beds. Circular beds can be quartered and two colors used. For this purpose, Joost van Vondel, white, and Scarlet Pottebakker; Prince of Austria and White Pottebakker; Chrysolora and White Joost van Vondel; Dusart and Mon Tresor; Cottage Maid and Ophir d'Or are suggested as good combinations. All the Darwins make splendid bedders. Mixed beds look well and the following sorts are fine when solid beds of one color are preferred: Clara Butt, clear pink-shaded salmon; Gretchen, silvery pink; Pride of Haarlem, carmine rose; Glow, vermilion scarlet; King Harold, blood red; Rev. H. Ewbank, heliotrope; White Queen, nearly pure white; The Sultan, black maroon. The following cottage tulips are splendid bedders: Inglescombe Yellow, golden yellow; White Swan, pure white; Golden Crown, yellow edged red; Gesneriana lutea, golden yellow; Gesneriana major, brilliant scarlet; Leghorn Bonnet, primrose yellow, and retroflexa, deep yellow.

Narcissi.

Narcissi are not much used for bedding. The following I have found to make effective solid beds: Sir Watkin, Empress, Victoria, Glory of Leiden, Emperor and Golden Spur. All the short trumpet narcissi are fine naturalized in grass land, preferably where they can have a little shade. Some of the large trumpet sorts like Emperor, Glory of Leiden, Empress and Princes do well in grass, but Henry Irving, Golden Spur and Silver Spur are not successes.

Bulbs for Edgings.

The small bulbs like chionodoxas, fritillarias, snowdrops, crocuses, scillas and puschkinias make nice edgings for beds. They all do well in grass land, where they are effective in early spring. If the soil is at all favorable these bulbs will increase satisfactorily. They should be planted where the grass is not cut until the middle of June.

Galesburg, Ill.—Last spring Messrs. H. F. Drury and I. L. Pillsbury gave away about 1,500 mum plants to the school children and the merchants of Galesburg have furnished premiums. These plants are to be on exhibition at the Armory, November 6 and 7, at the fall flower show of the Illinois State Florists' Association. The Armory is a new frame building and will be elaborately decorated with flags and greens for the occasion.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

DRYING OFF INDOOR BULBS.

The season for gloxinias, gesneras, tuberous-rooted begonias and fancy-leaved begonias is practically over. Gradually keep the plants drier at the roots and, as the tops disappear, lay the plants below a greenhouse bench or store them on shelves in a fairly warm shed. The gloxinias and begonias keep well if shaken out and better if left in the pots and a winter temperature of 58 to 60 degrees keeps them well. Amaryllis that have been kept growing all summer will still carry plenty of green foliage, but can now be kept quite dry at the root. Lay them below a bench if upper bench space is scarce. They ordinarily will commence to push flower spikes in December, and will flower from that time until April if brought along in batches.

SHIFT THE SCHIZANTHUS.

Schizanthus are now making quite rapid growth. They delight in a comparatively cold greenhouse, 45 degrees at night being ample for them. If at all leggy, it is best to pinch them back to make them more shapely. They soon fill their pots with roots, and need rather frequent shifts until they are moved into their flowering pots. A light but rich soil is what they revel in, and potting should be done quite firmly. While nice plants can be flowered in 6-inch pots, 8-inch is a better commercial size. Exhibition plants are sometimes shown six feet high and as much across, but it would not pay commercial growers to produce these big specimens.

RAMBLER ROSES FOR FORCING.

Pot-grown ramblers should now be kept gradually drier at the root. The early-ripened plants with firm canes are the best for forcing. The field-grown plants can now be dug up and potted. Cut away any poorly ripened ends of shoots and tie the canes up securely to a stake. Plants can remain outside for some time, especially if the pots are protected by leaves or straw from the danger of breakages by frost. Country florists not in the habit of growing their own ramblers should purchase field-grown stock now. Pink colors are more favored than reds or whites for Easter, although some of the latter colors always sell, notably Hiawatha and R. excelsa, but the great call is for such varieties as Tausendschon, Dorothy Perkins and the various forms of the polyantha, or so-called baby ramblers, like Ellen Poulsen, Yvonne Rabier, Mrs. Cutbush and the dwarf forms of Tausendschon and Dorothy Perkins.

HERBACEOUS PERENNIALS.

Fall is the season par excellence for the replanting of the great majority of hardy herbaceous plants. Some varieties, such as irises and peonies, would have been better if planted somewhat earlier, but the present is a splendid season to plant many sorts, including such valuable and popular ones as phloxes, pentstemons, delphiniums, helianthus, asters, boltonias, polemoniums, hemerocallis, spiræas and many others; also a few varieties like Anemone japonica, kniphofias, pompon chrysanthemums, incarvilleas and rehmannias.

Well plowed, or spaded, and manured ground is what practically all perennials like. If planting is done now, the plants will make a far better growth than where the work is delayed until the strenuous spring season. All perennials should have a good winter mulch, but it would better not be applied until the ground freezes.

SHRUBS FOR FALL PLANTING.

It is getting late in the season to do any successful planting of evergreens, but the last part of October and early November is an excellent season for planting out many deciduous shrubs. Included in the list which can go out now are lilacs, philadelphus, viburnums, loniceras, spiræas, forsythias, symphoricarpos and elæagnus, to mention but a few. Deutzias of the crenata type, dier villas, ligustrums, berberis, buddleias, and cotoneasters are better if planted in the spring, although if carefully moved they will come through all right if planted now. Make ample holes for each plant, do not use any manure about the roots, be sure the latter are damp before the holes are filled in and firm the soil thoroughly about each. A winter mulch of some kind will also prove helpful. The various ornamental crab apples, botanically known as malus, do much better if planted now than in the spring.

MARGUERITES FOR CHRISTMAS.

The old white marguerite is still far and away the best for pot culture. It always makes a shapely plant, can be pinched back to flower any time from Christmas until May, and is of the easiest possible culture. Our plants for Christmas have just been moved from coldframes to a greenhouse with a night temperature of 48 to 50 degrees. The flowers are just starting to open and in two months the plants will be covered with bloom. These marguerites are sometimes attacked in the foliage by leaf miners, but a spraying with a good nicotine extract will kill these. Mrs. Sander is a fine white variety, but is not a free winter bloomer, and does not make so shapely a pot plant as the old white, C. frutescens. The yellow varieties, which are fine for cutting, are of but little value as pot plants, more's the pity. Now, if someone would give us a red marguerite, we would have no need of imported azaleas. Some day we will have such a plant, and what a glorious holiday subject it would be!

A Big Difference.

He—Of course there's a big difference between a botanist and a florist.

She—Is there, really?

He—Yes; a botanist is one who knows all about flowers, and a florist is one who knows all about the price people will pay for them.—Boston Transcript.

"Business is Business."

"Business is business," but men are men,
Loving and working, dreaming,
Toiling with pencil or spade or pen,
Roistering, planning, scheming.
"Business is business"—but he's a fool
Whose business has grown to smother
His faith in men and the golden rule,
His love for a friend and brother.
"Business is business"—but life is life;
Though we're all in the game to win it,
Let's rest sometimes from the heat and strife
And try to be friends for a minute.
Let's seek to be comrades now and then,
And slip from our golden tether;
"Business is business," but men are men,
And we're all good pals together!

The Plant in the Window.

'Twas only a pot of cyclamen rare
She placed on the ledge of the window there;
But it brightened the day for those who passed,
With burdens of care and grief harassed.
The owner herself—she never knew
What a pot of cyclamen pink could do,
But I could tell her and so could you.

But He Wasn't a Florist.

There was a man in our town,
And he was wondrous wise;
Unto his neighbor's worst mistakes
He closed his mouth and eyes.
And when he saw his neighbor down,
So wondrous wise was he,
He looked unto his own affairs,
To see what he could see.

Undoubtedly.

F. H. Page, of the Iowa Seed Co., Des Moines, Ia., contributes this one:

Fitzhugh, who runs the Kenyon Co., where they make maps and good advertising, is doing his bit. He is making garden.
"Things are coming along fine," says Fitz.
"Everything but my beans. And do you know I went out to look at them one morning and I declare if every one of those beans I planted hadn't come out of the ground on the end of the stalk and I had to poke them back down. I must have planted them wrong side up."

OBITUARY

Mrs. O. J. Olson.

Mrs. Olson, wife of Olaf J. Olson, of the Holm & Olson Co., of St. Paul, passed away the morning of October 20, at the family residence. She had been a great sufferer for several months. To mourn her loss she leaves, besides her husband, three sons, George, Warren and Eugene, and one daughter, Helen, a mother and two sisters, besides a wide circle of acquaintances. Always of a bright and cheerful disposition, she spread sunshine around her wherever she went. Funeral services were held at the residence October 22 and were attended by a large number of friends. There were many flowers.

John H. Swanson.

J. H. Swanson, a retailer of Chariton, Ia., died October 14, after an illness of two days, having suffered a stroke of paralysis. The decedent was 58 years of age and established a retail business on his arrival at Chariton three years ago. A nephew, J. Alexis, of the faculty of the University of Nebraska, accompanied the remains to Lincoln, Neb., where interment took place. Two brothers and a sister survive.

John Knoll.

John Knoll, one of the oldest florists of St. Louis, died of heart failure October 20, at the age of 54.

Mr. Knoll was born in St. Louis and started a florists' business thirty-five years ago, on Kansas street, in the extreme southern part of the city. He was considered one of the veterans in the trade, and was a brother-in-law of Andrew Meyer, Sr. Although never a member of any of the florists' societies, he was much liked and known by many. He is survived by his wife and three sons, John, Herman and Walter, who were in business with their father. The funeral was held October 22 from his late residence, with interment in the Lutheran cemetery. J. J. B.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

All outdoor stock was cut down by frost last week, which was two weeks earlier than usual. Roses and carnations are in fair supply and are of good quality. Chrysanthemums are arriving in abundance and the quality is good. Funeral work and weddings have been moving much of the supply that reached the market.

Julius Niednagel & Sons are cutting excellent mums, which bring good prices.

Mrs. J. C. Elsperrmann is busy with funeral work.

Carl Elsperrmann recently visited Theodore Elsperrmann at Camp Taylor, near Louisville, Ky.

The Blackman Floral Co. has been doing a good business with long-stemmed mums. Roses and carnations here are improving. George Blackman has been devoting much of his time to the Liberty bond campaign.

Theodore Kuebler is bringing in his first mums, his crop being a week later than usual.

Miss Nellie Goodge has been ill.

C. E. Gysemans, of the Evansville Nurseries, is busy getting his stock ready for winter.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

Business was satisfactory last week. The supply of stock was larger, so that everyone was able to fill his orders without any trouble. Wedding work was good, and decorations were numerous.

The chrysanthemum market is improving considerably. Home-grown stock is more plentiful, and there is much more to come. There is a shortage of long-stemmed roses. American Beauties are appearing in greater quantities, but the demand is not active. Violets continue to arrive in small quantities. Carnations are selling well, and the quality improves daily. The supply of pompons is exceptionally large; the blooms may be had in nearly every color. Single chrysanthemums also are available. Cattleyas are more numerous. There are a few oncidiums and gardenias in better supply. A limited number of lilies are to be had.

Various Notes.

The New Haven Floral Co. is cutting fine mums and carnations. The staff has been busy with funeral work and several large wedding orders.

A special meeting of the Fort Wayne Florists' Club was called by the secretary, Miss Marguerite Flick, October 16, to decide on the building for the flower show. The new Overland building, on West Washington street, was finally decided on. The building has just been completed, and is one of the handsomest in the city.

Mrs. W. J. Vesey, Jr., spent October 20 and 21 with her husband, who is in training at Camp Taylor, Louisville, Ky.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey shipped several hundred large yellow mums of different varieties to Ann Arbor, Mich., for the football game there October 20.

A large parade and public demonstration on behalf of the Liberty loan workers was held October 20. The florists took advantage of this opportunity to decorate their windows in patriotic colors, and the results were elaborate and striking.

The Flick Floral Co. is cutting mums of many varieties, as well as good roses. Business has been booming at the Flick establishment, with wedding work the leading item. R. F.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Flowers have been high-priced in the Newark market during the last ten days. Short-stemmed carnations were $5 and $6 a hundred, more than they brought at Easter. Chrysanthemums are of good quality and a fair supply of the larger varieties is coming into the market, but not in sufficient quantity to bring prices down. Funeral work has kept the local florists busy for several weeks, creating a somewhat larger demand for cut flowers on the part of the retail trade.

Growers have been planting their fall bulbs, and have put in a good many Paper Whites. Prices for bulbs are unusually high this season.

Various Notes.

Harry I. Stein, formerly proprietor of the flower department at Hahne's department store, has opened a stand in the main concourse of the public service terminal building for the sale of both cut flowers and plants.

George Penek, 637 Broad street, reports that the departure of large numbers of young men for military service has reduced the cut flower sales, as young men are generous buyers of cut flowers.

John W. Blakely, 88 Broad street, Elizabeth, states that business is beginning to show more life, and that he considers the outlook for the fall encouraging. R. M.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

Commenting on the satisfactory condition of their business in central Canada, Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, Wis., expressed a desire to assist the retailer in any way to advance the publicity movement, realizing it is through that channel the benefit must come to the grower. New crops are coming in well.

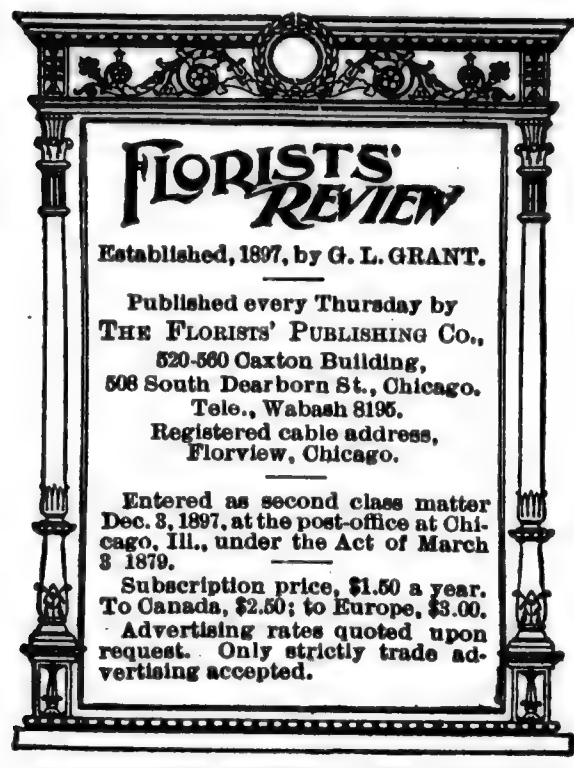

Two years ago H. H. Elbers, superintendent of parks, Buffalo, N. Y., took charge of South park, which was considered to be located in the worst part of the city because of the prevalence of continuous smoke and acid fumes. By combining persistency with practical knowledge, Mr. Elbers has succeeded in overcoming every obstacle, and the result is a triumph. Both natives and foreigners are attracted to this, one of the beauty spots of the Bison City. Mr. Elbers is president of the Florists' Club.

William Blackman & Sons, of Evansville, Ind., have passed through an encouraging season. "Funeral work has been steady and has called for the best stock we grow," observed George Blackman, who was attaching a bunch of white chrysanthemums to a bow and streamer to hang on a door. "We are ever on the alert to try to give our patrons something different, and with our large stock at the greenhouses we have every facility for so doing."

H. H. Cade, of Cairo, Ill., reports good business and notes an increase in the sale of ferns to offset the scarcity of palms. A call for the commoner kinds of decorative plants is noted. Sansevieria zeylanica Laurentii is a hardy striped and variegated kind—a suitable companion of the aspidistra. It is comparatively easily propagated from divisions, and when better known it will take front rank in its class.

Around the Evansville, Ind., railroad depot is a dozen of tree rubbers, splendid specimens in prime condition. Such were the delight of William K. Harris, the originator of the ficus in bush form.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
 We both have them.

THERE is no better rule for business conduct than the Golden one. The florist who does as he would be done by, in buying as well as in selling, will not lack business friends.

THE old saying about the ill wind is proving true in the matter of boxwoods—the specialists in evergreens are having a fine call for stock to take the place of the foreign plants.

Now is the time for the greenhouse fireman to prove that he knows his business by maintaining the correct temperatures with the use of less coal than in other years. In nine boiler rooms out of ten it can be done.

THE resourcefulness of the men of the trade never was better illustrated than by the success of the supply houses, practically all of which now manufacture for themselves better lines of retailers' requisites than ever were imported.

ONLY now and then does a bit of news come filtering out of Ghent, but the reports indicate that it probably will be five years after the close of the war before Belgium can be producing azaleas for export in the quantities of the ante-bellum days.

FLORISTS' clubs all over the country, as well as the national societies of which he was a member, are adopting resolutions on the death of J. A. Valentine. The florists of Colorado, at a meeting under the chairmanship of Adam Kohankie, took such action October 12.

THIS is one year that the arrival of frost has brought no pressure to sell Boston ferns. The indications are the supply will be consumed long before the big spring demand sets in.

CONCERTED action was taken last week by Bellingham, Wash., retailers to charge for delivery of flowers. It was agreed to charge 10 cents on orders under $1 and 15 cents for suburban deliveries of the same amount.

THE TRADE'S LAMENT.

"Needles and pins, needles and pins,
 When a man marries his trouble begins."
 So jested the rhymster in days of yore,
 But he wasn't a florist; there was no war.
 The troubles of matrimony are trivial things;
 Weighty ones each day to the florist brings.
 There's coal and labor, now express congestion;
 "What next?" asks he, with a wry expression.

When the war began, the economy wave
 Caused the rich to decide it was time to save.
 They continued to eat at all sorts of hours;
 The saving was made by cutting out flowers.

Then the call of Mars took the youths away;
 Higher wages followed; now comes the day
 When women in men's overalls and blouses
 Are doing the work in many greenhouses.

The boilers eat coal, the coal eats profit;
 There seems no way the florist can stop it.
 In fact, he's happy to get a supply,
 And have the money with which to buy.

Matrimony brings trouble, the rhymster sang.
 Perhaps it does, but who cares a hang?
 What the florist wants, the world wants, too.
 It's peace, then with his troubles he's through.

PRODUCTION THE BIG QUESTION.

Review correspondents last week reported inadequate supplies of stock at Detroit, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Indianapolis, Seattle, Boston, Kansas City and Chicago. Of course periods of scarcity are a part of the flower business; the disconcerting thing is that the demand has nothing to do with the supply—the demand does not vary up or down as the supply is wont to do.

A retailer who has advertised consistently for years recently discontinued all but a small part of his local publicity. When asked the reason for it he replied: "I have always thought of advertising as a selling proposition only, but I now know that production of stock is the thing that should govern advertising in every case. My business has increased, thanks to advertising, but I find that I cannot now do much more business than I am doing, because I cannot depend on steady production. Customers want roses in times of scarcity as well as in times of abundant cuts. I think the S. A. F. publicity campaign will be a wonderful thing, but growers of stock will be of greater importance in the campaign's success than the retail men. Advertising brings business, but one must be prepared to take care of that business when it comes."

THREE-CENT LETTER POSTAGE.

Friday, November 2, the rate on first-class mail matter will be increased to 3 cents for each ounce or fraction thereof and letters without sufficient postage will be returned to the sender for the additional stamps.

Thousands in the florists' trade depend on the mails for the transmission of orders for stock. Upon the rapid transmission of the order many times depends whether the sender will be able to supply his customer. Therefore the increase in the postage rate should be borne in mind, so that delay, disappointment and loss in business and profits will not result.

The Review each week gets many orders for advertising the copy for which reaches the office barely in time to get into that issue. This eleventh-hour mailing of orders is sometimes necessary, and when it is care should be taken that sufficient postage under the new rate is affixed.

PLEASE NOTE.

Each week a number of letters containing advertising instructions reach The Review while the paper is on the press—just a few hours earlier and they would have had attention a week sooner than is possible.

It is the aim to give prompt service, but to secure it advertisers should note: "It is impossible to guarantee the insertion, discontinuance or alteration of any advertisement unless instructions are received by 4 p. m. Tuesday."

TWO STANDARDS.

There are two good standards by which the value of an advertising medium may be estimated:

1. The number of copies that are sold.
2. The interest that the medium possesses, to command its continuous purchase by its readers.

Number 1 should always be the one safe, definite measure of value, about which there can be no uncertainty. Not less than 12,000 copies of The Review are printed each week, for instance. The advertiser knows what he is buying.

Number 2 is important because the friendly attitude that the reader holds for his paper is usually inherited by the advertisers, and the paper that is continuously bought is always read through. The advertiser's results are assured, like this:

Please discontinue our ad, as all the plants have been sold. The Review does its work well.
 —C. W. Espy & Sons, Brookville, Pa., October 8, 1917.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain that he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The market is in a distinctly easier condition than it was at this time last week. The change has been brought about by increased supplies of chrysanthemums, big and little. At the same time that supplies have increased, there has been some decrease in the demand, for it is evident that buyers in other cities now have local supplies of chrysanthemums that are relieving their needs. The shipping orders, however, still call for all the selected flowers that come to the market and the city buyers have to be on hand early or they find most of the stock set away to take care of the shipping orders that are on file. The out-of-town buyers are alive to the conditions, both of supply and of express service, and orders are coming in noticeably earlier in the day. The wholesale houses are having no difficulty in maintaining the 5 o'clock closing, the first time it ever has been continued beyond September 30.

Chrysanthemums now stand as the most important item on the list. This season many growers planted few, if any, of the earlier varieties, with the result that the market has been inadequately supplied until this week, when midseason sorts began to make their appearance in quantity. While all colors are available, there is a decided preponderance of yellows and the demand, contrarily, runs to white, with the result that there has been some difficulty in matching up stock and orders. Pompons now are coming in heavily and prices have eased, although values continue satisfactory to all concerned.

Roses are entitled to second place in any consideration of present market conditions. The rose market is easier because the demand has fallen off under the influence of increased supplies of chrysanthemums. The supply of roses actually seems also to have decreased. Mrs. Russell is the principal rose in this market today, having taken the place formerly held by American Beauty. Only a few growers are producing Beauty this season and the supply is less than the demand, though buyers will not pay fancy prices, turning to long Russell instead. Ophelia is in excellent supply and is a decidedly popular rose. Sawyer is in larger supply than last year, but Killarneys have been reduced. Few growers are in full crop, cuts in general being lighter than usual at this date.

The supply of carnations is lighter than at this date in any recent season. Some of the stock is of excellent quality of flower and shows moderate stem, but in general carnations are so scarce as to command prices above their real value.

Orchids are much more abundant than they were. There is considerable variation in the quality of cattleyas, but fine flowers now are to be had at reasonable prices. There is extremely little interest in violets, the miniature roses seeming to have the call for corsage purposes. Easter lilies are abundant. Valley is obtainable for all early orders. There are few gladioli about, but the frost has finished off all local

A Suggestion for Retailers.

The opera season this year will be the most brilliant in the history of Chicago. Progressive methods have resulted in the largest advance sale of seats ever known, insuring capacity audiences for practically every night of the ten weeks.

If the trade can establish the fashion of wearing flowers it will mean thousands of dollars for us.

Every retailer who hopes to share in such a demand for corsage bouquets may well give thought and assistance to obtaining a brave showing of flowers for the opening night, Monday, November 12. It is worth an effort.

There are several ways it can be done. Perhaps the best way is ads in the newspapers read by opera-goers, the Tribune and the Post. An ad offering "Flowers for Opera Wear" can carry the suggestion that corsage bouquets will be more generally worn than ever before. The same idea can be conveyed by mailing cards or by circular letters. Addresses can be obtained from last Atlas block now occupied. They are installing a large storage room that will be cooled by the temperature of the outside air.

The transportation committee of the Florists' Club has selected the Lake Shore train leaving at 11 p. m. November 7 as the "official" one for the party which will attend the Cleveland show. It looks as though quite a few will go.

Visitors.

H. N. Lowe, of Long Beach, Cal., was in town last week, on his way home from a trip to the Atlantic coast. He was here in early September on his way to Flint, Mich., where he bought a Buick in which he drove to Boston, accompanied by his mother, who will spend the winter there. Then he drove back to Flint, where he had the car shipped to the Buick's Long Beach agent. He has called on scores of florists en route.

Louis H. Kyrk, the Cincinnati wholesale commission florist, has been in town for several days and went from here to Milwaukee. He reports business good in the Ohio city, with all flowers cleaning up in first-class shape.

Among this week's visitors we have Herman Leitz, of New Haven, Ind.

A. Mosconosotis, of Minneapolis, was in Chicago this week.

Mrs. Thielman, of Owosso, Mich., accompanied by her family, was in Chicago this week for business and pleasure.

Alois Frey, of Crown Point, spent Sunday with friends in Chicago.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Business is good. The market is well supplied with stock—enough to take good care of the steady, active demand. The shipping business in greens and cut flowers is excellent. Roses are plentiful and sell well. October 22, however, the receipts were so heavy that many of the roses, as well as some other flowers, failed to clear at sight. The carnation supply, while apparently sufficient for immediate needs, is none too large. Some excellent Easter and rubrum lilies are arriving. Chrysanthemums are plentiful. The blooms are of unusually good quality for early stock. Among other offerings are valley, snapdragons and calendulas. Greens are plentiful and meet with a good demand.

Various Notes.

A fund with which to purchase comfort kits for the florists from this vicinity who are in the service of Uncle Sam, has been started. To C. J. Jones belongs the credit of starting the thing. Contributions may be left at the store of the William Murphy Co., or checks may be mailed to W. Ray Murphy, in care of the William Murphy Co.

C. E. Critchell has put an auto truck into service to facilitate the transfer of his flowers to and from the depot. Express service in this city has been poor and unreliable, and has compelled Mr. Critchell to take this step. Mr. Critchell has been having a big call for bronze galax.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has been getting in some excellent Chrysolora mums.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Ohmer and Master James Ohmer returned to their home at West Palm Beach, Fla., October 24.

E. G. Gillett and C. E. Critchell, trustees of the Elliott Flower Market, have had the market house repainted. The recent dahlia show was most successful.

M. M. Carroll, at one time connected with D. Rusconi and later in the bulb and plant business for herself at Norwood, O., has opened a wholesale cut flower and supply house here, at 135 East Third street, to which address the bulb business also has been removed. Miss Carroll says that with a business combining all these lines "the field to work in looks large."

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

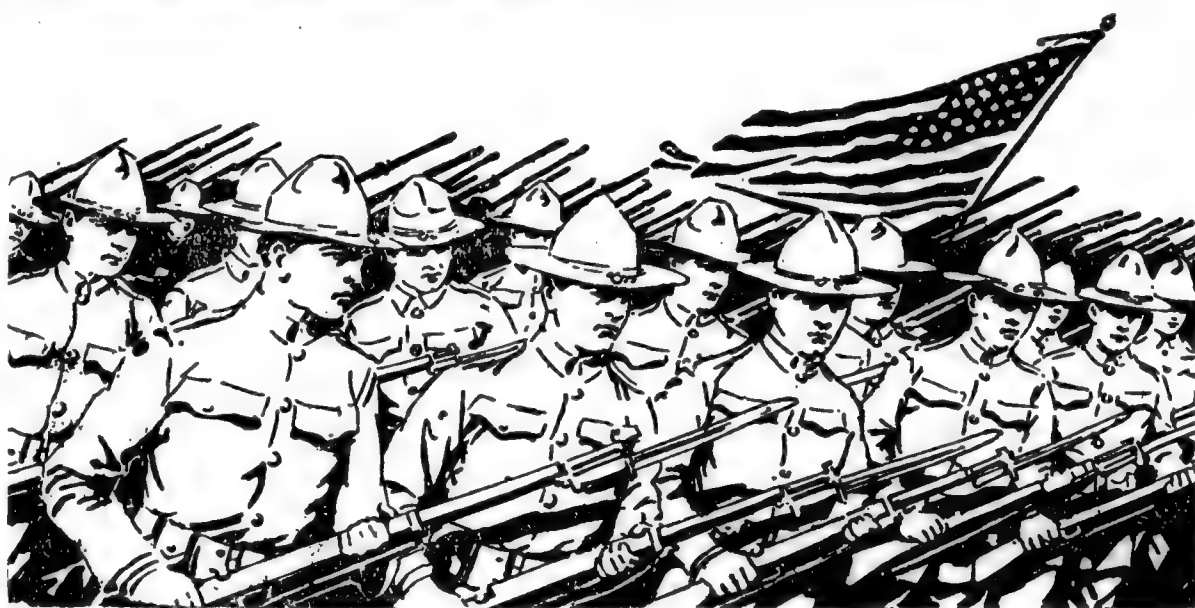

Pompons have arrived and the big fellows are coming in good quantities. Business is excellent. Stocks of all kinds clear early in the day, and are followed by an insistent demand for more. Roses are good, but the offerings hardly equal the demand. Carnations continue to arrive slowly. The cool nights are improving them, both in size of flower and length of stem. Valley is in exceedingly low supply and now fetches $8 per hundred. A few cattleyas are offered, as well as choice oncidiums and cypripediums.

Several leading retailers report October business thus far to be slightly above normal. There has been much funeral work, in addition to decorations. Counter trade is gratifying in volume and increases as stock becomes more plentiful and varied.

In the smaller neighboring cities and towns business is said to be brisk. Many florists who formerly consigned their surplus, at present are unable to do so because of the spirited demand at home.

The Market.

The midseason chrysanthemums have arrived, vastly improving the quality of the queen of autumn. The assortment now includes Golden Glow, Chrysolora, Robert Halliday and Major Bonnaillon, yellow; Tint of Gold, bronze; Unaka and Pacific Supreme, pink; Oeonto, Crystal Gem, Polly Rose, October Frost, Smith's Advance and Early Snow, white; and there is a good assortment of pompons. Generally speaking, the mums have been selling well, at excellent prices, but there have been dull days.

Carnations have shown a decided improvement in quality and in numbers. Matchless, Mrs. C. W. Ward, Enchantress, White Perfection and Benora are rounding into form, together with others not here named; the rounding includes additional inches on the stems. Carnations have been in brisk demand, at good prices.

Chrysanthemums and carnations are the strong features of the market. Roses are the weak feature. There is an excessive supply of poor roses—not so much poor in quality as poor by comparison with the better roses and with other flowers. They also have unusually poor stems.

The outstanding feature of the market this week is the change from outdoor to indoor flowers. Dahlias received another blow October 21, from which they are unlikely to recover.

Chinese asters, tritomas, tuberose and even gladioli have passed. Cosmos only remains, and some Hydrangea paniculata grandiflora. Cattleyas are plentiful enough to be possible in hundred lots at hundred prices. Violets are extremely good, both in singles and in doubles. There are a few more gardenias and just a little bouvardia. Valley continues high in price, with little prospect of lower figures. Easter lilies have not yet suffered from the competition of white chrysanthemums. Oak foliage is in moderate demand with the advent of gayly colored chrysanthemums. Asparagus plumosus is selling pretty well.

The surprise of the market is the sweet peas. They continue exceptionally fine for so early in the season. The disappointment of the market is the absence of the debutante. The orders for coming-out teas, usually the strength of the market at this season, have been few. Seemingly society is interested in war relief work rather than in social festivity. Yet there is a healthy demand for flowers for everyday use.

familiar with the range of the Robert Craig Co. at Forty-ninth and Market streets. They knew it when it covered a square from Forty-ninth to Fiftieth street, from Market to Chestnut street. Now the Chestnut street front has been sold for building purposes and the greenhouses removed. The Market street front, where most of the greenhouses stand, is in full swing. Here all the business, both for this place and for the wonderful modern range at Norwood, is transacted.

The main crop in the greenhouses lying between Forty-ninth and Fiftieth streets, on Market street, is the fern. There are houses of chrysanthemums; there are show houses for the Norwood crotons, dracenas and so forth. There are houses of other things, but most of the houses are in ferns—ferns of the Boston family, from the original mother Boston all the way down to Nephrolepis Norwood, the youngest and probably the greatest scion of the family. Going through the fern houses suggests some thoughts, quite naturally: What good stock can be grown in these houses that have done splendid service for so many years; the knowledge required to produce the proper proportion of varieties and of sizes of each variety; the care in spacing properly; the management of pedestal-grown specimens—these are only a few. The conclusion is that the than this single sentence of Mr. Feurstenberg? The words were spoken with an earnestness that left no doubt of their sincerity, an earnestness that spoke volumes of the history of the great range of glass at North Wales.

The greenhouses of the Florex Gardens at North Wales are planted to roses; carnations, snapdragons, sweet peas and asparagus are grown in smaller quantities. The expression, "smaller quantities," is used relatively, for nothing is grown in what most of us would consider a small quantity at North Wales. The place is big in every sense of the word. There are nineteen varieties of roses under cultivation. They all look well, remarkably well.

Mr. Feurstenberg led the way through the houses, pointing out this and that variety with his rose cane which evidently is intended for that purpose and to correct Eugene, as he playfully remarked to Mr. Bernheimer. Mr. Feurstenberg believes the gem of the rose collection is his September Morn. The rose is considered of rare value; the name is considered too long, so let us call it Morn. There are 11,000 Morns at the Florex Gardens. Some of the beds are in full crop, the substantial Enchantress-pink buds making so lovely a picture that Mr. Feurstenberg solemnly proposed a quarter entrance fee as a trifling return for value received.

Prima Donna comes next in point of interest. Donna is brighter in color this season than of yore; in fact, the contrast between Morn and Donna is striking. Champ Weiland, with its unmistakable Killarney resemblance, is on trial. So is Pink Ophelia, bearing the family likeness and a certain resemblance to good old Maryland. Mr. Feurstenberg's heart warms toward their own sport of White Killarney, a sport that blooms more freely at the Florex Gardens than Waban, white. Their sport in pink Mavourneen was out of crop. Daily Mail, or Mme. Herriot, is prized for its lovely color. Sweetheart is prized for its association and its strong habit of growth.

Next to the roses, interest centers in the wonderful new barn. It is fireproof, built of hollow tile, and so perfect that the time the sweet peas require room for expansion.

The office building and front garden are substantial and attractive. In the garden are California redwoods, on trial, Japanese maples and other pretty trees and shrubs. In the cozy little back office Henry C. Geiger had laid out a tea table that was charming in its artistic simplicity—just a bowl of delicate, pink September Morns, just brought in by the vice-president, William A. Geiger (no, not a relative), in honor of Mr. Feurstenberg's presence. Around the bowl blooms of their own Double White Killarney were carelessly scattered on the snowy cloth.

There were tea and delicious cake, enjoyed while Mr. Feurstenberg described how he planned the big house with the aid of R. O. King, formerly of North Tonawanda, N. Y., who now is in a British aviation camp. Laughing merrily, Mr. Feurstenberg described Mr. King's having been called to the telephone during their long conference. When Mr. King returned, he told Mr. Feurstenberg that he had described to the man at the other end of the wire how they were planning a greenhouse that would be 72x200 feet.

"What did your friend say?" Mr. Feurstenberg asked.

"Oh," Mr. King replied, "he said it must be for some crazy Yankee."

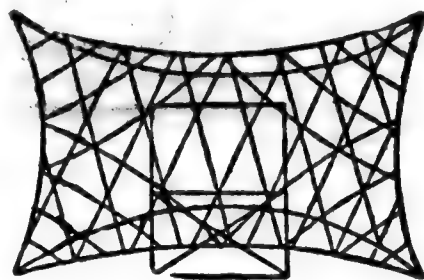

You see, that happened in Canada.

Continuing in a more serious vein, Mr. Feurstenberg said he felt he had proved the economy value of the big house. When this house was built, all the leading florists of the day doubted its practicability. Today they are all building big houses, not exactly the same as this one, but each in his own way is building a big house.

It was extremely interesting, and over all too soon, the setting sun and brilliant autumn foliage lending their rare beauty to the pleasure of the homeward ride. Phil.

Various Notes.

Mrs. John H. Claus celebrated her twenty-ninth business anniversary October 19 and 20, when a pretty souvenir was given each customer. The dates slightly anticipated the anniversary, but Mrs. Claus' success in business is due to being ahead of the times, and she wisely chose a Saturday for one of her days. Henry Claus assisted in making the affair a success.

The London Flower Shop has been making chrysanthemums a successful feature of a rather dull week. Mrs. Drew-Baer had the first Bonnaffons of the season, with Crystal Gem, Oconto and Pacific Supreme to add variety.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., reopened its store October 22 after a fortnight's close to fill bulb orders. J. Otto Thilow and George D. Clark said that, while a big lot of bulb orders had been filled, enough to take off the pressure, the force still had a lot to do. Mr. Clark believes, broadly speaking, that the supply will be sufficient.

Pennock Bros. are reminding their friends of the arrival of the season for buying house plants by a beautiful window display of Asplenium Nidus-avis, set off by pale green jardinières and rich bronze table covers.

Eugene Bernheimer's list of fourteen varieties of roses which he was receiving from the Florex Gardens, has been supplemented by the names of five others sent out from that enterprising establishment. They are Richmond,

J. M. Deutscher, of the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange, is delighted with the high-grade chrysanthemums and roses the house is receiving.

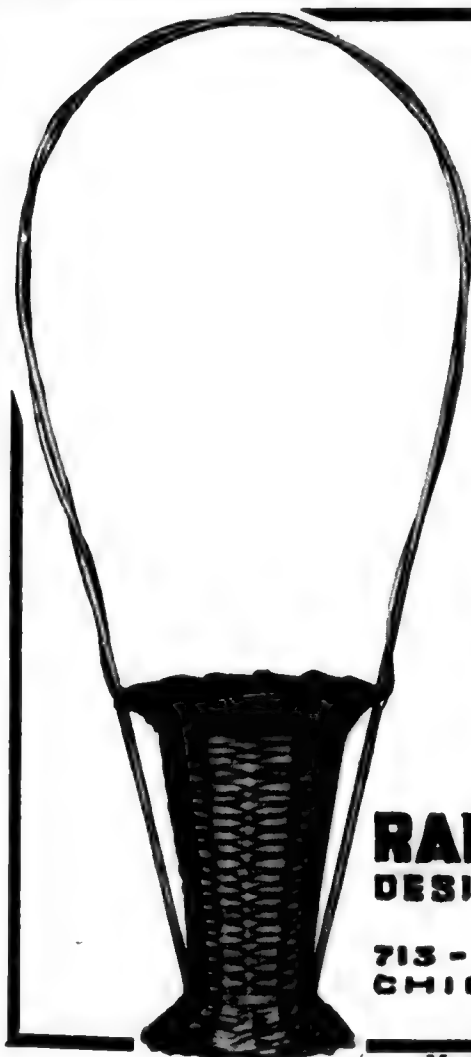

The Berger Bros. list of fine chrysanthemums includes Chrysolora, Robert Halliday, Pacific Supreme, Tint of Gold, October Frost and Early Rose. Their violets are superb.

A funny story is told of two business men—more experienced as florists than motorists—who got stuck in a Ford on the East Park drive when returning from a suburb to the city recently. They worked over the Henry unsuccessfully; called in their brother Henries who were passing, with no better result, and then went to a garage. The method of their relief was quick and to the point. The expert took out a long rule, lifted the front seat, poked in the rule, poured in some gasoline, and the Henry worked like a charm. Phil.

and Touset are the best chrysanthemums now arriving.

Roses are arriving in quantities, with the demand not so heavy owing to the presence of mums. Russells, Ophelias, Wards, Sunbursts and Richmonds are excellent, as are the Killarneys. Improved quality kept the prices up, but the lower grades brought less than a week ago. The best of the violets clear daily at fair prices. Carnations are up in price and the quality is good. All the Enchantress varieties are in better demand than the others. White and light pink carnations sell well, while red and dark pink find little demand. Orchids, valley and lilies arrive daily, but are not in oversupply by any means. Fancy valley brings $8 per hundred. All kinds of greens are in demand, especially smilax and asparagus.

Association Meeting.

The St. Louis Retail Florists' Association held its monthly meeting October 15 at Knights of Columbus hall. The attendance was large and the meeting interesting. President F. H. Weber presided. There was a warm discussion of a proposal to amend the by-laws so that the annual dues should be increased from $5 to $10 per year. When the question was put to a vote, it was decided by a large majority to retain the present dues.

Members of the association who attended the F. T. D. convention at Detroit were called upon and gave interesting accounts of the discussions and ideas presented at the meeting. As a result District Representative Fred C. Weber, Jr., said he expects that several members of the association will become members of the F. T. D.

Secretary Richard Tubbesing reported that the association is in good condition financially, and it is expected that the membership will be increased. "Our association is doing a great deal of good for the retailers, as at nearly every meeting something is brought up that is damaging to us and we act to stamp out the evil," he said. "Retailers who are not members of the association are receiving the benefits of our work, and it is up to them to come in with us and make the association 100 strong. This is the aim of the mem-

These are a very attractive holiday specialty for florists and sell rapidly. Many of our customers have handled them in large quantities for years. Last season the sale was particularly good, and this year, with the scarcity of European novelties, they will be more popular. Will pot up nicely in 5 inch, 6 inch and 8 inch pots. They can be used also for vases and placed in tubs for the veranda.

Order now. We can ship at once, or hold until December 1st.

The Market.

The expected slump in prices has materialized, attributable principally to the increased supplies of chrysanthemums and roses and the smaller purchases on the part of the retailers. Roses, which a few days ago were in eager demand at $4 for short-stemmed stock, are selling at one-fourth that figure, and all other grades have declined. American Beauties of the best grades make $20 to $25 per hundred, with the demand somewhat weak. Ophelia remains easily the leader in the hybrid tea class, with Shawyer, Russell, Hadley, Miller, Stanley and the Killarneys next in favor. Chrysanthemums are now abundant. Such varieties as Chieftain, Pacific Supreme, Unaka, Oconto, Halliday and Chrysolora are much in evidence. Even a few Bonnafons have appeared. There is a larger supply of pompons, but these clean up better than the big blooms.

Carnations are not abundant and their prices have not sunk so much in proportion as those of mums and roses. In addition to a larger supply of single violets, some doubles are now available. Only small lots of sweet peas, snapdragons and cornflowers are coming in, but pansies and yellow marguerites are somewhat more plentiful. Longiflorum lilies have taken a sharp drop, but good valley holds up to $8 to $10 per hundred. Cattleyas are now in liberal supply, and the prices are decidedly lower.

Various Notes.

R. S. Phelps, of Lexington, is cutting fine Halliday, White Chieftain, Pacific Supreme, Oconto and Bonnafon mums.

50 years' experience in the florist business guarantees efficiency to take care of all orders. 20 per cent allowed.

He has received none of his bulb shipments as yet. Mr. Phelps specializes in anemones and ranunculi and also forces hardy larkspurs successfully.

I am glad to report that H. F. Calder, of Norwood, who has been sick for about two years, is much improved in health and gaining flesh steadily. Mr. Calder made the first local shipments of Campbell violets last week.

Neil E. Boyle, of Malden, has some splendid houses of roses. He is cutting extra fine blooms of Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty and Dark Pink Killarney. He has his full coal supply in. Mr. Boyle had a small war garden this season and harvested 175 bushels of potatoes from three-fourths of an acre. Most of the potatoes he sold as soon as dug at $2 per bushel.

Several of the large cyclamen specialists are again having considerable trouble with mite this season. I have heard of a number of "sure cures" for this destructive pest, but a real remedy is lacking as yet.

Edward Bingham has finished cutting mums. He grows early ones only, and says he never had a more remunerative season. Single violets are being planted to follow mums.

J. K. Chandler & Sons, of Tewksbury, are shipping in quantities of Oconto and pompon mums, which are cleaning up well.

celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary by a banquet and ladies' night at Young's hotel, October 27. These annual gatherings are always enjoyable and the coming one promises to be the best ever.

William H. Elliott, in addition to roses, is marketing a splendid lot of bushy, well flowered mums in pots, including such varieties as Bon-ton, Miss Robinson, Roman Gold and the Caprices.

Norris F. Comley is cutting unusually fine Russell, Ophelia, Shawyer, Red Radiance, American Beauty and Stanley roses; also, a fine lot of single violets.

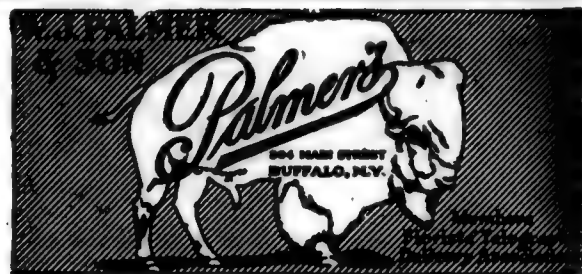

David Welch says the shipping trade with D. & E. J. Welch is good, and vastly superior to that of a year ago. About all orders are much larger than a year ago.

The nominating committee of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society announces the following candidates for the various offices to be filled at the annual meeting November 17: For president, Richard M. Saltonstall; vice-president, for two years, Charles S. Sargent; trustees, for three years, Thomas Allen, Walter Hunnewell, Charles W. Moseley, Thomas Roland; delegate to state board of agriculture, for three years, Samuel J. Goddard. In accordance with the by-laws of the society, two weeks are allowed for further nominations, should any be desired.

At F. E. Palmer's, Brookline, is to be seen a house containing 1,600 of the grandest cyclamens I have examined this season. The plants are in 5-inch pots to 8-inch pans, and carry good, leathery foliage. Stocks of primulas, chrysanthemums and other plants are in fine condition. An attractive nursery is now attached to Mr. Palmer's home in Newton street.

David H. Guild, of the Ames Implement and Seed Co., Boston, and Donald J. Crighton, of Readville, are members of the army medical corps. They expect to be sent across to France soon. Both are members of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club.

The writer visited the great military camp at Ayer, Mass., October 21, where 40,000 of the flower of American manhood are in training. Several men seen were connected with the florists' business and all seemed to be enjoying the open-air life and the somewhat strenuous duties they have to perform. Situated on high land, not far from historic Concord, the Ayer camp, covering nearly 1,000 acres, is a most charming spot. The woodlands, with their autumnal tints, were enchanting, the oaks, birches, sumachs and maples being especially beautiful. W. N. C.

The Market.

The market at the close of the last week was much depressed because of the oversupply of chrysanthemums and roses. The real reason for the instability of the market, however, was the flood of mums, which was beyond expectations. The early mums were still in the market, and with the additions of the later varieties the supply greatly exceeded the demand. Prices were about half of those a year ago. White varieties were abundant and the pink-dyed flowers made their appearance. There must have been twenty varieties of mums in the market October 20, among them being Bonnaffon, Chieftain, Golden Glow, Chrysolora, Golden Queen, Oconto, Early Frost, Polly Rose, Pacific and the pink and bronze Unakas.

The oversupply of roses caused the prices to fall. The best hybrid perpetual roses were easily disposed of. American Beauties sold for $30 per hundred, while Hadley roses have reached $20 per hundred. Prima Donna, Mock and Ophelia roses are as popular as ever.

The carnation shipments increased in size daily and the price of the best of them was $3 per hundred. There is still much room for improvement in stem and quality of bloom. Longiflorum lilies hold well at $8 per hundred for the best, and the supply and demand are about equal. Valley is selling at lower prices, $8 being asked for the selected. The supply of gardenias is limited. With the exception of a few fancy flowers, the top for orchids is 35 cents apiece. Many sell at 25 cents and lower.

Violets are of better quality. The best flowers sold October 20 at 40 cents per hundred, but the majority brought 25 to 35 cents per hundred. There were a few asters and dahlias in the market October 20, but they found little sale. Cosmos are still fine. Tritomas are buyers. The company has been having unique window decorations, the latest being a menagerie of farm animals, birds and fish.

The Stump & Walter Co. windows contain everything that a gardener can use, with a display of seasonable flowers to add color. The sudden death of Mrs. W. A. Sperling, wife of the secretary of the company, was a shock to the trade.
J. Austin Shaw.

BALTIMORE, MD.

The Leading Topic.

Everywhere one goes these days the principal topic of discussion is publicity. Among florists the question of flower publicity comes second only to the Liberty loan.

I think that, at the beginning of this campaign for flowers, the most important thing is first to educate the florists themselves; namely, that the publicity which will benefit the trade as a whole also will benefit the individual. I do not mean to discourage individual advertising in local papers, through window displays, or any other way the local florist keeps his business before the public. When this great campaign gets under way, when everyone sees a reminder of flowers, the florist who makes it a point to advertise his business and keep it before the public is the one who is going to reap the largest rewards.

Do not be afraid of sentiment in your publicity. Remember that nearly every sale of flowers is for one of the following occasions: Births, deaths, marriages or the anniversary of some happy or sad event, every one of which is teeming with sentiment. Appeal to the sentiment; there is plenty of it in the most of us. We want to arouse the sentiment, and that is just what this campaign is for. It is going to be a great thing for every florist in the country in dollars and cents; it is going to make our country a much better place in which to live.

It is a fine thing to see how the florists of this city are taking up the S. A. F. publicity; how everyone is putting his shoulder to the wheel; how all are coöperating with the subcommittee appointed by Chairman Asmus; how everyone is doing his part that the committee's slogan, "Not a slacker in Maryland," may be carried out.

Let me add that this is a campaign for growers and retailers alike. The sole object of it is to sell more flowers, and everyone is interested, from the man who builds greenhouses to the man who sells ribbons. The main thing is for all to get together and make it a grand success.

Various Notes.

At Robert L. Graham's store on North avenue there was a picture window last week that attracted much attention. It was a clever piece of work—a waterfall gushing out of a bank of autumn foliage over moss-covered rocks and falling into a miniature stream. Much sheet moss was used, with pond lilies in the stream. There were miniature electric lights through the foliage, and wild flowers along the stream, so that the whole suggested a nook in a wood. I asked if such a window justified the trouble and expense, and Mr. Graham said he was more than satisfied with the results.

Mary Johnston has become a member of the F. T. D. She is going to make this a feature of the business, is going after the receiving and sending of telegraph orders in earnest. This is a feature of the business that every retail store in the city should take up, for nearly all of the telegraph orders will be new business. Anyone can see that the F. T. D. is here to stay; now is the time to get in and work up this line.

The growers were busy getting in their bulbs last week, and, from what I have heard, the bulbs are all in good condition. Maybe there will be no great shortage of bulbous stock this winter.

Business was reported good at the wholesale houses last week. Roses are coming in better, the short-stemmed being especially plentiful, with prices ranging from $5 to $10 for the best. Carnations are none too plentiful as yet, but those coming in are of fairly good quality, with stems becoming longer each week. All outdoor stock is about over, so that everyone is fast getting down to normal business.

In another month Thanksgiving will be here. The first German will be December 1, and this will open the social season in earnest, with business off in full swing. Everyone is ready for a record-breaking season, with the outlook good for plenty of stock. Tate.

DETROIT, MICH.

The Market.

 Business demands of last week were far too heavy for the local growers, but out-of-town shipments saved the day.
Stock has been off crop, but the outlook for the coming fortnight indicates an overabundance of everything. The passing of outdoor flowers naturally is increasing sales and bringing in more business.

 Mums are of good quality, although not many have come in. They range in price up to $4 per dozen. Pompons are scarce and in great demand.

 Beauties are of best quality but not in oversupply. They run as high as $4 per dozen.

 Other good roses, such as Russell,
Ophelia, Shawyer and Hoosier Beauty also have stiffened in price, but sell readily. Shorter roses clear each day.

 Orchids and valley are in the same good demand and violets sell as well as could be expected, as stock is not up to par as yet.

 Lilies, both Harrisii and rubrum, are scarce, with the demand good.

 Carnations are of good quality, but short in quantity and high in price.

 Short cut snapdragon sells readily,
also calendulas.

 Greens of all kinds are to be had in any quantity.

Various Notes.

 A choice lot of mums is to be seen at Thos. Browne's Redford greenhouses, which are being cut and shipped daily to the market.

 A. J. Stahelin, also of Redford, Mich.,
has a fine crop of Russell, Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty and Aaron Ward roses coming on. He is cutting a few fine pompons.

 Joseph Streit, 1366 McClellan avenue, reports a fine lot of plants coming on for the fall trade.

ENCLOSED find check for 50 cents to pay for my little two-line ad. This is the best spent of any 50 cents I ever spent.—Charles Taynor, New Carlisle, O.

PLEASE cut out my geranium ad, as I have to return checks and the postmaster is getting tired handling my mail from only one week's ad.—C. W. Seibert, Hicksville, O.

PLEASE stop the ad, as I am compelled to return checks after having sold all I had. The only way to keep up with The Review is to have a great many more of an article than you think you can possibly sell.—Ernst Manthey, Jr., St. Bernard, O.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

It will be many a long day till the price of seeds is back to the level of 1914.

EDWARD MONROE HALSTED, for many years connected with the Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago, died in Los Angeles, Cal., October 21.

As showing how the war has drawn on the forces of leading British seedsmen, it may be noted that sixty-eight members of the staff of Kelway & Son have joined the colors.

MANY seedsmen will be interested in Farmers' Bulletin No. 797, recently issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. It is entitled, "Sweet Clover: Growing the Crop," by H. S. Coe.

THERE are reports of large losses on Dutch bulbs, due to the delay in delivery of the cargo of the Waaldyk, but the extent of the damage is not readily ascertainable, as some lots show no damage at all and other lots indicate considerable or even total loss.

THE cauliflower crop on Long Island is reported good. The plants have had fine weather. The Indian summer and the cool nights have worked wonders with the crop. "However, we do not believe that there will be any low-priced cauliflower," says a correspondent.

AT a recent meeting of the Michigan Bean Growers' Association, President Cook argued that the grower should receive $8 per bushel for his crop and the only dissent was by canners who profess to believe that consumption will be curtailed by excessive prices. The matter is mentioned here only as an indication of what the seed grower is going up against when he starts out to get 1918 acreage.

WORK on most of the 1918 catalogues is nearing completion. In a good many cases the books have been cut down in size and the number of copies printed also will be reduced. What with the high cost of paper and halftones and the short supply of nearly all kinds of seeds, there seems no reason for sending an expensive book to people who have not bought for several years. Consequently, mailing lists are being pruned more sharply than ever before.

THE importers have awakened to the fact that the Dutch bulbs are costing them more than they figured. Not only have the prices of bulbs risen sharply in Holland, but the cost of getting them into the American importer's store is almost double what it was last year, in most cases considerably more than had been estimated would be the case. One man figured it out that tulips which cost him $9 per thousand in Holland cost $13.06 on his floor.

THE SEED GROWERS' SITUATION.

"Conditions in the seed trade have been such," says John L. Hunt, of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., "that for many months we have had to refuse all business except such as comes from our regular customer of years' standing and, indeed, are not able to supply them with anything like the quantities they require. With potatoes, wheat, beans and every farm crop at the present high level of prices, it is quite impossible to interest the farmer in growing anything like normal quantities of seeds and the result is that we are spending more time in telling people that we cannot offer than we are in booking orders."

OHIO SEED CORN DAMAGED.

C. S. Clark & Son, seed corn specialists at Wakeman, O., report that one-half their crop of seed corn, growing in northern Ohio, is late and uncertain for seed purposes. What is left, that was not frosted, does not dry. The weather has been so cold and wet that the topped corn is standing still. A hard freeze within the next two or three weeks would just about ruin this crop for seed purposes. "Not in our forty years of experience," say Clark & Son, "have we seen the crop in such critical condition. October 22 usually finds sixty per cent of our crops dry, but today not five per cent of this crop has started to dry."

kildson believes in advertising. A Philadelphia newspaper recently printed Mr. Therkildson's picture with the following little sketch about him: "As a Philadelphian, W. F. Therkildson is quite a juvenile. He has been in this city only four years, but has become firmly rooted as a business factor in the Quaker City and takes a prominent part in its activities. He is a leading member of the Chamber of Commerce and failed of election to the board of directors of that body on the 'live-wire' ticket recently by only fifteen votes. He is serving his second term as secretary of the Poor Richard Club and is president of the Ohio Society of Philadelphia." Which is where the advertiser is advertised.

PACIFIC COAST SEED NOTES.

Sacramento county this year will produce at least $1,000,000 worth of garden seeds, according to M. P. Barnes, president of the Hood Improvement Co. He said the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., of Gilroy, Cal., is now operating night and day, cleaning seeds for shipment to the eastern markets, and is also filling a large order for the United States Department of Agriculture.

The Bamberger Seed Co. is establishing its main office and salesroom at 728 Tenth street, Modesto, Cal.

The old Rees R. Thompson ranch of 525 acres near Stockton, Cal., has been purchased by Wallace Hoyt, of San Francisco, who plans to make a seed farm of the place. It is understood the greater portion of the land will be planted to seed onions of all varieties.

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

Wood, Stubbs & Co., of Louisville, Ky., report the supply of and demand for Kentucky blue grass fully equal to last year's. The uncertainty of the future business was illustrated in a mammoth Kentucky field pumpkin. The pumpkin was known to weigh the amount recorded, but this was no guide to the number of seeds contained inside.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

The back of the mum glut may be said to be broken, and from now on all the varieties will be scarcer. These will be fine stock, if the rain holds off, and just at present there seems no likelihood of anything but fine weather. What helps the mums, however, is bad for the violets, and up to the time of writing there has been no violet stock fit to ship over a long distance. The violet fields are wasting their fragrance, to the dismay of the growers.

Pompons are more largely grown than formerly, and in some colors the supply exceeds the demand considerably. The fine weather also keeps the dahlia supply good. The flowers now are finer than they have been all season. In this section the dahlia seems to be increasingly popular every year. Carnations are fairly plentiful, but a good rain would improve them, too, after the first flowers are gone. Greenhouse carnations are better than for some time.

There is a scarcity of small flowers, or, rather, a lack of variety, especially among those fit for shipping. Orchids are more plentiful. Valley is still on the scarce side. Cecile Brunner roses are plentiful; gardenias are scarce. The water lilies are holding out late this year and some fine ones are still shown. Greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

R. J. Bowen, of J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore, Md., has been making a tour of the Pacific coast. He has been looking up seed matters, and has been visiting Santa Ana, Los Angeles and other cities. This is Mr. Bowen's first visit to the coast, and he expresses himself as being greatly interested in all he has seen.

Indications are good for oil at Montebello. One big producer well is going strongly, and some of the nurserymen and cut flower growers already are reaping. Among them are Howard & Smith, J. Dieterich, the H. N. Gage Co. and K. Groen. The well being drilled at the Howard & Smith place is practically certain to produce oil soon.

John Fincken has made considerable improvement in his place on West Washington street, and everything is now in fine shape. He has several good landscape jobs on hand, and this part of his business is increasing. Jack d'Ortignac is now a member of the staff of the cut flower department.

J. Dieterich, on his return from San Francisco, spoke highly of the hospitality of the northern brethren and reports a pleasant and profitable time. He explained the uses to which he will put the natural gas, oil and hot air of Montebello, in the heating of his greenhouses and lath houses. At the nursery on Wall street a fine showing of kentias and other palms is being made.

"The season just closed has been a most successful one, and we are more than pleased with the results of the advertising we carried in The Review." — Los Robles Nursery, Santa Cruz, Cal., Sept. 17, 1917.

Tassano Bros. say that their contracts for greens this year are larger than ever, and it has been difficult to get hold of enough stock. Angelo Tassano has made an extended trip of several weeks through the Santa Cruz and adjacent territory, and has lined up a large amount of first-class stock for the coming season's trade. Meanwhile Tony is kept busy looking after the store and the two growing places at Glendale and Artesia. Big cuts of plumosus and Sprengeri are coming from Artesia, while adiantum from the Glendale place is in big demand.

At the golden wedding of ex-Mayor W. Workman, better known as "Uncle Billy" Workman, Morris Goldenson had several orders for baskets and designs. Mr. Goldenson says he distinctly remembers delivering flowers to the same house and the same couple on a silver wedding anniversary twenty-five years ago.

At O. C. Saake's the whole force was found busy at funeral work.

For the Workman wedding celebration F. Lichtenberg was commissioned to arrange the flowers. Practically every retailer in the city was represented by one or more pieces, and the number from some was large. Bert Bateman and Fred Dostal, of the Lichtenberg force, were deputed to the task of arrangement, and it was "some" task. Every conceivable design, from a basket to a plain bunch, was represented and a magnificent display resulted.

Frank Nelson is wearing the broad, expansive smile these days. Business is good with the Broadway Florist, and the White Sox—well, we won't go into history.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Helmer, of Santa Barbara, were visitors this week. Mrs. Helmer is, no doubt, looking up stock for the flower end of the business, and Mr. Helmer is keeping an eye open for nursery stock.

Chicago, has purchased a 5-acre plot at Huntington park, which seems to be developing into valuable property. Mr. Reichling has invested at the right moment and should make a good thing of it.

E. Edouart, one of the most popular and best-posted men in the horticultural department here, is taking a trip of a couple of weeks to San Francisco and other northern points.

O. M. Morris, head of the firm of Morris & Snow, and Albert Morris, his son, left for Santa Barbara October 17. They have a fine collection of dahlias at the show in their city.

A fine exhibit of dahlias was held at the Broadway department store October 18 and 19. Among the principal prize-winners were C. Gutting, of the Superior Nursery, and F. Sherard, of the Moneta Dahlia Gardens. The judges had considerable difficulty in awarding the prizes, especially for the premier bloom of the show, the prize eventually going to a perfect flower of that lovely cactus, F. C. Moore. Miss Morris, H. W. Turner and H. R. Richards were the judges.

A number of the most prominent men in the nursery, seed and florists' business met in the store of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., October 17, to discuss the best means of getting employees and others to take an interest in Liberty bonds. M. L. Germain described how he intended to get the staff interested. He speaks personally to every one of the hundred and more employees, and wherever an individual, through any cause whatever, is unable to subscribe, Mr. Germain puts the resources of the house behind him or her and lends the money. No wonder the spirit of the Germain employees is good! Fred Howard spoke for the nursery end, followed by M. Neyberg and Theodore Payne. S. Murata spoke of the spirit behind the Japanese florists, who, he said, while unable to fight in the American army, would do their "bit" by subscribing to the bonds. Walter Haltori, of S. Murata & Co., and F. Seki were also present. Messrs. Aggeler and Musser also spoke of the fine spirit shown by their own employees along the same line.

in considerable quantities, but the bulk of out-of-town business is still in chrysanthemums, and they probably will continue as the dominant feature for several weeks to come. Of the varieties much in evidence now, Chieftain, Chrysolora, Queen, Jeffries and Bonnaffon show splendid quality and find a ready market. Many other varieties also clean up. In fact, there seems to be no limit to the number of chrysanthemums that can be disposed of daily without sacrifice. The supply of pompons continues to increase and the same is true of small mums. Retail prices are lower as a result of the heavy receipts, but good shipping stock holds firm.

Roses are in better supply and the quality has improved in the last few days. There is a good cut of Ophelia, and Russell and Ward both make a fine showing. American Beauties are still a minus quantity, however. Cecil Brunner roses are arriving freely, and a good many are being shipped to eastern points. The supply of carnations is improving steadily both in quality and quantity, there being plenty of blooms now to fill all requirements. Orchids are equal to the demand for the first time in several months, much to the satisfaction of the larger downtown retailers. There are plenty of gardenias also, and valley is in fair supply. A few dahlias continue to arrive, but they do not amount to much. Asters are practically gone. In flowering plants, cyclamens are the leading feature.

Various Notes.

A rush of work made it necessary for Albert O. Stein's force to remain on duty all night twice last week. Besides a large amount of funeral work, including four palis, Mr. Stein had one of the largest wedding decorations ever carried out in San Francisco. It was the Dinkelspiel-Schwabacher wedding in the Temple Emanu-El. Quantities of flowers were used, principally chrysanthemums.

Horace Cheeseman has been calling on the trade in the interests of Ralph M. Ward & Co.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee reports the largest shipping season in the history of her business. She is sending out quantities of chrysanthemums, and is starting to ship violets from her place at Colma. Besides, retail business is active, there being a rush of wedding and funeral work.

In connection with the Liberty loan campaign, MacRorie & McLaren had a unique window display, showing the Liberty bell in flowers. Daniel MacRorie has gone to Los Angeles on a short business trip. Donald McLaren is touring the central part of the state by automobile, and Walter Hofinghoff has just returned to his desk after a 12-day trip in Nevada and Utah. At the land show on upper Market street MacRorie & McLaren put in a representation of Balboa terrace in conjunction with a real estate firm's exhibit, and is also showing motion pictures of growing cyclamen plants.

The regular meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society was well attended, most of the routine business being suspended on account of the smoker which followed. Prof. E. O. Essig, of the University of California, gave an interesting stereopticon lecture on "Insects." The only exhibit was a splendid showing of hybrids of Cattleya labiata by J. A. Carbone, of Berkeley, which was awarded ninety-seven points. The blooms were later shown in the window of MacRorie & McLaren's store, where they attracted much attention. J. Dieterich, of Los Angeles, was a guest at the meeting.

Fred Bertrand, manager for B. M. Joseph, says his principal difficulty is in getting experienced help.

To handle the rush in shipping chrysanthemums, the E. W. McLellan Co. put on six extra men October 17.

The Kooyman Co., Inc., has just received a large shipment of baskets from the east. G. Madvig, treasurer of the company, says the demand for chrysanthemums continues to increase.

The scale of points used by the judges was: Color, twenty-five; stem, twenty-five; formation, twenty; size, fifteen; productiveness, fifteen.

Dr. Harry Tevis is a giant decorative dahlia and caused considerable comment. It has all the good dahlia points and is a shade of salmon rose, suffused with old gold. Pride of California is a large red decorative dahlia and was classed as the best red dahlia shown. It has a long, stiff stem, good keeping qualities and a productiveness that is hard to beat. Francis Burns, Jr., and Mrs. Francis Burns are pink decorative dahlias, which were admired for their soft shades and commercial value, the flowers being of good size on straight stems. The Grizzly is considered a break in the dahlia. It is a hybrid decorative dahlia of prolific growth, having 3-foot stems and dark velvet maroon flowers, measuring ten inches. Helio is a yellow peony; Ruth Gladell, a hybrid cactus, salmon pink to yellow; Mrs. Edna Spencer, a lavender pink hybrid cactus, and Grampton, a wine-red decorative dahlia. All of these are good varieties and showed up well in the garden.

J. H. Slocombe, New Haven, Conn., entered the Rev. J. S. Slocombe, a decorative yellow dahlia, and R. W. Rowe, a decorative buff and yellow dahlia. Both are creditable dahlias. Many other good dahlias were exhibited, but, because of weak stems and other bad habits, they did not compare with the winners.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

There is great rejoicing among all members of the trade. At last a good, killing frost has blackened all the gardens, the flowers from which have proved so serious an obstacle to profitable flower selling. Business began to improve the day after the freeze, and has continued to improve with each succeeding day. It is time for better business, too, as every greenhouse is bulging with stock for the market.

Various Notes.

The only case of serious damage by the frost was at the Glenrose Greenhouses, where several hundred mums were frozen, and where considerable damage was done to a sweet pea crop.

At the Davenport Flower Shop there appears to be much going on. The decoration of the hotel and restaurant, added to the counter trade at the store, requires the constant attention of three people, with occasionally a couple of extras. Arthur Boehning, who, about ten years ago, was a delivery boy for F. C. Weber, of St. Louis, is in charge, and has as his assistants George Skinner and Miss Ruth Hollenback.

Carl L. Gross, representing the S. S. Pennock Co., of Philadelphia, stopped over for a few days last week. Business has been good everywhere he stopped, he says.

Our principal aim is to best distribute the product of our large greenhouses at Sawtelle, Cal.

We have 125,000 feet of modern glass in Beauties, Roses, Valley, Orchids, Lilies and Flowering Plants, and seven acres of lath devoted to Asparagus Plumosus sprays and strings, Asparagus Sprengeri and Smilax. This insures a steady green supply.

We will also do a local shipping business in all seasonable flowers—Chrysanthemums, Carnations, Violets and Florists' Supplies.

AN ORIGINAL TRUCK IDEA.

Hoyt Bros. Co., Spokane, Wash., believes it has originated the ideal body for a delivery truck. The car is the result of more than a year of work. A Ford chassis was used. The sedan body follows the lines of others of that type, except that it is higher and longer, and the doors are two inches wider. The driver's seat and the interior are upholstered down to the glass line the same as any sedan car. From the glass line down leatherette was used. All the glass slides up and down in anti-rattler devices. The car is electric lighted and is heated from the exhaust of the engine. There is a removable slat platform across the back, which is handy for carrying big boxes, or bedding and potted plants. The driver is comfortable in all kinds of weather, is uniformed and can step from his car with the flowers to be delivered without being required to touch the street. This latter is a good feature, as there is no possibility of muddy feet to soil the customer's porch. The company has had the car in service two months, and believes it has done nothing in an advertising way that has brought into the store more complimentary remarks, and it usually follows that orders come quickly after.

TACOMA, WASH.

The Market.

Business conditions as a whole are satisfactory for this season of the year, though some of the florists think that a good frost to stop the dahlias and other outdoor flowers would stimulate business a little. Flowers are more plentiful than they have been for some time. The new crop of carnations is coming on finely.

A few home-grown mums are being shown in competition with a large supply of California stock, which is arriving in fine shape. California violets have made their appearance. Locally grown roses are plentiful now, with Ophelia, as usual, the favorite.

The new army cantonment, Camp Lewis, which is about twelve miles south of town, is bringing good business to the florists. There are between 35,000 and 40,000 officers and men stationed there, with several thousand more to come. Everyone is entertaining the men, and this creates a demand for table decorations and corsage bouquets.

Various Notes.

Arthur Smith, of the Smith Floral Co., reports good business in funeral work and other orders.

Henry Benthien has a house of fine late asters in full crop.

H. R. Hopkins, of Hopkins Bros., Auburn, was a visitor this week. Mr. Hopkins says the outlook is good for a large cut of carnations at the range.

A. G. Seamons took a trip to Seattle last week. He visited some of the greenhouses and reports everything in first-class order.

Miss Bertha Giertz, of the Hayden-Watson Co., has taken charge of the company's branch store at Aberdeen. Miss Giertz has the best wishes of her many friends for success in her new position.

Joseph Ghilarducci, the California Florist, is not saying much these days, but we infer from his satisfied look and the way he chews the ends of those 2-bit cigars that business is good at his store. A. S.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Frost has cut off outdoor flowers, making business brisker than for several weeks. Clear weather is favorable to the roses and carnations, which are arriving in good supply. Chrysanthemums are being shipped in from California, while of the local mums Chrysolora is the first to come to market. Pompons are enjoying much favor, and violets, both single and double, are becoming more plentiful.

NEW GREENS FROM CANADA

Cedar Fronds. Most useful for florists' work; keep in good condition for months. Packages of 100, 6 to 9 in. long, $3.50 per 1000. (Special prices on cedar branches on application.)

Oregon Grape. Very effective in design work, also sell well for parlor decoration, put in damp soil or water; keep for long time; come in varied shades of green, as season advances some turn red, brown, bronze and purple. Once tried, repeat orders follow. Per 1000, $3.50.

Salal. One of our native plants, green all winter, sprays very useful. Per lb., 35 cts.

Vaccinium. This shrub turns from green to bronze-red as season advances and is in a class all by itself. Sprays from 1 to 2 feet. Per lb., 35 cts.

All these goods take classification as "Florists' Cuttings" and take N. or second class express rate. Rate to Chicago is $7.50 per 100 lbs. U. S. duty is 10 per cent and port of entry is Portal, North Dakota. Orders with cash receive preference. Trial order solicited. Canadian florists now use these largely.

Floral Society Meeting.

The meeting of the Portland Floral Society, which occurred October 16, was well attended and much interest developed in plans to increase the membership. Some fifty of the local florists were present and nine new applications for membership received, which is a good showing, although a long way from reaching the desired enrollment of 100. However, the spirit of coöperation which characterized proceedings, and the enthusiasm which was manifested for the plans of the club, promise well for the future.

A. J. Clarke, of the retailers' committee, reported that the dealers have decided to charge for boxes in all flower shipments. A uniform price list will be sent to each store. Mr. Clarke referred to the article in a recent issue of The Review on "How to Get More Profit Out of Business" and discussed the difference between the costs, as stated for the eastern trade, and the percentage obtaining in the west. The percentage of costs in the estimate in The Review was thirty-three and one-third per cent of the gross sales, while

Mr. Clarke believes it is rarely so low as this in the west. On the other hand, some items in the overhead are somewhat less for the western trade than the eastern figures showed.

A report was read from Prof. A. L. Lovett, of the Oregon Agricultural College, on the tarnish bug. As no means of combating the ravages of this pest has been discovered, the writer advised burning all outdoor stock, as the bug hibernates during the winter.

The campaign for the $50,000 advertising fund of the S. A. F. was brought to the attention of the society by James Forbes. This project was so well received by the members that subscriptions were pledged in the same proportion for Oregon as for the Liberty loan. The list of contributors follows:

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.

President, Lloyd O. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.;
Vice-president, J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie,
Tex.; Secretary and Counsel, Curtis Nye Smith,
19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, J. W.
Hill, Des Moines, Ia..

IN England it is stated that the number of export orders, especially for the United States, exceeds anything known in the past. The orders for nursery stock are particularly heavy.

WILLIAM A. PETERSON, the Chicago nurseryman, wears the golden star of the members of the Forest Preserve Commission of which Peter Reinberg, the well known florist and president of the Board of County Commissioners, is chairman.

THEODORE J. SMITH, of W. & T. Smith Co., Geneva, N. Y., recently resigned as a member of the executive committee of the American Association of Nurserymen and J. Edward Moon, of Morrisville, Pa., has been elected by the executive committee to fill the vacancy.

WORKERS at the nurseries in Chester county, Pa., are extremely scarce this fall. In former years scores of so-called "tramp" workmen reported each fall and spring for the nursery work, but this year there are few of them. One of the leading nurserymen says that many of his experienced men have been attracted by the unusually high wages at the munition plants, and that the labor shortage will remain acute as long as the war lasts.

CALIFORNIA ASSOCIATION.

The California Nurserymen's Association, in annual convention in San Jose, elected the following officers: President, Max J. Crowe, of Gilroy; vice-presidents, J. E. Bergtholdt, of Newcastle, Charles W. Howard, of Hemet, Henry Ruehl, of San Jose, T. E. Mabey, of Fresno, and George F. Otto, of San Diego; secretary-treasurer, Henry W. Kruckeberg. The selection of the next meeting place was left to the executive committee. A ladies' auxiliary was organized with officers as follows: President, Mrs. John Vallance, of Oakland; vice-president, Mrs. Henry Ruehl, of San Jose; treasurer, Mrs. C. E. Jackson, of Cupertino; secretary, Mrs. E. H. Elmer, of San Jose. S. H. G.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

The debilitating forces have been overthrown and the market has reclaimed itself. The feeling of restraint in accepting orders has ceased, and one breathes more easily. It is a hard proposition to make the public understand the shortage of flowers, for the people feel that is the florist's business and up to him.

Conditions did not make a right-about-face—not in the least—but stock is in more ample supply and of large variety.

DWARF TYPE OF BERBERIS THUNBERGII

New Edge and Dwarf Hedge Plant

ORIGINATED at our Nursery sixteen years ago among a batch of Japan Barberry seedlings. It attracted attention in the seedling bed and has been under careful watching since. The original plant is now about two and one-half feet wide, and globe-like in shape, its natural form.

It is pronounced a most valuable find by all who have seen either the original plant or the stock we have propagated from it, including experienced nurserymen, landscape architects and gardeners, experiment station men and amateurs.

The public will take to it immediately. It's just what is wanted. As a formal-garden edge plant it is ideal—this means thousands of it for many a single order. Equally desirable as a low and medium hedge plant, assuring a heavy demand. Trims into perfect formal specimens.

Propagates readily from either hard or soft wood cuttings. Will not come true from seed.

OFFERED TO THE TRADE FALL, 1917—NO RESTRICTIONS

Offered to the general public and will and will be freely advertised in Fall, 1918, and Spring, 1919. Get up a stock and be ready for the certain heavy demand.

WILD BROS. NURSERY CO.

Sarcozie Nurseries Peony Fields

SARCOXIE, MISSOURI

from $2 to $8. There is good stock of Ophelia. Russell and Hoosier Beauty roses also are available.

Chrysanthemums have begun to make a good showing. There are some large blooms; especially good are Poehlmann

Easter lilies continue short and bring $1.50 per dozen. A few callas have helped out. Carnations are of good quality, but somehow will not increase in quantity. During previous years at the chrysanthemum season, carnations did well at $1.50 and $2 per hundred. This year they bring $2 and $3, with a few extra selects making $4 per hundred. Violets are more satisfactory, at 60 cents per hundred. Orchids are in good supply and move at the same price, $7.50 per dozen.

The green goods market is in satisfactory condition. Smilax, fern leaves, plumosus and Sprengerii are plentiful. The potted plant line has had a few additions, the Jerusalem cherries and potted chrysanthemum plants gaining in favor.

Improving Every Day

We have told you that Mrs. Henry Winnett is the best red rose that has ever been offered to the trade and every week that goes by strengthens that opinion we hold of this new rose. If there is a weakness, it has never been shown. It outgrows and outblooms anything in the list. The color is excellent. The keeping quality is there. It is a rose to be proud of. It is the red rose that you will eventually grow. Come to Cromwell and see. The rose itself will convince you.

GLEN COVE DAHLIA SHOW.

The annual dahlia show of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, October 9. It was notable for the large number of exhibitors and the excellent quality of the flowers. The principal prize-winners were: John W. Everitt, John F. Johnston, J. Kirby, William Noonan, P. W. Popp, Joseph Robinson, H. Gaut, Thomas Henderson, F. C. Johnson, Thomas Twigg, R. Jones, J. Mastroiani, James McCarthy and George Platt. J. Kirby won the H. A. Dreer silver cup for the best collection of twenty-five varieties of dahlias. John W. Everitt won permanent possession of the Townsend silver cup for the best collection of outdoor roses. The judges were Alexander Mackenzie, E. Mackenzie, William Waite, William Gray and S. J. Trepess. James Gladstone, the hard-working manager, deserves much credit for the excellent arrangement of the exhibits.

The monthly meeting of the society was held October 10, with President James McCarthy in the chair. Otto Laub was elected an active member and three petitions were received. The president appointed Robert Jones, Thomas Flyn and Frank Watson to judge the exhibits. Their awards were as follows: William Noonan, first, for six peony-flowered dahlias; first for six cactus and first for six decorative dahlias. Mr. Noonan gave an interesting talk on his method of cultivation. Robert Jones and Thomas Twigg each offered a prize of $5 for the best table decoration of chrysanthemums at the next meeting, for assistant gardeners only. James Gladstone was appointed manager of the mum show to be held November 1 and 2. It was agreed to hold the annual smoker at the conclusion of the next meeting.

Harry Goodband, Cor. Sec'y.

Rock Island, Ill.—Henry Klehm, of the Klehm establishment at Moline, is reported to be making arrangements for the organization of a company to produce stock, and to market the stock by means of a store in each of the quadrities. Four greenhouses with a ground area of 96,800 square feet are to be erected, probably at Barstow, Ill., where Seventy-three acres of suitable land are available. The company is to specialize in six varieties of roses and nine varieties of carnations, it is said. The capital stock of the proposed corporation is set at $300,000.

DREER'S SELECT FRENCH HYDRANGEAS

Realizing that the practical elimination of Azaleas and other imported plants for Easter forcing will create an extraordinary demand for Hydrangeas, we have made every possible effort to prepare a sufficient supply of these useful plants.

We have the largest and most up-to-date stock of French Hydrangeas in this country. Our plants this year promise to be the best we have ever offered. The demand exceeds that of all previous years. Orders will be reserved in strict rotation. If you want some of these for Easter forcing, you should place your order at once for immediate or later delivery.

The varieties named below are offered, except where noted:

6-inch pots, at 35.00 per 100.

Attraction. A very pretty pink, early and free.
Avalanche. A deservedly popular white variety.
Beaute Vendomoise. Immense heads of white flowers tinted pink. The individual florets attain a diameter of four inches.
Directeur Vuillermet. Great trusses of good substantial, pretty pink, fringed, medium-sized florets.
Eclairer. Carmine-rose.
E. G. Hill. Trusses of immense size. Color a very pleasing pink. Early, vigorous.
Galathea. Large trusses. White, changing to pink; fringed.
General de Vibraye. One of the most popular and reliable pink sorts.
La France. A new fringed white of vigorous habit and producing large trusses.
La Lorraine. Large flowers, pale rose, turning to bright pink.
La Perle. An exceedingly attractive white variety with large fringed flowers.
L'Islette. Rosy-carmine. Large trusses of deeply fringed flowers. A very promising and reliable sort.
 6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.
Louis Mouillere. A fine deep rose-pink. Substantial and vigorous.
Mme. A. Rich. Late, free, sturdy, good compact pink.
Mme. Aug. Nonin. An unusually pretty clear pale-pink. Growth vigorous. Foliage strong and attractive.
 6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.
Mme. E. Mouillere. Large white.
Mme. Legou. Immense trusses of compactly placed florets, pure white.
Mme. B. Jacquet. An unusually attractive variety of unique coloring. The flowers when opening remind one of clusters of apple blossoms.
 6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.
Mont Rose. Immense panicles of pale-rose flowers. Early and practically everblooming.

Opale. Quite distinct in color. A lively pale rose with attractive pale-green, vigorous foliage.

6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.

Radiant. A reliable and popular carmine-rose.

Souv. de Lieut. Chaure. Immense heads of bright rose-carmine, flowers on bold upright stems.

Souv. de Mme. E. Chautard. Deservedly the most popular forcing variety. Early and free. Bright rose.

Souv. de Mme. Victor Raoul. Very large lively rose.

Vieux Chateau. Late, large, vigorous, fringed white, shading to pale-rose. A striking novelty.

Otaksa. The old reliable form still fancied by many. We have an immense stock of well-grown plants.

We have also limited stocks of the following in 7-inch pots, which we offer at 75 cents each; $8.00 per dozen.

The Market.

A week of sharp weather, with light snowfalls and heavy frosts, has improved business. Stock is arriving in good variety and of fine quality. Chrysanthemums are of superior grade, with long and strong stems and heavy blooms. Roses are plentiful and moderate in price. Milady sells well and Richmond is always popular. Of Killarney, both the pink and white varieties are fine and full and they find a ready market. Violets are here and meet a strong demand. Valley is scarce, also Easter lilies and orchids. Primroses are coming in, but carnations are hard to find, most of the stock being imported. Local plantsmen are growing a good many cyclamens. Blooming plants are plentiful, also Boston ferns.

Various Notes.

Florists are already making plans and preparations for the holiday trade and indications promise an active market. The flower department of the Dayton Co. specializes in designing and is busy with the season's work. Pamel Bros., the new wholesale and retail firm, have started in business with a fine stock and they report good sales. Their specialty is a dollar box containing an assortment of flowers.

Moore, Terwilliger & Co. are specialists in landscape gardening and have a fine trade in cut flowers and shrubs.

At the fashion review held at the John W. Thomas department store October 18 the decorations were arranged by Mazey. Chrysanthemums, pompons and oak leaves were used to develop a color scheme of autumn hues.

The death of Mrs. O. J. Olson, wife of the junior member of the firm of Holm & Olson, St. Paul, which The Review has noted in another column, has brought out many expressions of sympathy from friends in the trade.

The Market.

The chrysanthemum now is coming to the front as the leading flower. Carnation receipts also are larger, while the quantity of roses remains about the same. All cut flowers are in good supply and of good quality, but the demand is large and stock is being cleaned up as fast as it arrives. The mums are moderate in size and little fancy stock is offered. Chrysolora, Tint of Gold and Oconto are the leaders. Prices on all cut stock remain normal. Lilies, valley and orchids are plentiful.

Various Notes.

E. Humfeld reports business as up to the standard, with plenty of funeral and wedding work on hand. He is cutting good white and yellow mums.

A. F. Barbe says he cannot grow enough stock at his greenhouses to supply the demand.

Arthur Newell says business is better. General conditions have improved and everyone seems busy.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. is bringing in a large quantity of chrysanthemums, roses and carnations, and business is as good as this time last year.

The delivery truck of W. J. Barnes has had a fresh coat of paint, and two new wall showcases of oak have been

The Market.

Business has not been what it should be. Wet, disagreeable days last week kept many of the small buyers at home. Funerals have been few and there have been no large decorations.

There is plenty of stock to be had. The first three days of the week American Beauties were plentiful; now Sunburst, Killarney, Richmond, Hadley and Ophelia are of good quality and plentiful. Some of the stock shows mildew, but all of it is good property. Some of the florists have large showings of chrysanthemums, but as yet mums are not in full swing. Fancy McCullough dahlias are to be had, but other varieties seem to have had their day. The south is already sending occasional shipments of laurel roping.

Various Notes.

The second Liberty loan has been the talk of the week. Many florists have done their "bit" to aid Uncle Sam in his struggle. At the conclusion of the loan campaign the florists hope to have a fair showing. They all are aware of the fact that the quickest way out of this trouble is to pitch in and win.

Charles Felton put in a window of $1 baskets October 18. Gladioli, dahlias and oak foliage were used in them.

Jerry Brookins, of Orchard Park, is cutting good Prima Donna roses.

October 16 F. P. Adams, of the Anderson staff, and Miss Edna C. Sauer took a plunge in the pool of matrimony. The bride's bouquet, made by the groom, consisted of Sweetheart and other roses and orchids. The house was decorated with palms, roses, chrysanthemums and dahlias. F. P. A.

DAYTON, O.

Several of the Dayton florists are complaining of scarcity of help.

Potted ferns, begonias, mums and pompons are having a good sale.

Business was good last week. Funeral work kept many of the florists busy, and bouquets were in good demand. This made a good call for chrysanthemums and roses among the retailers. Pompons had a good call along with chrysanthemums. White roses and lilies are good, as are Ophelia and Russell roses. Carnations are fair in quality, but few of them are received. Outdoor flowers are practically out of the market. Valley can be obtained at $8 per hundred. G. J. F.

HEAVIER COAL PRODUCTION.

In spite of the fuel famine, the September production of bituminous coal is estimated at 43,573,652 net tons, according to a statement issued by the United States Geological Survey. Although the total output was smaller in September than in August, the rate of production increased from 1,737,685 tons per working day in August to 1,793,154 tons in September. The total production from January 1 to September 30, 1917, was approximately 407,370,011 tons, an increase of 38,684,232 tons over the production for the corresponding nine months of 1916. The soft coal mines of the country continue to produce in excess of last year's output, but the rate of increase over the production in 1916 is slowing down. During the month of August the 1917 production gained 4,000,000 tons over the corresponding 1916 production. During September the gain was only 1,500,000. Expressing the same idea in terms of percentage, by the end of August the 1917 production was 11.1 per cent ahead of that for 1916; by the end of September it was only 10.5 per cent ahead. It seems increasingly probable that the total production of the year 1917 will better the record of last year by not more than ten per cent. The trouble lies in that the consumption of fuel has increased considerably faster than the production.

DEFECTS IN PIPING.

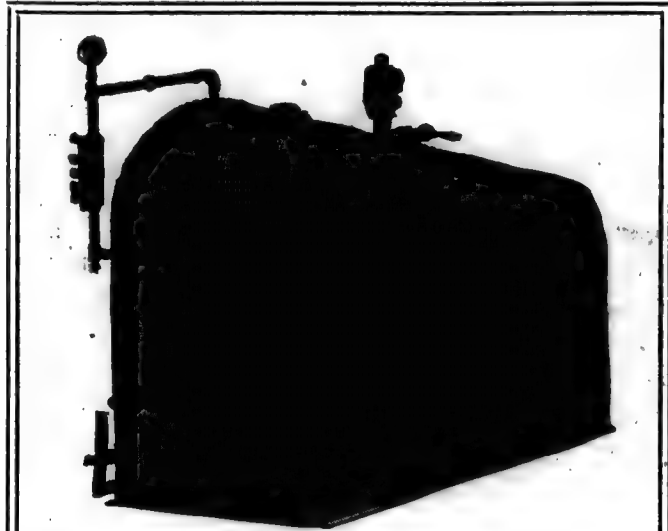

I have a small show house which is so situated that it must be heated independently. Last winter I had trouble in getting the desired temperature, 50 degrees in zero weather, and I thought that perhaps the house is not piped heavily enough. Will you kindly tell me how to remedy the trouble? As indicated in the enclosed sketch, the show house is in the form of a lean-to and is attached to the south side of a building 20x25. The house is 13x24, with three feet of wooden wall and two and one-half feet of glass at the south side. The east and west ends are all glass except the lower three feet of wooden wall. The ridge is twelve feet high.

I am using a Wilks boiler, rated at 550 feet; so the trouble, of course, is not there. A 2-inch flow pipe rises about four feet above the boiler, and then runs south to the purlin in the center of the house and west to the end, where it drops and is divided to feed six 1¼-inch returns under one bench and four 1¼-inch returns under the other bench. The lowest point of the returns is about level with the top of the boiler. The expansion tank is connected with the highest point of the flow and is about two and one-half feet above it. That is as high as the tank can be placed.

W. F. M.—Mo.

If the piping has been properly installed, the amount of radiation should be sufficient to furnish a temperature of 50 degrees. We judge that the difficulty may be ascribed to two causes, the principal one being that the returns are but little above the boiler. If this could be corrected, the other reason for the poor circulation—which is, that we should not attempt to supply ten 1¼-inch returns with one 2-inch flow pipe in an open-tank system—might be overlooked.

If possible, we would either raise the returns or lower the boiler, as a difference of a few inches would have a marked effect upon the circulation, but at any rate we would put in another 2-inch flow pipe and connect one flow with each return coil. It would also be advisable to install an additional return main.

Provided the flows run downhill, as we infer to be the case, with the changes suggested there should be no difficulty in obtaining the desired temperature. However, unless the returns are well above the boiler or the system is run under pressure, we would prefer to use eight 1½-inch return pipes rather than ten 1¼-inch.

USE A HOT WATER SYSTEM.

I expect to build two greenhouses, each 12x50. There will be one foot of glass in the side walls of one of the houses; the other house will have glass only in the roof. What will be the best way to heat the houses? The coldest weather we have here is about 16 degrees below zero. The house with glass in the walls will have raised benches and will be used for general purposes. The other house will have solid beds. What will be the best size of pipe to use and what will be the best way to arrange it? Will an upright boiler of ten horsepower be suitable for the houses? Will it be better to install a hot water or steam system?

T. L.—Utah.

For houses of the size mentioned, it will be advisable to install a hot water plant. An upright boiler can be used, provided it can be so located that the top of the boiler will be lower than the returns. However, a boiler rated for 750 to 800 square feet would suffice.

To maintain a temperature of 60 degrees in the house containing solid beds, we would run a 2-inch flow pipe upon each plate, giving a fall of one inch in fifteen feet, and connect each flow at the farther end of the house with three 2-inch or four 1½-inch return pipes. Each coil should then be connected with the boiler by a 2-inch return main.

For the house with raised benches, which has one foot of glass in each side wall, we would use one 2½-inch flow pipe, carrying it a foot or so below the ridge, and connect with eight 2-inch returns, located under the benches.

ST. PAUL, MINN.

The Market.

Despite scarcities in a number of items, conditions last week showed a marked improvement. Roses are of poor quality, and carnations are not to be had. Mums are arriving, however, and the quality is good. Business last week was an improvement over that of the previous week. Funeral work was plentiful.

Bulbs at last have come and the dealers handling them have been exceedingly busy.

Various Notes.

Notice of the death of Mrs. O. J. Olson will be found under Obituary.

Out-of-town visitors were Albert Clausen, of Albert Lea, Minn., and N. Clarine, of Faribault, Minn. A. N. and A. L. Kinsman, of Austin, Minn., spent a few days here preparatory to starting down the river to Florida in their palatial houseboat. A. N. Kinsman and family expect to spend the winter cruising in the south.

A party of Minneapolis florists last week called on L. L. May, who is confined to his home.

Holm & Olson last week made a casket pall entirely of cattleyas. It perhaps was the most expensive design ever made in this city.

THE original Album of Designs was published in response to many requests from florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book that could be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it was not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it would be when ready for use. With the publication of this album it became possible to show the finished work in beautifully printed pictures. The first edition sold like hot cakes, a second and third edition went quickly. Now a fourth edition is off the press. Everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new pieces.

96 pages, nearly 300 designs and decorations, beautifully printed on heavy art paper, handsomely bound in a cover that will stand wear.

The Market.

There was a decided change for the better in business last week, the retailers all having an increase since frost killed outdoor stock. Flowers of all kinds are arriving in fine condition. Roses are approaching winter quality and there are plenty of them. Chrysanthemums are now plentiful in the best quality of flowers, almost all of them being of show grade and size.

Pompons in white, pink, yellow and bronze are arriving and are popular. American Beauty roses are more plentiful, but the demand has fallen off since chrysanthemums came in. Lilies are in satisfactory supply, although the demand is not heavy. Sweet peas and violets are available for corsage work. Carnations still are short of the demand.

Various Notes.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. has purchased a 6-ton Packard coal truck, which will be used to haul coal direct from the mines. In this way the company expects to be able to get an adequate supply of fuel.

Hiram Fishkorn, formerly connected with Beckert's Seed Store, and now at Camp Lee, near Petersburg, Va., was one of twenty young soldiers who were home on furlough. They helped with the sale of Liberty bonds and were successful.

Miss Marie Lager, who has been connected with the auditing department of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. for several years, has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of her father, who died October 18.

Mrs. M. E. Koenig has finally received the boilers for her greenhouse range and now expects to have her stock ready for the Easter sales.

Miss Liberty Bond Puhlman, the infant granddaughter of Charles H. Puhlman, the Mount Lebanon, Pa., florist, will draw interest from the date of her birth, as she has been presented with a number of Liberty bonds by her parents, relatives and friends. Miss Puhlman is of German descent, but her ancestors have been loyal to the United States. One uncle lost his life in the service during the Spanish-American war, and another is now a sergeant in a company training at Augusta, Ga.

Clarke.

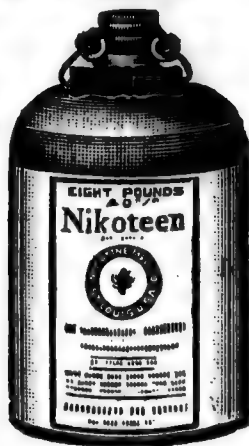

Mrs. M. E. Koenig has completed four pipe-frame greenhouses, each 25x140 feet, the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, having supplied and erected the material. The houses will be used for bedding stock.

The Club Meeting.

David F. Rose read an interesting paper on dahlias at the monthly meeting of the Lancaster County Florists' Club October 18. He spoke of the varieties that every florist should grow and gave some interesting figures showing that a nice profit can be realized from the commercial varieties, such as A. D. Livoni, Yellow Livoni, Delice and the popular pompon varieties. A dozen vases of amateur-grown show dahlias were shown.

The next meeting will be held November 15, when several members will read papers on chrysanthemums. Some of the newer varieties of mums will be on exhibition. In the afternoon, previous to the meeting, there will be an automobile visit to the growers near the city.

Various Notes.

H. A. Schroyer is cutting some fine Oconto mums.

The B. F. Barr & Co. store had an unusually attractive autumn arrangement, in which some of the newer mums were used.

Rudolph Nagel extended an invitation to the public to view his mums October 21. Many admired the many gems of his collection.

W. B. Girvin is shipping fine Ophelia roses to the Philadelphia market.

H. K. R.

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

The activities last week were not so brisk as earlier in the month. The first killing frost came October 16. Mums are arriving in large quantities and are the feature of every window display. Roses are first-class, especially Russells. Orchids, valley, violets and snapdragons are to be had and find a ready sale. Chrysanthemum plants, especially Caprice, are having a good call. Cyclamens, Primula obconica, Begonia luminosa and Begonia Prima Donna are slowly finding a better market.

Various Notes.

The sympathy of many friends in the trade is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel R. Lundy, whose son, Arthur Lee, died October 16 at Mercy hospital, from double pneumonia. The father is at Mercy hospital recovering from an operation performed about three weeks ago.

J. H. Wealand, of the Pocatello Floral Co., Pocatello, Idaho, and his family were among last week's visitors.

The Market.

Business was not brisk last week, probably because of the unsettled weather. General market conditions are better than those of last year at this time, though operations are seriously hampered by transportation troubles. There has been only a fair amount of business, with slightly more than enough flowers for all orders. Carnations, however, are particularly scarce, and, as usual when they are scarce, the demand is greater. Dahlias have never been finer than this season and have sold well. The peony-flowered varieties have moved especially well, having been used extensively for sprays. Rubrum lilies have sold well.

The supply of roses is good and forms the mainstay of the market. The blooms are of splendid quality and move easily. Prices are about the same. The shorter grades are none too plentiful, however. Chrysanthemums are becoming more and more plentiful, and as the season opens their quality improves. Fine Eureka, October Frost, Smith's Advance and Chrysolora sell well, at good prices. Double violets are in fine condition. Cattleyas are splendid, but their sale is slow.

The supply of fall cosmos is small as yet. Small quantities of candytuft and a few gladioli are seen occasionally. Easter lilies are not overplentiful at this writing. A few good indoor snapdragons are offered. There is a steady sale of green and bronze galax, which just now is being used extensively with violets and mums.

Various Notes.

The J. B. Keller Sons' window decoration was of exceptional beauty for the week end. A massive gilt frame was gracefully draped with rich velvet. In the center of the frame was placed a large vase of white chrysanthemums and pink roses, arranged with oak foliage.

Hugo Teute is cutting fine chrysanthemums, for which he finds a ready sale. His Turner mums are in excellent condition and promise to be fine.

George Cramer has been busy of late with a quantity of Halloween novelties. Jacob Thomann & Sons report business as being good. They are cutting a quantity of mums; all of which they find use for.

The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Rochester Florists' Association was held at the home of Mrs. Edwin P. Wilson October 17. Much credit is due the ladies for the special interest they have taken in Red Cross relief work.

The greenhouses and store at Mount Hope cemetery are not busy just at this season, but they are preparing for the Christmas season by making wreaths, etc. Cuttings are taking up the greater part of the greenhouse men's time.

George T. Boucher had a good display of different kinds of roses in his window October 20.

H. E. Wilson is growing fine yellow mums, which sell readily at the store. He also has a good batch of Boston ferns and palms. H. J. H.

New Albany, Miss.—There is a demand here for flowers, but no florist, so R. B. Henderson, the local druggist, has set up a counter for flowers, which he handles on a commission basis.

NITRACO

The Universal Fertilizer

HERE is a fertilizer that is so compounded that you can apply it with perfect safety to any soil in any climate to "anything that grows." That's why it's called "Universal."

Nitraco is the result of years of study and experimentation. It is designed to meet the demand of the florist for an
"all around" and complete Fertilizer.

Very effective as a top dressing for Roses and Carnations. Equally effective for mixing with your soil. Effective everywhere. You simply can't make a mistake, no matter where you use it.

Nitraco saves you money. Saves you work. Saves you worry and bother.
Try it.

Analysis: Ammonia 4%, Phosphoric Acid 8%, Potash 2%.

PRICES

Nitraco is packed for florists in:

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

The greenhouses of Boehringer Bros., at Bay City, Mich., are surrounded by a small northern forest, pines and spruces, the work of the landscape man. In the houses are many roses and many Christmas flowering plants.

The J. B. Goetz Sons, at Saginaw, Mich., report a successful season. A scarcity of stock was felt, but the mums were coming along nicely and soon were expected to fill the gap.

Grohman, the Florist, of Saginaw, believes that the season will be a big one, from present indications.

J. A. Bissinger, of Lansing, Mich., was cutting fine mums. All the stock in the greenhouses was at its best.

Harry Saier, of Lansing, has redecorated his store. Several new display baskets of large proportions were filled with seasonable plants.

The new owners of the Lansing Floral Co. report a good business.

The Alpha Floral Co., at Lansing, had an exceptional display of roses and mums. Funeral work and cut flower sales were reported excellent.

The Rock Gardens Greenhouses, at Mount Clemens, Mich., are within five miles of an army aviation camp. A. von Boeselager hopes that in case the aviators fly at night, they will not mistake his range for an inland lake and drop bombs on it. Machines by the score are daily seen flying above the place.

Carey's Flower Shop, at Mount Clemens, is enjoying a good fall trade, thanks to the many visitors at the bath establishments.

Ann Arbor, Mich., florists are again active, the university having opened.

Cousins & Hall, of Ann Arbor, have their greenhouses in shape for fall and winter business. Chrysanthemums are being grown in large numbers.

The Arcade Flower Shop, of Ann Arbor, is again open. The owners enjoy a large kodak and finishing business, which makes a good side line.

F. A. Norton, of Ypsilanti, Mich., is anticipating a larger business with the opening of the normal school there.

Joseph B. Blessing, of Jackson, Mich., was busy with design work. Business is reported good. Mr. Blessing was numbered among the active members at the F. T. D. convention.

Manager Kemp, of Clara Brown & Co., of Jackson, has a good lot of stock coming along for the fall trade. Some fine chrysanthemums were seen.

The Green-Joyce flower department, of Columbus, has been discontinued, as Mr. Clarke, its manager, has enlisted for service under Uncle Sam.

Joseph H. Cunningham, of Delaware, O., is shipping some fine primroses.

The Sunnyside Greenhouses, at Owosso, Mich., have opened a new store. It is well appointed, with a large storage and work room in the rear. W. T. U.

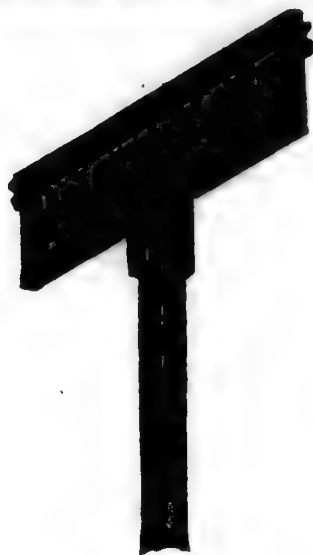

TEXAS STATE CONVENTION.

The annual convention of the Texas State Florists' Association will be held at Waco November 5 and 6. The meetings will be held at the Elks' Club, the first session being scheduled for 2 p. m. on the opening date. It being the annual meeting of the association, officers will be elected and other important business transacted.

In connection with the convention there will be a trade exhibition, space

Double angle riveted together

I-Beam Column

—COLUMNS—

How Many
and What Kind

ACROSS our Iron Frame houses in widths up to 78 feet, only two columns are necessary. Lengthwise, one every 12 feet 1 3/4 inches, or 8 in every 100 feet, instead of 12 as in the old 8 feet 4 inches spacing.

Yes, this does seem like almost too few. But have you carefully considered the way we frame and truss stiffen our houses?

Have you considered the exceptional strength that the making of the rafter and post in one solid piece gives?

But to get back to columns—and what kind. After using double angles riveted together, and the I-beams, we are more than convinced that the pipe column is the column.

It's just as strong as the others and casts less shade, as the light diffuses around its curved surfaces.

All of which are some of the other construction things that you can depend on depending, on Hitchings having safe and sound reasons for.

PLANT TUBS

EVERLASTING VIRGINIA WHITE CEDAR

EVERYBODY agrees that Plant Tubs made of everlasting Virginia White Cedar will best resist rot or decay. The "Keystone" brand of White Cedar Plant Tubs are made of this celebrated wood, and these goods are painted inside and out with best oil paints, a rich green.

They are bound with heavy steel hoops for the large size, and electric-welded wire hoops (galvanized) on the small size. The large sizes are trimmed with handsome drop handles and metal feet, and have perforated, removable bottoms.

These Cedar Tubs are made in all sizes, from 24 3/4 inches top diameter down to 6 inches, amply large for a Bay Tree and small enough for a Hyacinth. Every one guaranteed. Booklet in colors, with prices, furnished upon request.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is a mixture of over 50 distinct thoroughbred varieties, and many sub-varieties of show and fancy pansies. It contains every giant variety known in many shades of red, bronze and new fancy varieties in large numbers, and all the colors in the right proportion for the retail trade. Hundreds of my customers say it is the best they ever had. Send for my descriptive list containing testimonials from leading florists in all sections of the country. Some samples: "The pansies last year could not be beat for color, size and long stems. I grow for cut flowers only (Boston market), and consider your strain way ahead of anything I have tried or seen—Perry Green, Quincy, Mass." "Pansies arrived in good condition. In fact, they are the best plants we have ever bought—Myers & Co., Bluffton, Ind." See also other samples in my ad of the 11th. I have made the growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for nearly 50 years, and believe I have the largest and best stock of plants for the wholesale trade in America. The seeds were sown in light, sandy soil, thinly broadcast, with a sower of my invention, more evenly than the most expert hand can do it, and the plants have room to grow strong and stocky, with extra good roots. Largest plants, 12 weeks old, 1000, $4.50; 500, $2.50; 250, $1.50; 10,000, $43.00. Medium size, 10 weeks old, 1000, $3.50; 500, $2.00; 250, $1.25. Special cut flower mixture, extra fine, 1000, $6.00; 500, $3.00; 250, $1.75. Cash.

NO TOLL FROM CHICAGO

A Change of Special Interest to Chrysanthemum and Rose Growers.

IN THE PREMIUM LIST OF THE CLEVELAND FLOWER SHOW, NOVEMBER 8th TO 11th.

Class No. 23 will read as follows, with increased prizes:—

Vase 50 blooms, Chrysanthemums, 1 variety any color. Arranged for effect, greens and accessories allowed. 1st prize, $50.00 Liberty Bond; 2nd, $25.00; 3rd, $15.00; 4th, $10.00

SPECIAL NEW ROSE CLASS.

Class No. 58 will read as follows:—

Vase 100 blooms of any new variety of rose to be disseminated in 1918. Arranged in basket for effect, greens and accessories allowed. 1st prize, $100.00; 2d prize, $60.00; 3d prize, $40.00.

Class No. 1 will have an additional prize of a Sterling Silver Bowl, valued at $50.00, offered as a Sweepstakes.

AN INVITATION is extended to all retail and commercial growers, private gardeners and all flower lovers to attend the Fifth Annual Cleveland Flower Show. The Committee feel that while this will not be the largest exhibition ever staged, it will be well worth the time of any one in the business to come to Cleveland to see.

Because of the congested express conditions, exhibitors are urged to select early trains and ask the superintendent of express in each city to see that their shipment gets special attention. The high officials of the express companies have promised to do everything possible to bring show exhibits through without delay.

Premium lists may be secured together with any other information by applying to

Showing one style of Evergreen Window Box Planting

A very good substitute for Box trees would be small Evergreens, which our American nurserymen are already preparing for this purpose. Winter boxes filled with nice Evergreens, dwarf Evergreens, which, to my mind, are even prettier because more diversified than the Box trees, would prove very attractive.

ROBT. CRAIG,
Philadelphia.

HILL'S HARDY EVERGREENS FOR WINDOW BOXES AND TUBBING

With the growing scarcity of Boxwoods and other imported plant material, Hardy Evergreens easily rank first in the class of plants for outside Fall and Winter decoration. Push Evergreens now and the coming months. Talk Evergreen Boxes and Hardy Tubbed Evergreens to the people who have had summer decorations. Both are as easy to sell as Summer stocks and give complete satisfaction. Try out this line now and see for yourself. Realizing florists' needs, we have spared no efforts to prepare a sufficient supply for all requirements, but the demand exceeds that of all previous years. Orders should be placed now for immediate or late delivery.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANTING EVERGREEN WINDOW BOXES

- No. 1. Evergreens planted close together, all the same height, give a hedge-like appearance.
- No. 2. High at the ends and low in the center produces, with a little clipping, a graceful curved effect.
- No. 3. Tall pyramidal plants at the ends, with a lower compact line straight across, presents a good appearance.
- No. 4. Each tree planted so as to show its individuality is another plan.
- No. 5. A box filled with assorted gives a shaded color effect that is very attractive.

CLEVELAND'S FUNERAL FLOWER FACTORY

The Sixth City is first in quite a few things that pertain to the florists' business and among the most unusual of its points of trade interest is the factory where John Kirchner and his sons turn out funeral work in quantity with a dexterity and celerity seldom if ever equaled.

By CHARLES N. COTTER.

IN every line of human endeavor there is some man who, by intrepidity, perspicacity and high integrity, rises from the obscurity of the ranks to the plane of leadership. The oil world has its Rockefeller, the automobile world its Ford and the world of commercial floriculture has a worthy aspirant to the eminence of leadership in quantity production in the person of John Kirchner, of Cleveland.

Situated far out at Quincy avenue, in the Sixth City, away from the beaten paths of retail traffic, this genius of twentieth century commercial floriculture is conducting a business of such unusual magnitude as to tax the imaginative faculties of the casual observer. To those who are honored in knowing John Kirchner, his success is but the inevitable result of a temperate life and an inordinate capacity for work. He is a man with a purpose in life, possessing a force that sweeps aside all obstacles that stand in the way of success.

Seeing Is Believing.

Having heard much about this exemplar of tireless effort, it occurred to me that maybe the underlying principles of success could be observed in operation by watching the wheels of his business revolve, so advantage was taken of a recent errand to Cleveland to visit the reputed hive of industry.

What I saw could be adequately described only by the facile pen of a Forrest Crissy or a Julian Street, so vital is the message John Kirchner's life and industry have for the average florist, but as their powers of description are not available in this particular instance, the following report will convey the moral in an unrefined manner.

After a street car ride of about twenty minutes' duration through a section that obviously is populated by those who dwell in the dull gray stratum of Cleveland's social life, I alighted at Quincy avenue and walked into the office on the corner in front of a small range of greenhouses. This office or reception room had nothing except immaculateness to distinguish it from the salesrooms that are characteristic of small retail greenhouse establishments. It was spick-and-span throughout, sort of cozy and homelike; in fact, it symbolizes tranquillity rather than the hustle and bustle I had prepared myself to see.

Quantity Production.

But walking to a door at the opposite side of the room, my eyes were greeted with a sight that filled me with amazement. There, in the center of a large workroom, stood our genial friend, in his shirt sleeves, busily engaged in adding tone to a large standing cross of pink and white asters. Along the sides of the room were eight girls working just as fast as human dexterity allows, wiring asters, roses and bronze magnolia leaves. Two other men and Mrs. Kirchner were concerning themselves with rapid fabrication of diversified emblems of mortality, while in another room, all by himself, worked an artist of no mean ability putting the finishing touches on a casket cover of such magnificence as to cause one almost to agree with Shakespeare, that "death is a consummation devoutly to be wished." Here and there—in fact, everywhere—reposed sprays, wreaths, pillows and gates ajar. It seemed as though Cleveland must have suffered a calamity and the nation was expressing sympathy in floral tokens. I never in all my life saw so much funeral work being made at one time, or made so fast.

An Average Day.

Mr. Kirchner smiled when I asked him if it was an extraordinary day's business and informed me that he had poorer, also better, days, but that he was of the opinion that ere night fell it would prove to have been an average day. Two of his salesmen, he explained, were out delivering door wreaths and undoubtedly would return with $50 or $75 worth of additional business.

On my expressing my astonishment, Mr. Kirchner requested that before passing judgment I accompany him through the entire works. He first took me to the garage and there showed me more motor power than I imagined would be possessed by any retail store other than the large department organizations.

There are ten in all, seven of them Whites. Two are enormous closed body trucks, polished like mahogany; one is a 5-ton open truck, two are but such an attempt to attach ignominy will be without avail, for the world loves a progressive man. John Kirchner makes funeral work his specialty. He gives no commissions and never visits a house of bereavement unless first instructed by the undertaker to deliver a door piece. His methods will stand the test of our trade ethics.

Built on Service.

His success is based on the principle contained in Emerson's famous philosophy: "If a man writes a better book, preaches a better sermon or builds a better mouse trap than his neighbor, even though he build his house in the wilderness the world will make a beaten path to his door." John Kirchner built his business house in what can only be considered a wilderness in the business world of Cleveland and a beaten path has been made to his door. The reason is obvious.

HOME-GROWN PRIMULA SEED.

Experiments with Obconica.

The seeds of Primula obconica, at least the best strains obtainable, were until recently procured principally in Germany, but the war blockades, and later the entrance of the United States into the conflict, prevented further importation from the German sources. Seeds from other European growers never approached the high quality of the German strain, and anyone who has grown Primula obconica will be ready to indorse this statement.

It looked for a while as if we should be without the obconicas unless we were willing to use inferior strains, a course which would undoubtedly have been followed if home production had not been taken up.

While there are thousands of florists who grow Primula obconica and find it profitable to buy small plants to grow on, there are only a few with whom the loss of this item would cause a big dent in their yearly income and perhaps force the suspension of their business, as might have been our case. A line of plants which could be depended upon to produce sales amounting to thousands of dollars is not easily substituted with something else.

The Only Way Out.

We realized our position early in 1916 and decided that the only way out of the trouble was to grow our own seed. So preparations were made and 2,500 plants were reserved as seed-bearers. Our hope was to produce at least enough cost money, both in the purchase price and in running expenses, but Mr. Kirchner says they are more reliable and satisfactory than the lighter cars; in his strenuous service the "lizzies" soon rattle themselves to pieces.

From the garage we went to the stock department and the reserve supply of the various accessories of a business such as he operates was so enormous as to make many a wholesale supply house look like a pygmy in comparison. Bales upon bales of moss (he recently bought two carloads at one time), mountains of wire frames, boxes of ribbon piled high on top of one another, and volumes of other supplies too numerous to mention.

Energy and the Golden Rule.

From the vibration of his voice and the fire of enthusiasm that flashed from his eyes, as he explained the various phases of his enterprise, it was apparent that inherent in him was the spirit found only in the class who work for the love of accomplishment.

alty and securing efficiency in his associates, his success is built on the practice of the Golden Rule.

Undertakers' Introduction.

Thirty-three undertakers secure their door wreaths and sprays from Kirchner and are given a flat price that permits them to make a nice profit on a moderate charge. These door pieces are delivered by two clever salesmen, Kirchner born and tutored, who drive White roadsters and solicit in a refined and businesslike manner the family funeral order. This family order usually is followed by orders from the relatives and intimate friends and ultimately by the continued patronage of all concerned. A dollar value for every dollar charged cements the relationship between the consumer and Kirchner, with the result that a large business attains greater proportions with each succeeding season.

Some people, out of the malice that springs from envy, may turn up their noses at this system of merchandising and utter the cry of "Crepe chaser!"

seed for our own use, and we needed "some" seed to grow our usual output of several hundred thousand plants. That these reserved plants received special care and were watched like a baby, need hardly be mentioned.

For some reason or other, it took them unduly long to get ready to bloom; at least, that is the way it seemed to us. And when they did start, a period of dark weather set in, lasting much too long to please us. To make sure of the best possible fertilization, we pollinated whenever we had a chance, but the results were so discouraging that nothing but the hope of doing better, the will and the necessity for success kept us at it.

Well, we did succeed at last, even if it was late in the season when we gathered our main crop of seed. It was April—too late for many of the seeds to do much good.

First Crop of Seed.

As to the quantity of seed obtained from the 2,500 plants—eight and three-fourths ounces—it is so little that it is hard to believe it. Yet anyone acquainted with the production of seed will readily understand the situation, and we ourselves know that our results this season will be much better and should be normal in another year.

The cost of the eight and three-fourths ounces of seed obtained in our first trial can easily be figured. The plants were in prime condition before the Christmas holidays in 1916 and could have been sold over and over again at 25 cents each. Then the bench room, 1,800 square feet, could have been used for another crop till the end of April, which is as long as the plants occupied this space. A like quantity of seed would have cost us in Germany about $250.

This high cost of a tiny quantity of seed we consider simply a tuition fee for learning something, and the more the cost the better the lesson will stick.

We awaited anxiously the results of the home-grown seed. Would the blooms be the same in quality as they always had been, or would they be inferior?

The Blooms from Home Seed.

We are glad to state that we are agreeably surprised with our results in obtaining flowers, which are not only as good as they always have been, but so much better that several years of improvement seem to lie between our present quality and the quality of a year ago. We attribute this result, first of all, to the selection of our seed-bearers from thousands when in bloom, with the particular attention which we gave to color, shape and size of flower, and habit of plant in general. Another cause is the painstaking pollination, eliminating entirely self-fertilization, which often results in deterioration.

We are proceeding with the work more confidently this season, feeling that we have laid the foundation for a branch of our business which will prove profitable and make us independent of European sources. Aside from the financial results, the production of seed in combination with hybridizing offers so much fascination that it is well worth all efforts which we can muster. Every now and then a new flower will attract our attention through its superiority in some particular. Wonders never cease.

J. L. Schiller.

FOLLOWING THE FLORIST.

The argument advanced in the issue of The Review for September 13 that outdoor displays by florists have an influence upon sales of bedding plants is amply proved by the neighborhood near the establishment of Frank Oechslin, 4911 West Quincy street, Chicago. Mr. Oechslin's plant range occupies the better part of a block in a section of Chicago that is not completely covered with buildings, neither is it what might be termed a high-class residence section. But around his establishment Mr. Oechslin has planted cannas in the parking between the sidewalk and the curbing. Under the care of this expert grower, the cannas were exceptionally attractive during the summer.

The effect of this outdoor display can be seen in the yards of the homes nearby. Many of them have elaborate flower beds; there are many shrubs and a few hedges, but in almost every instance the lawns are exceptionally well kept. There is no doubt that much of this planting is due to the example set by Mr. Oechslin.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—The Marvin Floral Co., 23 South Franklin street, held a dahlia exhibition September 29, which attracted great crowds. Exhibits by local growers filled the large conservatory. The show was so successful that it was announced the exhibition will be made an annual affair.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

A WARTIME BENEFIT.

No more will the young man who bears an offering of candy to lay at the shrine of his affections be greeted with a smile by the goddess he is worshipping. That is, providing the goddess is a real, patriotic American girl. For American girls, striving to do their share toward their country's success in the war, have resolved to stop eating candy as a means of helping conserve the sugar supply, the latter, as is reported, being only about fifty per cent of the amount the allied countries need.

This resolution, however, does not mean that girls are any more averse than in peace times to receiving tokens of affection. The ban is on sugar only, and the things sugar makes. And here is where we florists come in.

Candy has always been the principal competitor of flowers as gifts. Bar the candy and flowers have no competition.

The business advertising has brought candy manufacturers has been pointed to as one of the arguments in favor of the S. A. F. national publicity campaign. There is no doubt that advertising has made candy as popular a gift as flowers. But this move to curtail the eating of candy to conserve the sugar supply is not going to make the candy manufacturers lie down and quit business. They have tasted the results of advertising and found them as sweet as the candies they make. Patriotism will not make them altruistic enough to stop gorging themselves with profits.

Here is an opportunity for retailers everywhere to get in a good lick. Why not advertise flowers as a substitute for candy as gifts and thereby help the government in its campaign to economize on food?

THE F. T. D. EMBLEMS.

The Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association will give $200 for the best sign or emblem submitted to its committee for the use of its members in advertising the delivery of flowers by mail, telegraph, telephone, etc., etc., etc.

The successful subject will be one suitable for use as a poster stamp, window sign or delivery wagon sign, or on a billboard. It must convey in the simplest manner the title of our association, Florists' Telegraph Delivery.

Those competing will not be restricted as to the size or number of subjects sent in for consideration.

The idea the committee wants to convey through the sign is that members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association can deliver flowers anywhere in the United States or Canada (or the world) through its members on short notice.

We want a sign easily remembered wherever seen, and symbolical of our aims. Get busy and get your sketches in. Be sure to put your name and address plainly on the back of each sketch submitted. Anyone is eligible.

The sketches will become the property of the association and we will pay for the one selected.

All rights and titles will remain with the association, and no artist's or designer's name will be permitted on the face of the selected sketch. The decision of the committee will be final.

Here is a chance for a little easy money. Your idea is likely to be the winner, so do it now. All sketches must be in the hands of the committee not later than March 1, 1918.

Send your sketches and requests or any further information to F. C. W. Brown, care of the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, Ohio.

F. C. W. Brown, Chairman.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR HUSTLERS.

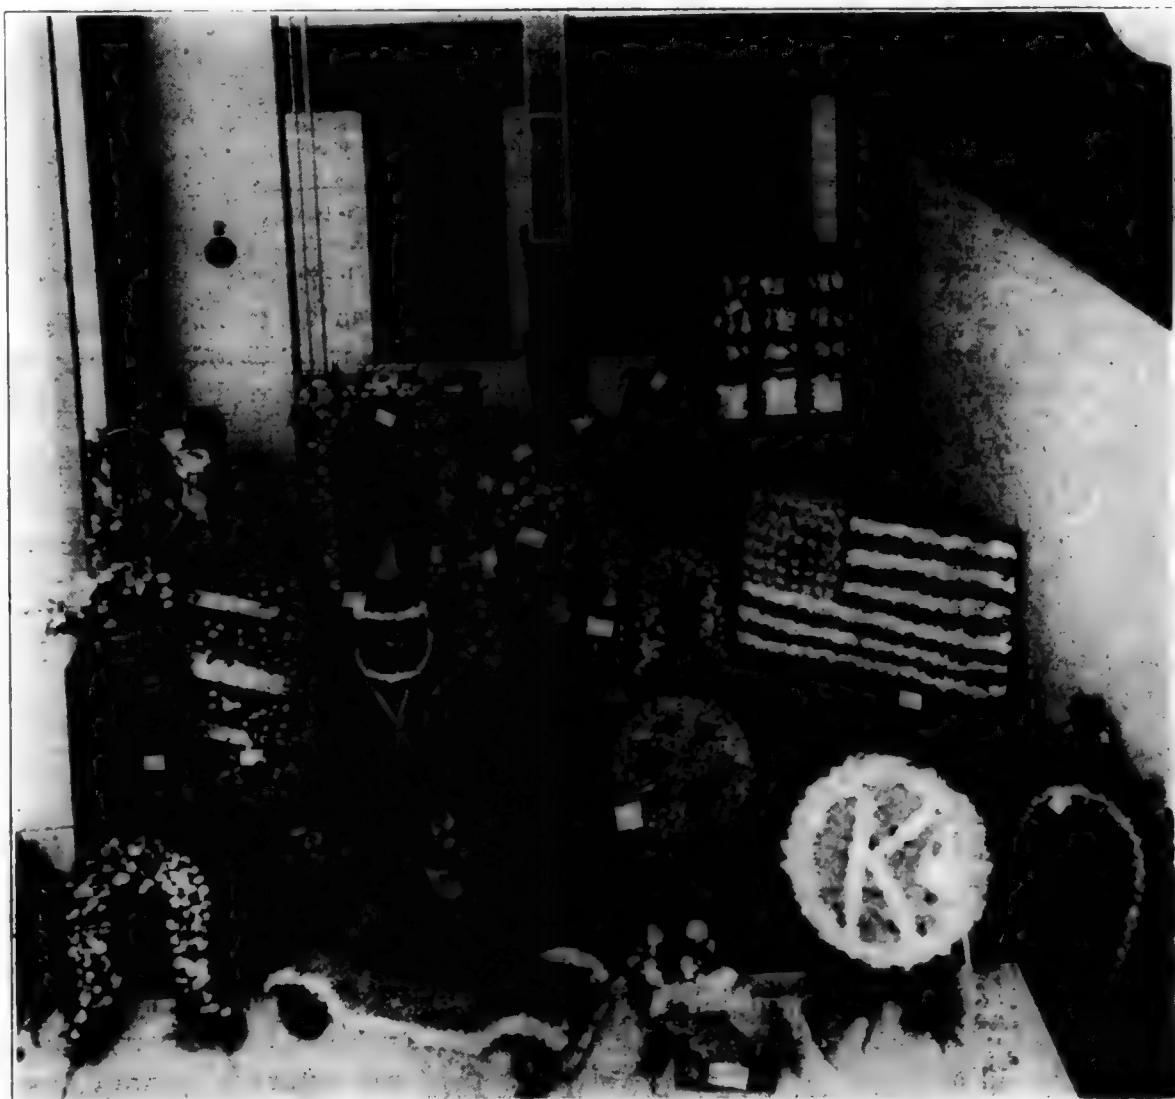

Advertising took a long step forward several years ago when manufacturers began to discover that it is often more effective to advertise the use for a product than to advertise the product itself. The idea took hold slowly at first. When a large soap-maker started to advertise the uses of soap it created a sensation. It seemed like emphasizing the obvious. Didn't everybody know how to use soap?

Yet this exploitation of uses is one of the most vitalizing ideas in business-building. The florists of old, for instance, were quick to play up the new uses of flowers, the suitability of flowers for occasions at which it had never been customary to employ flowers. It is this educational work of the pioneers that the florist of today must thank for his many channels of trade.

A development of later years, and a thing that will grow under intelligent coaxing, is the use of flowers at business openings, such as when a merchant moves into new quarters, or when a concern is just starting out. On such occasions the donors of flowers usually are business men with whom the recipient concern does business. The donors, therefore, are the men with whom the florist should get in touch. It is obvious the auspicious opening that begets mention by mouth and print will be of benefit to the well-wishers as well as to the well-wished, so perhaps the recipient in many cases will assist the florist in getting the names of some of the people with whom he deals.

The accompanying illustration shows the designs supplied for the opening day of a newspaper in its new building at Birmingham, Ala. The pieces were made by the Tutwiler Flower Shop. The flag, the new building, the Rotary wheel, an automobile, a scroll of honor and a bottle of something were given floral representation, and there were several horseshoes, baskets and emblems of good luck.

A wise thing to do nowadays is to watch for building operations or alterations on the part of business houses, and then, when there is something doing, take the party concerned into one's confidence.

THAT WONDER PLANT.

Penn, of Boston, some time ago discovered what he termed "the most wonderful plant in the world," and The Review reproduced the advertisement in which this "plant" was exploited. Mr. Penn stated at the time that the idea was not copyrighted, and invited other florists to use it. Some of them accepted the suggestion.

The Review is in receipt of a copy of the advertisement used by the J. M. Gasser Co. in a Cleveland morning newspaper, occupying a column of space. With the advertisement came the following letter:

"The enclosed advertisement is the one used by the J. M. Gasser Co. October 25 in the midst of the Liberty bond campaign. Penn, of Boston, is the originator and Gude Bros. Co., of Washington, D. C., has also used it. Its appearance here called forth much favorable comment, and we consider it a fine piece of timely advertising."

The copy for the advertisement read:

The most wonderful plant in the world. If the J. M. Gasser Co. offered to the public a plant that could be bought in any size, at a price suited to every man's pocketbook, that required absolutely no care, would grow outdoors and in the house, summer and winter alike, and was guaranteed to bear twice a year, on stated days, for a period of twenty-five years, blossoms so highly prized that anybody would accept them in payment for merchandise and service; and if at the end of the period we guaranteed to repay the owner his total original cost—such a plant would truly be the most wonderful plant in the world. The above conditions apply exactly to the terms and advantages of the Liberty loan bonds. We advise their purchase by every household in the country.

MUM'S THE WORD.

The genus chrysanthemum happily includes a number of sub-groups, or types, so diversified in appearance that if an anemone-flowered variety were placed beside Bonnaillon the average layman would consider the two as of different families, or genera. This variation of form comes in handy when it is desirable, for instance, to make a design entirely of mums. By using two or three types, the designer is able to avoid monotony or marked uniformity in his piece, as shown in the accompanying illustration of a casket cover made entirely of mums. Medium-sized blooms were used for the double spray, Garza mums for the finishing in the center and pompons for the showers. John Bryant, manager of the Springfield Floral Co., of Springfield, Ill., who made the cover, says there is special wisdom in getting rid of mums when mum prices are down and at the same time pleasing the patrons.

SHERMAN WAS RIGHT.

The influence of war on milady's fashions, on art's expression or America's progress is as apparent as day, and now, as of similar nature, it is interesting to note the sway of war times in the work of florists, although the results are of a rather freakish order. When a soldier dies a funeral design of the stock variety will do, of course, but there are times when the retailer has to bow to the whims of the customer, however peculiar the whims may seem. In the cases illustrated on pages 18 and 19 the designer was required to employ the military element as the motif of his funeral piece, and it is to his credit that he succeeded as well as shown in the picture.

The smaller reproduction shows the work of Lee L. Larmon, of Omaha, Neb. The decedent in this instance was an infantryman, and Mr. Larmon was obliged to give floral representation to the insignia of the infantry, crossed rifles. The "4" at top denotes the number of the regiment and the "C" the company. Crossed cannons would have been used for a member of the artillery and crossed sabers for a cavalryman.

The design shown in the larger picture was made by H. N. Lowe, of Lowe's Flower Shop, Long Beach, Cal. Here the deceased was a shipbuilder employed on government work, the piece being the tribute of employees, who evidently insisted on having a U-boat at the grave. The design was five feet in length and made of white asters, pink roses and white carnations.

Before winter there will be in the neighborhood of 1,000,000 men in training in this country for service in Europe. Considering the mortuary tables of the insurance companies, there is reason to believe that no comparatively mean number of the embryo soldiers will die on this side of the water, from natural causes. Funerals with military honors are pretentious affairs, and lucky perhaps will be the retailer who does business near one of the large cantonments. At any rate, why not paste the illustrations in the scrapbook, to hold against the time when a customer wants something "different"? Florists must stand by the slogan, "Customers first," but for shocked artistic ideas there is a good salve in the way of more money usually obtainable when a design of the freakish order is demanded. Let us recommend wreaths and sprays, but make special designs when we must, not forgetting to charge a special price.

BREITMEYER'S BEST BET.

"This S. A. F. publicity idea," observed Frank Danzer, advertising manager for Breitmeyer's, Detroit, "is the best scheme conceived in the history of our business. It is a necessary product of the times. It is bound to go through when thoroughly understood by those it is intended to interest, and that means the entire profession.

"Take ourselves, for example. We propose to double the amount apportioned for publicity, and, as a coincidence, we have now four stores, twice the original number. We pay close attention to billboard displays, seeing that flowers in season are featured; now it is dahlias, then roses and so on, so that the sign is not allowed to become stale. We have adopted the idea, 'Papa brought these flowers to Mama,' suggested by Philip Breitmeyer. The boards show his grandchild seated on the floor, in the act of picking the petals of a rose and exclaiming as above.

The idea has proved immensely successful. The color scheme is perfect and the subject is copyrighted."

THE INDIANA PLAN

WIND STORM INSURANCE.

What the Hoosiers Are Doing.

Some time ago, when we wrote you in regard to the new wind and hail insurance association which is being fostered by the State Florists' Association of Indiana, we expected to be organized by November 1 and so announced in the literature we sent out. We did not anticipate the thousand and one little delays incident to the preliminary arrangements of such an undertaking as this. We were detained from time to time, with the result that we were ready to get down to the real business of soliciting insurance considerably later than we at first expected, and we have been obliged to revise our dates somewhat. We are hoping now to have things ready to perfect the organization about December 1.

The committee in charge of the preliminary work is meeting with excellent success. Applications are coming in daily, a great many of them without personal solicitation, which shows that there exists a real demand for this kind of protection and that a mutual organization, operated within and controlled by the trade, is assured of success. Some fifty applications, ranging all the way from 5,000 to 200,000 feet of glass, have already been booked. We consider this a good showing for the time we have been at it and the methods of solicitation employed thus far.

After such a destructive season as last summer, it would seem that no greenhouse owner, be he large or small, would care to be without adequate protection against wind as well as hail. A number of localities which had previously boasted of immunity from wind storms had a rude awakening last summer, so that it was truly said that "many an old residenter, who could not recall a cyclone in his vicinity during the last forty years, will be able to remember the one of 1917." The fact is that cyclones are not in the habit of asking "by your leave" of anyone, either as to where they will strike, or from what direction. Can there be any doubt as to the wisdom of insuring against these elements?

By Way of Explanation.

We have been asked, "Where does the State Florists' Association of Indiana come in when this thing gets going?" Let me state right here and now, the State Florists' Association of Indiana does not expect to, and will not, reap any financial remuneration from this project. The Indiana association will be satisfied with the gratification of having done a good deed for its members and the trade at large. It is spending its money with no expectation of reimbursement until there is an earned surplus, and then only to the extent of the funds advanced for promotion expenses, plus, perhaps, a reasonable interest. The Indiana laws provide for this. There can be no promotion funds returned until there is an earned surplus and the organization can spare the money without embarrassing its treasury. This is true regarding any funds advanced from whatever source for promotion purposes.

When the committee has sufficient applications for insurance booked, a meeting of all the applicants will be called for the purpose of organizing, electing officers, etc. The State Florists' Association of Indiana will then and there turn over to the new organization all the funds and everything else pertaining to it, and cease to be connected in any way. The money advanced will be considered a loan, which can be paid only as stated above.

In the face of the above, we do not claim to be totally disinterested. The fact is, we want this form of protection on our greenhouses. That is what induced us to start a mutual organization, and it was only natural that the state association should take hold of it for the benefit of its members. We could have organized under an old state law, which would limit our operations within the boundaries of this state, but we reasoned that if it is a good thing for the Indiana growers, it should be equally good for the growers of the entire country; and the larger the movement, the safer the insurance would be. Inasmuch as the promotion expenses would be only slightly larger, we concluded to make it of national scope rather than make it a local affair. So you see, it is not so philanthropic after all. We want this protection, but we can get it only by inducing a sufficient number of others also to see the need of it and want it. The only credit we shall deserve is in the fact that we are willing to advance, perhaps donate, the necessary funds to start the thing on its way and to work our bloomin' heads off in getting it organized. Do you think we deserve encouragement?

EARLY OUTDOOR TULIPS.

I would like to have the names of some early-blooming single tulips in red, white and yellow, for outdoor planting. I would prefer varieties that flower at the same time.

C. E. E.—Ill.

Good bedding varieties of early tulips are: Yellow, Chrysolora or Golden Queen; white, White Joost Van Vondel; red, Sir Thomas Lipton and Vermilion Brilliant. These varieties bloom at the same time.

MOSCHOSMA RIPARIUM.

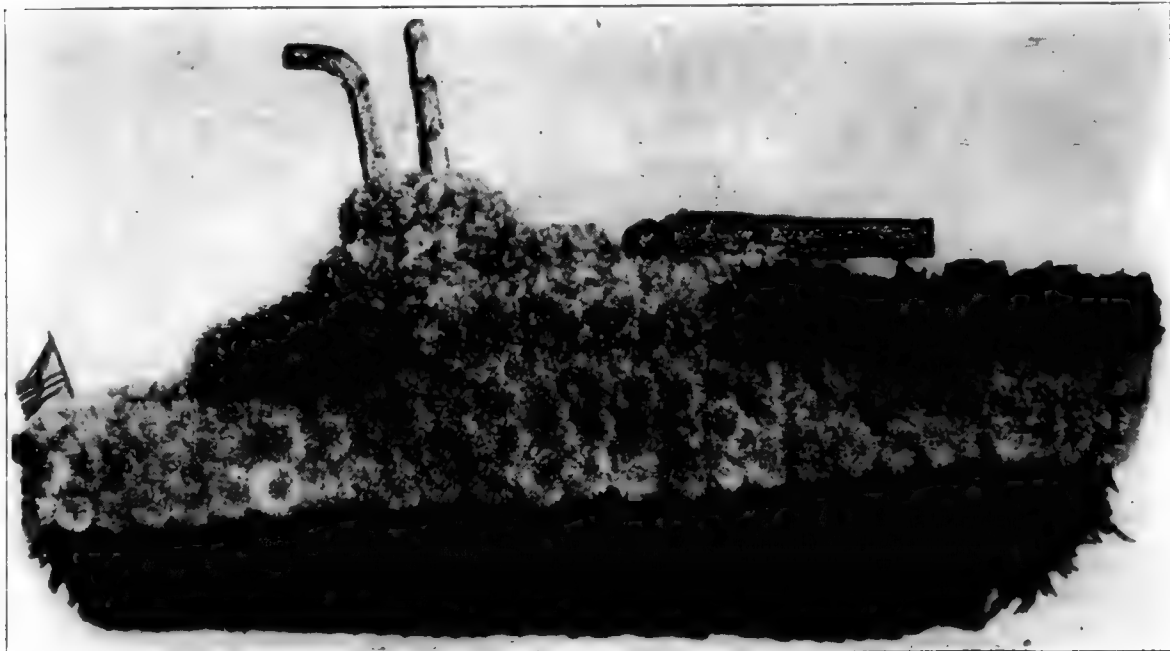

I should like to inquire as to the culture of Moschosma riparium, if it is of value to florists and if beds or pots are best to grow it in. Also I should like to know how to keep large ferns during the winter in greenhouses, and if they should be kept on the dry side, with just enough water to retain life.

M. E. H.—Tenn.

Moschosma riparium propagates easily from cuttings and is of rapid growth. It succeeds best in an ordinary greenhouse with a night temperature of 50 degrees. Propagated in March, potted along and kept pinched back until August, plants in 8-inch pots may be had. Although the plant has a graceful appearance while in flower, I do not consider it of any special value to florists or gardeners. It is of little value as a house plant. As a conservatory plant on a private estate, it has but little value, only a small number now having it. When first introduced it had a good run for a couple of years.

All ferns, and, in fact, all pot plants, are better kept somewhat on the dry side in winter. Adiantums are benefited by being kept quite dry for some weeks and allowing the foliage to dry before shaking out and repotting them. They appear to start away better after a resting period. The various nephrolepis, including the Boston fern, Whitmanii fern, and many others, should never be allowed to become absolutely dry, as much of the foliage will be spoiled. It is all right, however, to reduce the water supplies considerably during the dark winter months.

SHOW AND SOCIETY NOTICES

CLEVELAND SHOW PLANS.

The most interesting announcement from the Cleveland flower show committee is the revision of two of the classes, one in the chrysanthemum section and one in the rose section. No. 23, vase of fifty blooms chrysanthemums, one variety, any color, first prize, $50 Liberty bond; second, $25; third, $15; fourth, $10. Class No. 58 will be changed to read as follows: Vase 100 blooms of any rose to be disseminated in 1918, arranged in basket for effect, greens and accessories allowed, first prize, $100; second, $60; third, $40. An additional prize is offered in connection with Class No. 1. This is a sterling silver bowl valued at $50, offered as a sweepstakes prize.

It is suggested that all exhibitors select a train leaving their starting point at an hour early enough to bring them into Cleveland not later than 7 a. m. central time. In the event there is no express car on this train they are advised to place a pair of cheap iron handles on the ends of their shipping cases, which will allow the cases to be received as baggage and handled in the baggage car.

A meeting was held of Cleveland F. T. D. members October 29 for the purpose of planning a feature display in the show. The execution of the exhibit was left in the hands of Charles Russell.

Mrs. H. P. Knoble, president of the Cleveland Woman's Florist Club, has appointed Mrs. George W. Smith chairman of the entertainment committee, the other member being Miss Eloise Swinton. These ladies will plan an interesting program for the visiting ladies during the four days of the show, the main features of which will be a luncheon on Saturday, followed by a theater party in the afternoon. There will be automobile trips through the parks and residential sections at different times during the show.

All visiting florists and gardeners and others in the trade are requested to register at the Grays Armory as soon as possible after arriving in Cleveland and getting located in their hotels. Badges will be issued of a novel nature that will admit all visitors to the show, also banquet tickets for those in the trade remaining over Friday evening.

H. P. Knoble, Chairman.

ILLINOIS FLOWER SHOW.

J. F. Ammann, secretary of the Illinois State Florists' Association, has been busy during the last several weeks working up interest in the fall meeting and flower show to be held at Galesburg November 6 and 7. The flower show will be held at the state armory. Besides the exhibits of growers and other trade displays, many amateurs have entered and a fine show is assured. In the evening of the opening day there will be a banquet for the members of the association and the trade generally.

Amateur participation will be more extensive than at previous shows, it is expected, because of the activities of I. L. Pillsbury, president of the association. Last spring Mr. Pillsbury presented hundreds of plants to the school children of Galesburg, with the idea that they have them in bloom for the flower show. Prizes are offered for the amateur display.

GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

Prof. A. C. Beal, of Cornell University, has accepted the position of secretary of the American Gladiolus Society, made vacant by the death of Henry Youell, of Syracuse, N. Y.

NEW YORK FEDERATION.

The Buffalo Florists' Club has invited delegates from the Federated Societies to be its guests November 14.

For the Infantryman.

Every effort is being put forward to make this a most enjoyable and profitable occasion. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon there will be a meeting of the delegates at the South park conservatory. The municipal chrysanthemum show will be in progress and President Elbers, of the Buffalo Florists' Club, anticipates a most excellent exhibition. The Buffalo club will entertain the delegates at a banquet at the Iroquois hotel in the evening. President F. R. Pierson, of the federation, will preside as toastmaster and J. Horace McFarland, of Harrisburg, Pa., will be the principal speaker. Those who know Mr. McFarland are assured of a most instructive and profitable address. He has chosen for his subject the timely topic, "What about Flowers in the War for Democracy?" Other speakers will be President Elbers, S. A. Anderson, William J. Palmer, W. A. Adams and W. Eiss.

This should be a grand getting-together of men interested in the floriculture of New York. A meeting of this nature once a year will do wonders towards advancing the flower-growing industry. Every federated society should send a large delegation to show the Buffalo brethren that their hospitality is appreciated. On arriving at Buffalo, delegates should report at the store of S. A. Anderson, 440 Main street, where Treasurer Adams will extend the glad hand and instruct them further regarding the program for the day. Why not make this a banner meeting?

E. A. White, Sec'y.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

There will be a meeting of the American Rose Society in the Grays Armory, in connection with the Cleveland flower show, November 9 at 3 p. m. It is hoped there may be a large attendance, for business of an important nature will be considered. The executive committee will meet at 7:30 p. m. November 8.

E. A. White, Sec'y.

PENNSY'S LECTURES.

The lectures of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society will be given at Griffith hall, 1420 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, Pa., this season. The committee consists of Dr. Robert Huey, J. Otto Thilow and James Boyd. The program is as follows:

November 20—"Theory and Practice in Horticulture," illustrated, by Prof. E. A. White, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

December 18—"Peonies and Iris," illustrated, by Prof. A. P. Saunders, Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., secretary American Peony Association.

January 17—"Vegetables for the Home Garden," by William N. Craig, Faulkner Farms, Brookline, Mass.

February 19—"Cannas," illustrated, by Eugene H. Michel, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Nurseries, Riverview, N. J.

March 5—"Soil Fertility," and "Fertilizers for the Home Garden," by two lecturers to be supplied by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

April 16—"Rose Gardens," illustrated, by Prof. A. C. Beal, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

OHIO FUND CAMPAIGN.

A notice has been sent out to the sixty-eight county publicity chairmen of Ohio to meet in Cleveland Saturday afternoon, November 10, for the purpose of formulating plans and to decide upon the exact time for starting a campaign to canvass all growers, retail and wholesale florists, nurserymen and others doing business in the big state. H. P. Knoble, who is a member of the executive finance committee of the S. A. F. publicity campaign, has addressed a personal letter to all of the county chairmen, urging them to attend this meeting, which will be held in the club room of Grays Armory.

F. C. W. Brown, of Cleveland, the northern Ohio state vice-president, and H. W. Shepperd, of Cincinnati, the southern Ohio state vice-president of the S. A. F., will have direct charge of the Ohio campaign.

DES MOINES FLOWER SHOW.

The Des Moines Autumn Flower Show will open Wednesday afternoon, November 7. The first day cut chrysanthemums will be staged; also all plant classes, including chrysanthemums, foliage plants and other flowering plants, the nursery stock and the retail exhibits. The staging of cut flower classes, including roses and carnations, together with the floral art exhibits, will take place the second day. Friday, the third day, the miscellaneous cut flowers and additional floral art exhibits will be staged. The judging of exhibits will begin at 1 o'clock each day.

Several cups are offered, among which is one by the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, for the best seedling carnation exhibited, no less than ten blooms; one by W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, for the best display of carnation seedlings and sports, no less than ten blooms, and one by A. T. Pyfer & Co., Chicago, for the best vase of twenty-five rose blooms, any variety not in commerce.

Florists are reminded to send in their entry blanks to Secretary Wesley Greene, Des Moines, if they have not already done so. Florists of northern Iowa and southern Minnesota are to convene during the show to form a society for the purpose of furthering the commercial interests of the trade in that section.

Exhibits should be addressed to the Des Moines Autumn Flower Show, Auditorium, Des Moines, Ia. Any visiting florists who care to, may have mail sent to the same address and may obtain the same by calling at the general office.

MISSOURI BOTANICAL GARDEN.

The executive committee of the Missouri Botanical Garden Alumni Association has decided to postpone the annual fall meeting of the association until next spring, when it will be held at St. Louis at the time of the National Flower Show and the convention of the S. A. F. October 26, the committee sent the following letter to members of the association:

"You are, no doubt, aware of the fact that a great horticultural event, the National Flower Show, is to be held in St. Louis in the spring of 1918. To give our members an opportunity to participate in this great event, the executive committee has decided to postpone the annual fall meeting until the time of the National Flower Show, in April. This plan is in accordance with the action taken by the S. A. F. and other national societies, and will assure us a much larger attendance. Make your plans to be with us. Exact dates of the meeting and other particulars will be announced later."

ON THE WAY "OVER THERE"

IN FIGHTING TRIM.

Florists at Training Camps.

A considerable number of weeks have passed since the first civilians were called to the training camps by Uncle Sam. During those weeks there has been a constant stream of florists flowing to the cantonments, and by this time the first have become expert in the use of arms. Shortly another call to registered men will be made, and many other members of the trade will leave their business. It is of these that The Review would like to hear, as through it their many friends can learn that they have joined the colors.

Seaman Redden, If You Please.

"Seaman Redden?" "Here," answered M. A. Redden, the new naval recruit at the Illinois Naval Reserve Camp in Grant Park, Chicago. M. A. Redden is the proprietor of the retail store that bears his name at 820 West Garfield boulevard, Chicago. He reported for service October 29. Miss Mary Redden, his sister, is in charge of the store until "M. A." returns.

Review Men Are Good Men.

When Frank Zdarsky, customers' ledger man for The Review, was drafted he was sent to Camp Grant, Rockford, as a private to be trained. Review men are good men. That's why the first list of appointments for Company B gave notice that Private Zdarsky thereafter should be addressed as corporal.

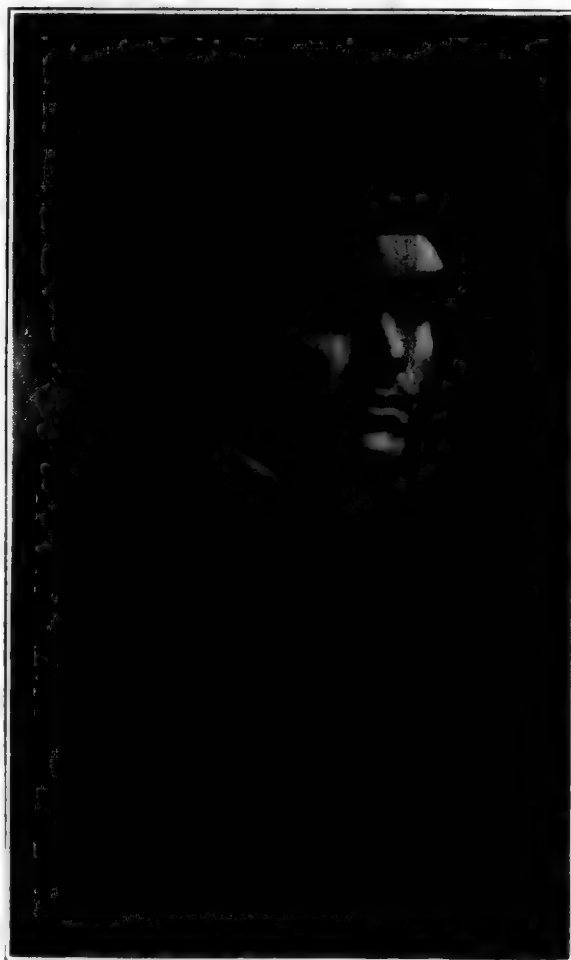

Boston Boys Busy.

Because of the well-known camouflage regarding the movement of fighting men to France, few Bostonians know that Nelson Fisher, son of Peter Fisher, disembarked from a transport at a French port October 8. Mr. Fisher is a member of an engineering battalion. Charles Clapp, son-in-law of Peter Fisher, is studying aviation at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, before going to a flying field down south.

Zirkman an Engineer.

William A. Zirkman, the only son of Arthur Zirkman, vice-president of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, enlisted in the First Regiment Engineers, N. G. P., when the United States entered the war and is at present stationed with his regiment at Camp Hancock, Ga. Mr. and Mrs. Zirkman and daughter have just returned from a visit to their boy

William A. Zirkman.

at Camp Hancock and are most enthusiastic over conditions at the camp. All the boys are well looked after, morally, physically and mentally. The Y. M. C. A. is doing wonderful work and is deserving of lots of praise and support. Life at camp is so pleasant that a great many of the boys during their stay of six weeks have only been once or twice at Augusta, which is only five miles from camp and connected by street railway. Mr. Zirkman says the boys get plenty of good, wholesome food and all are looking fine and have gained in weight since joining the colors.

Arthur Stielow in Camp.

Arthur Stielow, third son of Frederick Stielow, the pioneer grower of Niles Center, Ill., whose death is recorded in this week's obituary column, is a member of the national army in training at Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill. He had been in camp only a short time when he was called home to attend his father's funeral, October 28.

THE ROOTS ARE DUE SOON.

Ranunculi Repay Careful Treatment.

In early spring after we have had several months of roses, carnations, violets and the more common bulbous flowers, such as daffodils, tulips, freesias, hyacinths and, of course, lilies, many flower buyers long for something a little out of the beaten track and are willing to give good prices for flowers which are rarely quoted in the market reports. There are some of these, not extensively grown, which carry comparatively small but charming flowers. As a rule they do not succeed under the culture given the common, coarser bulbs, but, if given rational treatment, will net the grower satisfactory returns. Included in this class of bulbous plants are the ranunculi, anemones, ixias, babianas, sparaxis and tritonias. It is the first of these of which I wish to speak at this time.

Cool Treatment Necessary.

The ranunculus family is a large one, comprising some 200 species rarely found in tropical climes, but abundant in temperate and even frigid zones. Many of these are common but pretty weeds. Some make attractive early-flowering border plants, while the showy French, Turban and Persian sections are fine for bedding purposes, but not in our northern states. They cannot be fall-planted outdoors, as the roots would rot, and if not set out until winter has passed they have lost much of their vitality and make a somewhat feeble growth. Any flowers produced under such circumstances are soon cooked by our warm, early summer sun.

Seeing that outdoor culture is impossible, we must needs rely on greenhouse culture for an early spring crop and anyone possessing a cool greenhouse can grow them satisfactorily. The French and Persian varieties are pretty, but lack the vigor of the Turban varieties and these latter will be found to succeed the best under glass. All are inexpensive, no matter whether bought in mixture or in separate colors. For those desiring separate colors I would specially recommend the scarlet Turban, Romano; Hercules, a beautiful pure white; Grootvorst, crimson; grandiflora, crimson and yellow; Merveilleuse, nankkeen yellow, and viridiflora, scarlet and yellow with a green center.

I hope more growers may be induced to try some ranunculi the coming season. They would prove an entire novelty to many and a pleasing one at that. What we need is a little more variety in early spring, when many are tiring of roses, carnations and other all-the-year-around flowers. It has been proven beyond a doubt that the forms of Ranunculus asiaticus, which are the most attractive of the entire family, pay well when rightly handled. Why not give your customers a pleasant surprise by growing some the coming season?

SMITH'S ADVANCE PINKISH.

Please advise me through The Review what is the cause of my Smith's Advance chrysanthemums having a light shade of pink in them. I had about 2,000 plants, and the majority of the blossoms were this way. I grew some of this variety last year, but they were not nearly so bad as this year's. The flowers seem to be all right in other respects.

A. L.—Wis.

When the flowers of Smith's Advance get a little old they will turn pink; in fact, I have seen the pink in some blooms so pronounced as to amount to a stain. As soon as a pink tinge begins to show on the blooms, you should sell them. I have never seen this color show until the flowers were fully developed and then left on the plants a little longer than necessary. Some varieties, such as B. May and others, will give a splendid pure white bloom on a crown bud, and a flower from a terminal bud will be tinged considerably with pink. It does not indicate a diseased condition of the stock, but that the flowers have attained their growth and should be sold.

Work of the Committees.

The examining committees of the C. S. A. have submitted reports on new varieties as follows:

At Cincinnati, October 13, Idolph, a pink pompon, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows: Color, 35; form, 15; stem and foliage, 17; fullness, 18; total, 85.

At Cincinnati, October 20, Adironda, a bronze

pompon, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows: Color, 38; form, 18; stem and foliage, 17; fullness, 19; total, 92.

At Cincinnati, October 20, Laneta, a deep pink pompon, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows: Color, 38; form, 17; stem and foliage, 17; fullness, 18; total, 90.

At Cincinnati, October 20, Edina, a light pink pompon, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows: Color, 36; form, 17; stem and foliage, 17; fullness, 19; total, 89.

At Chicago, October 20, Adironda, a bronze pompon, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows: Color, 39; form, 18; stem and foliage, 18; fullness, 19; total, 94.

At Chicago, October 20, Laneta, a pink pompon, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows: Color, 38; form, 18; stem and foliage, 18; fullness, 19; total, 93.

At Chicago, October 20, Edina, a light pink pompon, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows: Color, 40; form, 18; stem and foliage, 18; fullness, 18; total, 94.

DELAWARE.

Delaware is the excellent name chosen by George Fountain, of Wilmington, in that state, for his new pink chrysanthemum. The variety is a seedling of Advance crossed with Unaka and partakes of the early blooming habit of the parents. Mr. Fountain has grown this variety for four years. October 6 of this year it was certificated by the Chrysanthemum Society of America, the Philadelphia committee scoring it eighty-five, with eighteen points for color.

Review Men Are Good Men.

When Frank Zdarsky, customers' ledger man for The Review, was drafted he was sent to Camp Grant, Rockford, as a private to be trained. Review men are good men. That's why the first list of appointments for Company B gave notice that Private Zdarsky thereafter should be addressed as corporal.

Boston Boys Busy.

Because of the well known camouflage regarding the movement of fighting men to France, few Bostonians know that Nelson Fisher, son of Peter Fisher, disembarked from a transport at a French port October 8. Mr. Fisher is a member of an engineering battalion. Charles Clapp, son-in-law of Peter Fisher, is studying aviation at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, before going to a flying field down south.

Zirkman an Engineer.

William A. Zirkman, the only son of Arthur Zirkman, vice-president of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, enlisted in the First Regiment Engineers, N. G. P., when the United States entered the war and is at present stationed with his regiment at Camp Hancock, Ga. Mr. and Mrs. Zirkman and daughter have just returned from a visit to their boy

William A. Zirkman.

at Camp Hancock and are most enthusiastic over conditions at the camp. All the boys are well looked after, morally, physically and mentally. The Y. M. C. A. is doing wonderful work and is deserving of lots of praise and support. Life at camp is so pleasant that a great many of the boys during their stay of six weeks have only been once or twice at Augusta, which is only five miles from camp and connected by street railway. Mr. Zirkman says the boys get plenty of good, wholesome food and all are looking fine and have gained in weight since joining the colors.

Arthur Stielow in Camp.

Arthur Stielow, third son of Frederick Stielow, the pioneer grower of Niles Center, Ill., whose death is recorded in this week's obituary column, is a member of the national army in training at Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill. He had been in camp only a short time when he was called home to attend his father's funeral, October 28.

THE ROOTS ARE DUE SOON.

Ranunculi Repay Careful Treatment.

In early spring after we have had several months of roses, carnations, violets and the more common bulbous flowers, such as daffodils, tulips, freesias, hyacinths and, of course, lilies, many flower buyers long for something a little out of the beaten track and are willing to give good prices for flowers which are rarely quoted in the market reports. There are some of these, not extensively grown, which carry comparatively small but charming flowers. As a rule they do not succeed under the culture given the common, coarser bulbs, but, if given rational treatment, will net the grower satisfactory returns. Included in this class of bulbous plants are the ranunculi, anemones, ixias, babianas, sparaxis and tritonias. It is the first of these of which I wish to speak at this time.

Cool Treatment Necessary.

The ranunculus family is a large one, comprising some 200 species rarely found in tropical climes, but abundant in temperate and even frigid zones. Many of these are common but pretty weeds. Some make attractive early-flowering border plants, while the showy French, Turban and Persian sections are fine for bedding purposes, but not in our northern states. They cannot be fall-planted outdoors, as the roots would rot, and if not set out until winter has passed they have lost much of their vitality and make a somewhat feeble growth. Any flowers produced under such circumstances are soon cooked by our warm, early summer sun.

Seeing that outdoor culture is impossible, we must needs rely on greenhouse culture for an early spring crop and anyone possessing a cool greenhouse can grow them satisfactorily. The French and Persian varieties are pretty, but lack the vigor of the Turban varieties and these latter will be found to succeed the best under glass. All are inexpensive, no matter whether bought in mixture or in separate colors. For those desiring separate colors I would specially recommend the scarlet Turban, Romano; Hercules, a beautiful pure white; Grootvorst, crimson; grandiflora, crimson and yellow; Merveilleuse, nankeen yellow, and viridiflora, scarlet and yellow with a green center.

I hope more growers may be induced to try some ranunculi the coming season. They would prove an entire novelty to many and a pleasing one at that. What we need is a little more variety in early spring, when many are tiring of roses, carnations and other all-the-year-around flowers. It has been proven beyond a doubt that the forms of Ranunculus asiaticus, which are the most attractive of the entire family, pay well when rightly handled. Why not give your customers a pleasant surprise by growing some the coming season?

SMITH'S ADVANCE PINKISH.

Please advise me through The Review what is the cause of my Smith's Ad vance chrysanthemums having a light shade of pink in them. I had about 2,000 plants, and the majority of the blossoms were this way. I grew some of this variety last year, but they were not nearly so bad as this year's. The flowers seem to be all right in other respects.

A. L. Wis.

When the flowers of Smith's Advance get a little old they will turn pink; in fact, I have seen the pink in some blooms so pronounced as to amount to a stain. As soon as a pink tinge begins to show on the blooms, you should sell them. I have never seen this color show until the flowers were fully developed and then left on the plants a little longer than necessary. Some varieties, such as B. May and others, will give a splendid pure white bloom on a crown bud, and a flower from a terminal bud will be tinged considerably with pink. It does not indicate a diseased condition of the stock, but that the flowers have attained their growth and should be sold.

Work of the Committees.

The examining committees of the C. S. A. have submitted reports on new varieties as follows:

At Cincinnati, October 13, Idolph, a pink pompon, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows: Color, 35; form, 15; stem and foliage, 17; fullness, 18; total, 85.

At Cincinnati, October 20, Adironda, a bronze

pompon, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows: Color, 38; form, 18; stem and foliage, 17; fullness, 19; total, 92.

At Cincinnati, October 20, Laneta, a deep pink pompon, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows: Color, 38; form, 17; stem and foliage, 17; fullness, 18; total, 90.

At Cincinnati, October 20, Edna, a light pink pompon, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows: Color, 36; form, 17; stem and foliage, 17; fullness, 19; total, 89.

DELAWARE.

Delaware is the excellent name chosen by George Fountain, of Wilmington, in that state, for his new pink chrysanthemum. The variety is a seedling of Advance crossed with Unaka and partakes of the early blooming habit of the parents. Mr. Fountain has grown this variety for four years. October 6 of this year it was certificated by the Chrysanthemum Society of America, the Philadelphia committee scoring it eighty-five, with eighteen points for color.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

POINSETTIAS FOR CHRISTMAS.

While many of us are economizing all we can on fuel, it does not pay to allow the temperature to run too low for poinsettias, or a heavy loss of foliage may occur. Poinsettias can be grown along satisfactorily in a temperature as low as 50 to 55 degrees at night until the bracts begin to show, after which time 60 degrees at night as a minimum should be given in order to have them well expanded for the holidays. Careful watering goes a long way in keeping the foliage dark green. Liquid manure in weak doses, as the bracts show, will help, especially if some soot is added to the animal manure liquid, to darken the foliage. Avoid heavy doses, which would prove disastrous. Make up pans at once if you have not already done so and give the plants a warm house in which to develop the roots.

GARDENIAS FOR CHRISTMAS.

We are reaching a critical season of the year for gardenias. Everyone likes to get a good Christmas crop, although, as a matter of fact, extremely few do. Prices are high at that time and anyone who can strike the holidays with a good crop can make money. Reasons for failure are several. These include wide temperature fluctuations, careless watering, especially where the soil in the benches lacks porosity, and a too damp, stuffy atmosphere. It is noticeable that pot-grown gardenias in a warm, light, sunny house usually give a good midwinter crop. Plants in benches in the same house often lose all their buds as the daylight diminishes and cold strengthens. Watering needs careful attention. Benches should dry out well between waterings. A good syringing twice a week on bright days is needed to keep the plants clean. A minimum temperature of 65 degrees is about right now. Later in the season this can go down 5 degrees. I have had good pot gardenias where the temperature went down to 50 degrees on cold nights, but bench-grown plants in the same house bloomed sparsely. Put ventilation on a little at a time; reduce it in the same way. Damp down paths and below the benches well at closing time, unless conditions are damp and cold outside. If roots run freely on the surface soil, a top-dressing of old cow manure mixed with half-rotted leaves will make a nice mulch and the roots will devour it greedily. But do not use fresh cow manure; it will cause the yellows and bud-dropping, just what every grower wants to shun.

CHRISTMAS BERRIED PLANTS.

As a rule, the berried solanums ripen in a cool house for the holidays with little trouble. The so-called Christmas peppers, which seem to be less in favor than a few years ago, need a warmer house, and a sunny bench should be given any which do not yet show much color. Ardisias are valuable holiday plants and each year many are unsalable because the berries are not colored. Give any of these laggard plants a warm, sunny house now, and keep them well watered and syringed in order to advance the ripening of the fruits as much as possible.

SOW SHAMROCKS NOW.

Perhaps you have some call for shamrock plants for March 17. If so, this is a reminder that you should secure seeds and sow them now in a flat or flats, in a temperature of 50 degrees. Quite a variety of so-called shamrocks are sold as the true article each year. Some are oxalis, but the majority are trifoliums. I use Trifolium repens, and it always fills the bill. One or two growers, however, prefer Oxalis Acetosella, the wood sorrel. No one knows which St. Patrick preferred, or if he had any shamrock at all, so it is safe to take our choice of either the one or the other.

WINTERING BAY TREES.

While bay trees will stand considerable cold, it is not wise to subject them to a temperature lower than 20 degrees above zero when in pots or tubs. They are better if wintered in a storage house which is moderately lighted only, and if the house is properly constructed and protected no artificial heat will be necessary, even though the outside temperature may fall to 20 degrees below zero. In mild weather give the trees an abundance of fresh air, and as the weather becomes colder and less air can be given keep them somewhat drier at the root. In the colder states, box trees, English laurels, hollies, yews, aucubas and other plants of not proven hardiness are better if placed in a storage house by the middle of November.

SINGLE VIOLETS.

Single violets make a useful crop to follow late asters, early mums or tomatoes, and are better if exposed to a few degrees of frost before housing. Give them a rich soil. They will exhaust it thoroughly before their flowering season is over. Strip off all runners and remove the older and decaying foliage. If carefully lifted, given a soaking watering and sprayed on clear days for a short time, violets soon stop wilting. Common mistakes made in their culture are in housing too early and growing too warmly. A winter minimum of 40 to 42 degrees is ample. Princess of Wales remains far the most popular of single violets.

WINTER PANSIES.

Only a limited number of growers make any attempt to flower pansies in winter, but, if rightly treated, pansies prove a most profitable crop. Specialists usually save their own seeds and grow large batches of separate colors, giving the preference not so much to large flowers as to long stems. There is a growing demand in winter and early spring for pansy flowers, which can be made up into large bunches.

A temperature similar to that given single violets will be found suitable for pansies and a similar soil will do nicely. For early picking, plants should have been benched in late August, but there is still time to house a good batch for later flowering. Select strong plants and do not plant any closer than 10x10 inches; 10x12 is better for the early planted stock. This may seem a lot of space now, but it will appear quite inadequate toward spring.

ANOTHER POKE IN THE RIBS.

Monday I passed through the laundry just as Bridget was washing my undershirt. The way she rubbed on the soap was a caution. Today the shirt was in place on my closet shelf. It was fluffy and soft, and clean as a whistle. But there wasn't any soap to be found on it; or in it. It and the dirt had va-moosed together.

Which fact made me think of the S. A. F. national advertising campaign.

Why? Because some fellows are afraid to put on soap enough to take out the dirt. They want a clean shirt, but they want all the soap that Bridget cleaned it with to be returned with it.

To say it another way: They want more business; and they believe advertising is the one best way to secure more business. They don't mind giving their money liberally to the S. A. F. advertising fund, provided every dollar they give on Monday surely comes back from the laundry on Wednesday, liberally loaded down with other dollars.

Of course, that cannot be in a campaign of this sort. It simply won't at once increase business by leaps and bounds. But it will, just as surely as night follows day, gradually increase the business of the subscriber. And it will increase the other fellow's as well. It will play no favorites. Everybody comes in for the benefits. It's just like good roads; we all are benefited by them.

Treat the money you put in this advertising as you do the auto truck you send to town. Give it time to get there and back. Even allow some extra time for a puncture.

Don't expect advertising to be unreasonable, just because you are.

bid W. J. Palmer and bought the painting for $150. Mr. Palmer's bid was $125 and he gave that sum to the publicity fund even though he did not get the picture, a photograph of which is reproduced herewith. The painting was by one of the artists in the supplies department of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, who executed the idea from a sketch by T. E. Waters. The picture was presented to the association, so that the entire proceeds go for publicity. The picture is supposed to illustrate the telegraph delivery idea in the sale of flowers. The express train is shown drawing up at the pier head, with a messenger boy getting off the train with a box of flowers for someone on the incoming steamship. Mr. Breitmeyer arranged to rent the painting at $25 per week to all florists who wish to use it in their window displays. Mr. Palmer got first chance, so that the people of Buffalo already have seen it. It will go all over the country in the course of the next year and anyone who wants to use the picture can obtain his turn in rotation by addressing Frank Danzer, care of J. Breitmeyer's Sons, Detroit, Mich. For the use of the painting $25 will be payable, the money to go to the S. A. F. publicity fund.

Newsy Items from All Over

Eagle Grove, Ia.—The formal opening of the John Buhner establishment October 1, in the erection of which Mr. Buhner has expended $20,000, was a great success, thanks, perhaps, to the flower souvenir which Mr. Buhner had ready for each fair visitor. Mr. Buhner has built a greenhouse 58x140 feet, a show house 20x48 and a building containing office, living rooms and heating plant.

Kokomo, Ind.—Lightning struck the 26-foot brick chimney at the establishment of W. M. Tiplady, October 18, tearing away ten feet of it, and carrying the heavy cement coping and bricks fifty feet. About twenty-five of the bricks hit the greenhouse, causing a damage of about $50. Mr. Tiplady was in the building at the time, and although he was only twenty-five feet from the chimney, was unhurt.

Waterloo, Ia.—The Kemble Floral Co. has moved its display and salesrooms to the newly remodeled store at 187 Bridge street. The change was made because of the greatly increased retail and wholesale business. The company now has two motor trucks for deliveries. M. E. Terry is manager of the business, which was purchased six years ago from Williams & Crittenden, the oldest established florists in Waterloo.

La Crosse, Wis.—The John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., conducts a retail florists' business at the greenhouses. The house adjoining the salesroom is arranged in the form of an Italian garden, with a pool containing goldfish. The space is valuable, but is considered well appropriated. Golden Glow heads the list of a well-grown lot of chrysanthemums. Other stock is in tiptop shape.

Elyria, O.—Mrs. Bessie Fearn has undertaken the business management of the Elyria Flower store and is planning important changes and improvements in the conduct of the work. S. L. Gill, for the last five years with the Jones-Russell Co., of Cleveland, O., will be her associate as store manager. He succeeds Leo Smallwood, who has resigned to go on the road as the representative of the Smallwood Stone Co.

Omaha, Neb.—At Stewart's Seed Store there is a floral assistant who is a full-blooded Indian maiden, a descendant of Sitting Bull, of the Sioux tribe. Charles Stewart observed that, though the summer trade was good, with an abundant supply, he anticipates with trepidation the approaching season, giving many reasons for his fears. The new store is most complete. Mrs. Samuel Stewart was resting while the good man himself was hustling in the stock from outdoors.

CORRECTIONS.

Wertheimer Bros.' contribution should read "Annually for a period of four years."
W. H. Kruse, St. Louis, Mo., $15.00 annually for a term of two years; formerly given as "W. H. Hurst."

The following changes in the Maryland committee have been made: Charles F. Feast has resigned and the following have been added: W. E. McKissick, Baltimore; Isaac H. Moss, Govans, Md.; James Hamilton, Mt. Washington, Md.; William F. Ekas, secretary, Baltimore, Md.; J. J. Perry, Baltimore, and George Morrison, Baltimore.

Stationery is being prepared and will be distributed to the chairmen of all local committees immediately. Additional subscription blanks or literature may be obtained upon application to the secretary.

Newsy Items from All Over

Eagle Grove, Ia.—The formal opening of the John Buhner establishment October 1, in the erection of which Mr. Buhner has expended $20,000, was a great success, thanks, perhaps, to the flower souvenir which Mr. Buhner had ready for each fair visitor. Mr. Buhner has built a greenhouse 58x140 feet, a show house 20x48 and a building containing office, living rooms and heating plant.

Kokomo, Ind.—Lightning struck the 26-foot brick chimney at the establishment of W. M. Tiplady, October 18, tearing away ten feet of it, and carrying the heavy cement coping and bricks fifty feet. About twenty-five of the bricks hit the greenhouse, causing a damage of about $50. Mr. Tiplady was in the building at the time, and although he was only twenty-five feet from the chimney, was unhurt.

Waterloo, Ia.—The Kemble Floral Co. has moved its display and salesrooms to the newly remodeled store at 187 Bridge street. The change was made because of the greatly increased retail and wholesale business. The company now has two motor trucks for deliveries. M. E. Terry is manager of the business, which was purchased six years ago from Williams & Crittenden, the oldest established florists in Waterloo.

La Crosse, Wis.—The John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., conducts a retail florists' business at the greenhouses. The house adjoining the salesroom is arranged in the form of an Italian garden, with a pool containing goldfish. The space is valuable, but is considered well appropriated. Golden Glow heads the list of a well-grown lot of chrysanthemums. Other stock is in tiptop shape.

Elyria, O.—Mrs. Bessie Fearn has undertaken the business management of the Elyria Flower store and is planning important changes and improvements in the conduct of the work. S. L. Gill, for the last five years with the Jones-Russell Co., of Cleveland, O., will be her associate as store manager. He succeeds Leo Smallwood, who has resigned to go on the road as the representative of the Smallwood Stone Co.

Omaha, Neb.—At Stewart's Seed Store there is a floral assistant who is a full-blooded Indian maiden, a descendant of Sitting Bull, of the Sioux tribe. Charles Stewart observed that, though the summer trade was good, with an abundant supply, he anticipates with trepidation the approaching season, giving many reasons for his fears. The new store is most complete. Mrs. Samuel Stewart was resting while the good man himself was hustling in the stock from outdoors.

TO WINTER BOSTON FERNS.

How shall I treat large Boston ferns which grew splendidly in pots outdoors during the summer and which I now want to keep in the greenhouse until spring comes around again?

J. M.—Ill.

Place the ferns in a sunny part of the greenhouse and give them a night temperature during the winter of not less than 55 degrees. Water the plants freely, and if they have been in the same pots for a considerable time, and are well rooted, they might be given a top-dressing of some well rotted manure; but if the plants were repotted during the summer, they may not need any special feeding. Repot the plants in the spring, and they ought to give equally good results another season.

W. H. T.

MEALY BUG ON FERNS.

Will you please advise me what is good to get rid of mealy bug and red spider on mustosa ferns? Can I use kerosene emulsion and in what proportions?

C. M. F.—Pa.

Kerosene emulsion is not a safe remedy to use on ferns, as the insects can stand more of it than the plants. Mealy bug and red spider form a bad combination on Nephrolepis muscosa and are not easy to dispose of on such plants. Try dipping in a solution of whale oil soap and nicotine, used in the following proportions:

One ounce of the soap dissolved by boiling in one gallon of water. After cooling, add two teaspoonfuls of commercial nicotine solution to the gallon. One-half ounce of sulphur boiled with the soap will add to its effectiveness against the red spider. After dipping the plants, protect them from the sun for a day, else the young tips of the fronds may suffer.

W. H. T.

POLYPODIUM FRONDS BROWN.

What causes the fronds of polypodiums to turn brown, like the sample I am enclosing? Have the plants been injured by the full sun, have they been exposed to cold, or has manure water produced the damaging effect? The ferns were given manure water only once this winter.

L. C.—Wis.

It is not probable that exposure to the sun during the winter browned the fronds of the polypodium, as full sunshine at this season has no injurious effect on these ferns. The manure water is more likely to have caused the trouble, especially at the time of year when growth is less active. If fertilizers are required because plants are potbound, it is safer to give them a light sprinkling of sheep manure on the surface of the soil, instead of watering with liquid manure. It is seldom that such a stimulant is needed in the winter.

W. H. T.

NEPHROLEPIS EXALTATA TYPE.

Please identify the fern from which the enclosed fronds were taken.

P. T. F.—Ky.

The fern in question is a furcate form of Nephrolepis exaltata, the tips of the pinnae being divided into three short, blunt lobes. It probably is a sport of the Boston fern, and if the divided pinnae are now a fixed characteristic of the plant it may become of value commercially, but without seeing the entire plant one cannot offer an opinion in this respect.

W. H. T.

CATERPILLARS ON FERNS.

Will you please tell us what will kill green worms that are destroying our ferns? The pests resemble cutworms and they eat the young shoots.

J. F. C.—Tenn.

The pests in question are probably the Florida fern caterpillars. The best remedy for these is to dust the plants thoroughly with the best pyrethrum powder you can get from a reliable druggist. Apply the powder with an ordinary sulphur bellows twice a week until you find the trouble is past, and repeat the dose at any time you find a recurrence of the pests, as the pyrethrum will not injure the plants and can be readily washed off the foliage with the hose.

GROW FERNS WITH LETTUCE?

We have a house 55x200 feet, one-half of which is planted to lettuce and the other half to such plants as ferns and geraniums. We have been unable to maintain the proper temperature for ferns, 50 degrees in winter, for instance. Do you think it would be a good idea to pack sand around the 2-inch ferns to keep them warmer?

How shall we propagate ferns from runners for next year? When shall we sow palustris forget-me-nots, English daisies and lobelias for next spring's sales?

I. S.—Ia.

It is not a satisfactory arrangement to grow Boston ferns—this being the variety we understand to be referred to here—in company with lettuce and geraniums, as a proper fern temperature would ruin the lettuce, and the temperature required for the lettuce crop would keep the ferns at a standstill. Why not devote the entire house to the cool-growing crops in the winter, buy small ferns in the spring or early summer, and grow them on for a summer, or, rather, fall, crop, selling them off in time to get the winter crops housed?

Plunging the small fern pots in sand for the winter would be likely to result in their getting too wet, unless they were carefully watered.

Myosotis and English daisies may be sown in September and kept in a protected coldframe for the winter. Lobelia Erinus should be sown in February or early March, in the greenhouse.

A. R. CLUXTON'S BIRTHDAY.

A. R. Cluxton, of Willis, Tex., who is credited with having been the first to see the commercial possibilities of the gentian or bluebell, celebrated his eighty-first birthday October 14. About forty friends, among them Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kerr, of Houston, attended the birthday dinner and spent the day at his home.

Quantities of bluebells grew wild on Mr. Cluxton's place and several years ago he succeeded in interesting R. C. Kerr, of Houston, in them. Now many gentians are shipped to northern markets. During the last year, it is declared, Mr. Cluxton sold enough of the flowers to pay the running expenses of his farm.

Despite his years, Mr. Cluxton is hale and hearty and was as "young" as any of his guests at the birthday party.

DENVER, COLO.

The Flower Show.

The second annual flower show of the Denver Society of Ornamental Horticulturists was highly successful both in number of exhibits and attendance. The show was held October 25 to 27, in the Auditorium, where there was plenty of room to stage the exhibits to the best advantage. There was no charge either for entries or admittance.

The floral department of the Daniels & Fisher Stores Co. had a novel exhibit. It consisted of a reproduction of the store tower fourteen feet high.

The Pikes Peak Floral Co., of Colorado Springs, had a display of baskets, bouquets and table decorations. The company also showed packing cases for cut flowers and plants.

Others who had good exhibits were D. S. Grimes & Son, who had some extra good mums; the Alpha Floral Co., W. D. Black, the America Flower Shop, the Cartwright Floral Co., Davison & Western Floral Co., L. A. Kintzele, George Brenkert and T. H. Trimmer & Son. Mr. Brenkert showed a new light pink carnation he originated. He has named it the Denver. The Colorado Seed Co. had a display of florists' supplies.

The Park Floral Co. exhibited some artistic corsage boxes and corsage bouquets of orchids. A plant of Cattleya labiata with twelve perfect flowers attracted much attention. Large groups of palms, ferns, crotons, ficus, mums, cyclamens and begonias were shown by the Mauff Floral Co., the Park Floral Co. and Ben Boldt. These three also had displays of roses, carnations, mums, marigolds and bouquets and baskets.

The New York Floral Co. had a table decoration of yellow pompons and autumn foliage. It also showed roses and mums.

Various Notes.

Arthur Bishop has returned from his ranch in the mountains and has taken a position with the Park Floral Co.

Samuel Rowe, of the Park company, has taken a position on the Spencer Penrose estate at Colorado Springs.

John Scheffer is now at the Harmon place of the Mauff Floral Co.

Edwin O'Hara and Annette Davies were married October 17.

Among the out-of-town florists who attended the flower show were A. A. Underwood, of Cheyenne, Wyo.; Mr. and Mrs. A. Gardner, of Greeley, Colo.; Carl Espelin, of Fort Collins, Colo.; F. A. Haenselman, of Boulder, Colo., and J. E. Johnson and C. Crump, of Colorado Springs. R. S.

The directors of the Park Floral Co. at a recent meeting elected B. E. Gillis to the office of president, which was made vacant by the death of J. A. Valentine, who was killed in an automobile accident several weeks ago. E. P. Neiman continues as secretary. Mr. Gillis was formerly vice-president of the company. He has been a stockholder in the Park Floral Co. for many years, having been one of the employes who were taken into the concern when Mr. Valentine reorganized it.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

Everything is behind time, even the mums. The carnations are disgustingly late. Man proposed that they should come in as usual, all the growers supposed they would prove of excellent growth and quality because of agreeable outdoor conditions, but now somebody disposes that they shall not bloom—well, if we get ten per cent at Christmas we shall be lucky; and coal at $7 per ton!

The only bright side is the continued demand for stock, which is general all over the country. Orchids continue in great favor, and Russell and Ophelia roses seem to have the monopoly in their sections. No. 1 valley is now bringing $7 per hundred and No. 2, $4.50, and there is no prospect of the prices going lower, even in the event of new pips arriving.

More men are joining the army, and this is the first month in many when none of our volunteers has had his name mentioned in the casualty lists.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Chrysanthemums are arriving abundantly and the market is in good condition. The big fellows, such as Turner, Marigold and Josephine Foley, are fetching $4 per dozen; medium and large Chieftain and Chrysolora, $2 to $3; the small varieties, $8 to $12 per hundred. Pompons are coming in liberally, too, in pink, yellow and bronze, and clean up readily at 50 to 75 cents per bunch. The cut for Halloween is a splendid one—excellent assortment and color. The demand is firm.

The call for roses is weakened, as usual, by the arrival of the mums. The demand, however, is about equal to the supply. The street men, who, under normal conditions, move much stock of a lower grade, are practically out of business, being unable to secure flowers. This is a most unusual circumstance in the month of October. Carnations are being offered more generously, but to date the supply is far from adequate, and, with the present unfavorable weather, no substantial relief is near.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

GILBERT LUDWIG.

WE have with us today, Brother Florists, a young man of distinction. He is not yet 25 years of age, but before he was old enough to vote he was elected secretary of the Ludwig Floral Co., of Pittsburgh, Pa., and has since held that position. Added to his secretarial duties are those of buyer for the company, an art in which he is said to be more than ordinarily proficient. Mr. Ludwig is a member of the third generation of his family in the florists' business in Pittsburgh. His father, Gustav Ludwig, is the president of the company and his grandfather, M. F. Ludwig, was a grower in Pittsburgh more than forty years ago. Consequently he took to the trade naturally. By his picture it will be seen that he is a young man with a pleasant smile, which he uses to good advantage in the wholesale market, and which is undoubtedly a strong selling argument in the retail store.

Various Notes.

Perhaps the busiest man in Cleveland last week was M. A. Vinson, manager of the flower show, who, in addition to his regular duties, had charge of the feature publicity of the Liberty loan campaign.

Johnson's Seed Store reports that its full shipment of Dutch bulbs has arrived in fine condition. Orders for the bulbs are coming in fast, and it is noticed that many people are going in more strongly for hyacinths and tulips, especially Darwins, than heretofore. Fred Owen, of the store, has just returned from a trip to Michigan.

A. Barber, of the Park Flower Shop, is moving about in a newly purchased runabout, a handy little machine for the purpose.

The regular meeting of the Florists'

Club will be held in the rooms at the Hollenden November 5, 8 p. m. sharp. President Hagenburger announces that special attention is to be given to the publicity work of the club for the following year. This is a question in which every member of the club should be vitally interested, and this meeting will afford opportunity for tackling it from every viewpoint or angle. Immediately following the meeting, M. A. Vinson is going to treat the members present to a "special movie" at the Mall theater. This picture is captioned, "Preparations by Private Growers for the Cleveland Flower Show," and as it will be seen by thousands of people in the leading moving picture houses of the city, it is considered a superb advertising feature. VEGETABLES AND FRUITS DEPARTMENT

FERTILIZER FOR CUCUMBERS.

What is a good commercial fertilizer to use on cucumbers under glass? What is the best way to apply it? I have been using cow manure, but it does not hold out.

L. F. K.—Miss.

No commercial fertilizer is equal to good cow manure for cucumbers. As a stimulant, nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia, one pound to fifty gallons of water, can be used, watering with clear water before applying. These chemicals should be used with extreme care, and at best do not equal cow manure. A mulch of three to four inches of strawy cow manure, once the plants are bearing, is excellent for them.

C. W.

CABBAGE LEAVES YELLOW.

I am enclosing some diseased cabbage leaves. The outside leaves of the plants first begin to turn yellow or brownish, and finally drop off. I had 400 in one bed that were ruined. They were planted in new soil. What is the disease and what is a remedy?

C. A. P.—Me.

The leaves were badly decayed when received and had a pronounced odor. I assume that you know what club root is. This causes plants to wilt and the foliage to gradually turn yellow. Club root generally attacks plants in stiff, sour land. The cabbage maggot is another pest responsible for many sick batches of cabbage. It attacks the roots. If neither of these pests is responsible for your yellowed foliage, you may have had a fungoid attack, due primarily to peculiar climatic conditions. For such an attack, spraying with Bordeaux mixture as soon as the trouble appears is recommended. Apply this spray once a week until you are reasonably sure the plants are clear of the trouble.

C. W.

TOMATO FLOWERS FALLING OFF.

We have a large patch of tomatoes planted in the field and all the plants have produced well except one. This one is the largest plant of the lot and is perfectly healthy; so we expected some extra fine fruit from it. It blooms freely, but as soon as the flowers are fully developed they drop off, with a little piece of the flower stem. There are no insects on the plant and none of the other plants is affected. Can you tell us the cause and the remedy for it?

E. A. R.—Ill.

This particular plant is probably growing in soil which is richer in nitrogen than the soil where the other tomatoes are. This promotes a strong growth, but not infrequently such plants drop their flowers as your plant has done. You could check the abnormal growth and make the plant set its fruit by giving it a root pruning with a sharp spade. It will be too late, however, to try this during the present season.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

George Schulz, of the Jacob Schulz Co., Louisville, Ky., was featuring the F. T. D. idea at Camp Zachary Taylor during the meeting of the F. T. D. at Detroit. This plan, which is believed to have originated with Mr. Schulz, undoubtedly will be adopted by those who are located near camps. As Mr. Schulz says, the soldier boys will send and receive flowers. The company has leased an office close to the main entrance of the camp, and every car passes the building. Some 25,000 people are expected to visit the 60,000 to 70,000 soldiers. The F. T. D. "stunt" depicts a Kentucky beauty telegraphing flowers ordered by one of our gallant sons, said flowers to be sent to the gallant son's dear one. At the home end of the wire the recipient is pictured receiving the gift with the usual expression of delight. Summer business was all the company could wish, and naturally the management anticipates a good winter season. The veteran Jacob Schulz is constantly on the job at the greenhouses, from sunrise to sunset, and considers himself still in the prime of life.

Manager A. Adams, of Anderson's store, Buffalo, while overlooking the trimming of the fine window said: "When wrestling with such a problem as is now before us, this matter of publicity, take the bull by the horns, and by persistency, depend upon it, we will have the business where we want it." S. A. Anderson had not yet returned from his summer home.

The Guthrie-Lorenz Co., of Des Moines, Ia., is experiencing excellent business in all departments, seed, flower and poultry supply.

A. H. Hummert, of the St. Louis Seed Co., St. Louis, observed that while the company did not place all its eggs in one basket, it took care to place the bulk of them in the strongest basket, and he attributed much of the company's success to that fact.

"I am an advocate of liberal advertising," said D. C. Horgan, of the Idle Hour Nurseries, Macon, Ga. "We spend from $3,000 to $4,000 per year in this southern zone. Our society folks are not buying flowers today as in previous years. Our best trade is coming from the middle class and calls for increased funeral work. The disrupted condition of the express and parcel post systems makes it the more essential for members to rely on one another. As an instance of delay: We have just received a shipment of valley from New York, which was nine days in transit, and this is not an isolated case by any means. Our Dutch bulbs have not yet arrived, but we are not much put out, for our order file is empty. In other years we have had a stack of good retail orders to fill."

OBITUARY

Edward H. Schmidt.

Edward H. Schmidt, of Indianapolis, passed away Monday, October 22, at the age of 45. As a boy he worked for Charles Rieman, under whom he learned the business. For many years he was employed in different cities, but later he returned to Indianapolis. At one time he was employed by the city to look after the greenhouses, parkways, etc., and later was associated with John Rieman, the son of the man under whom he had learned the business.

James D. Balfour.

James D. Balfour, of Seabright, Cal., died at his home, October 18, after an illness of almost a year, leaving a widow and one son. Mr. Balfour had made many friends during the fifteen years of his residence in Seabright. He was a cousin of Lord James D. Balfour.

Harry F. Read.

Harry F. Read, of Royal Oak, Md., member of the Florists' Union of Baltimore County, died suddenly of apoplexy the evening of October 18, while visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kirk Bennett, at Middleborough, Middle River. Mr. Read was well known throughout Talbot county. He was a widower and leaves two sons, who live in Virginia, also a sister, a resident of Baltimore, all of whom Coroner James Green, who was called to make an examination, is trying to locate.

E. A. Beaven.

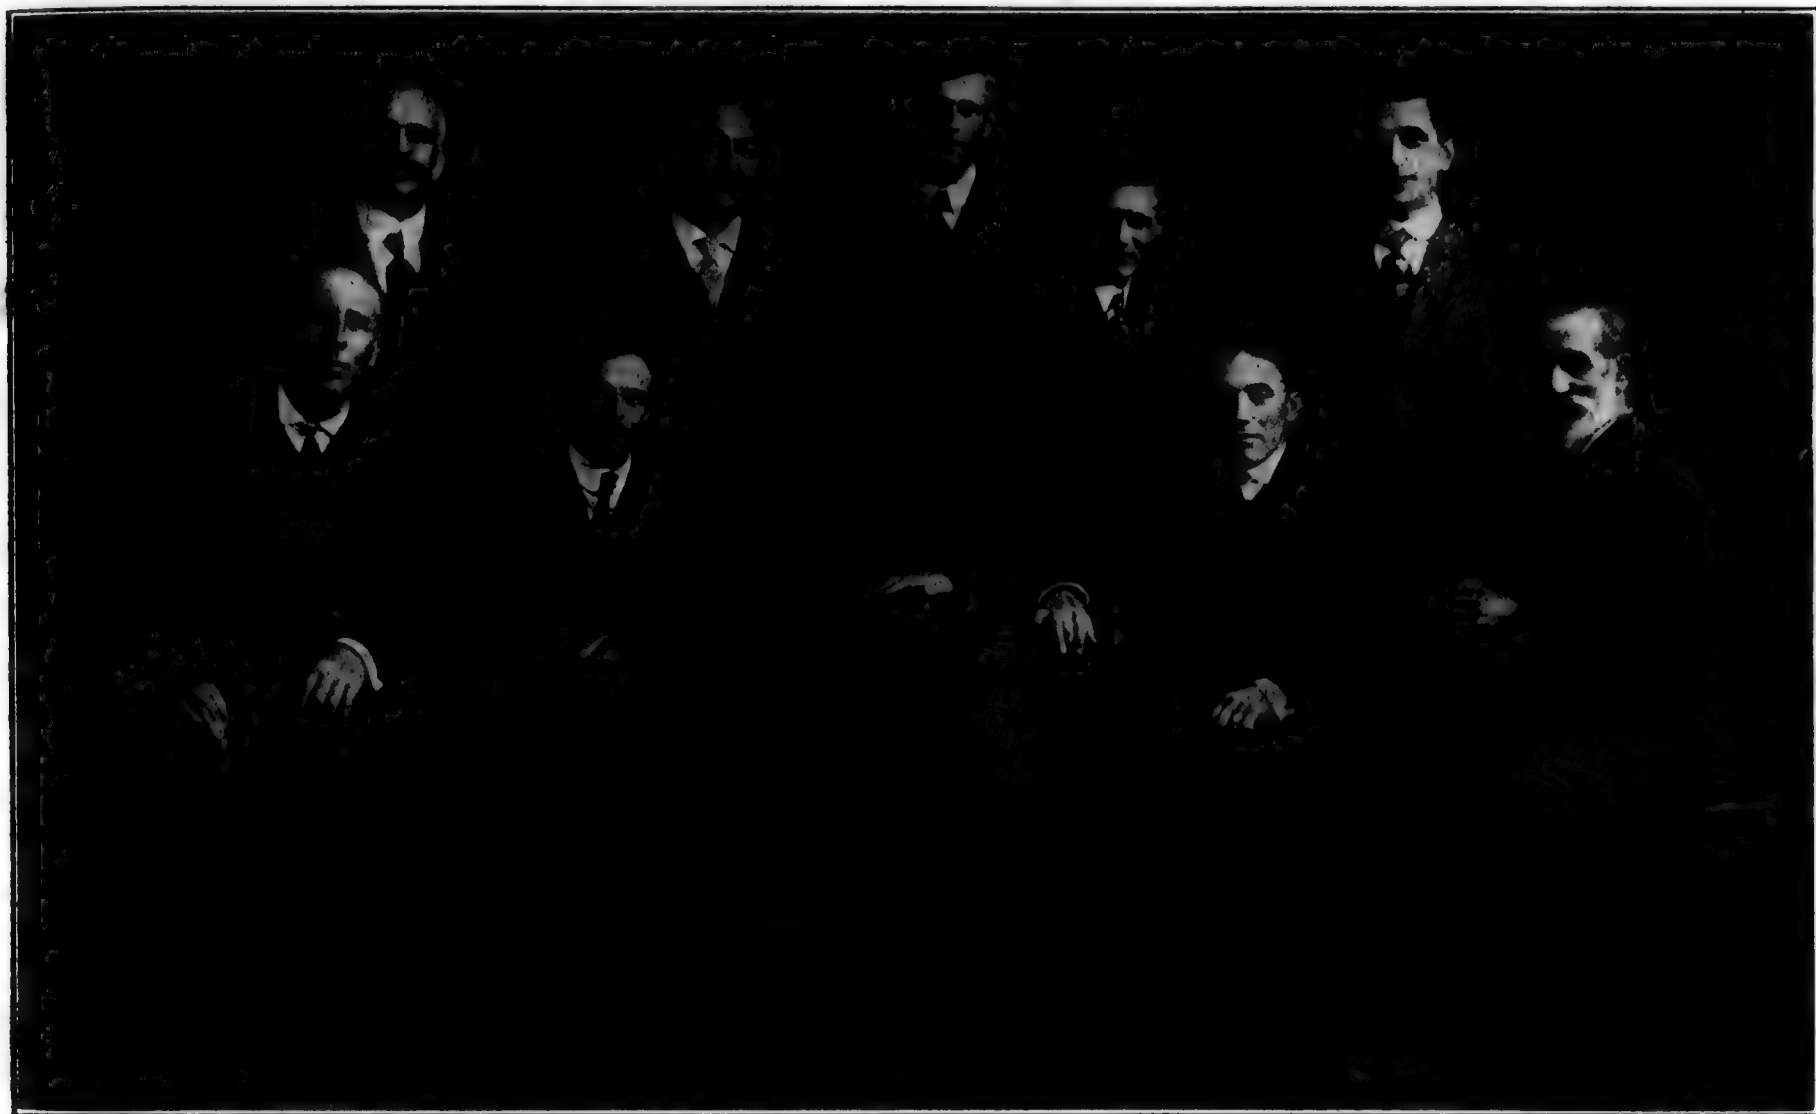

One of the leading green goods men of the south, E. A. Beaven, died October 22 at his home in Evergreen, Ala. The decedent had been in failing health for a year or more, and recently returned to his home from Chicago, where he had gone with the hope of improving his health.

Although Mr. Beaven was distributor of all kinds of southern greens, he probably was best known for his wild smilax. The introducer of this almost indispensable decorative green, George W. Caldwell, who died six years after his retirement in 1905, was succeeded by Mr. Beaven. Mr. Beaven continued the business under the old name, Caldwell The Woodsman Co., as separate from the similar establishment under his own name. Mr. Beaven became a member of the S. A. F. in 1906. He is survived by his wife, a daughter and four sons.

Fred Stielow.

Frederick Stielow, Sr., of Niles Center, Ill., one of the oldest growers for the Chicago market, died October 25. He had been taken to a hospital a few days previously for an operation on the bladder, which was performed October 18. A second operation became necessary and was performed the morning of the day of his death. His illness had not been considered serious until the second operation became necessary.

Frederick Stielow was born in Prussia in 1844 and came to the United States in 1869, locating first at Boston, where he remained for nearly six years, the last two of which were at the establishment which now is W. H. Elliott's. In those days Boston shipped flowers to Chicago, and in 1874 Mr. Stielow decided to remove to the west, locating at Niles Center, a few miles northwest of Chicago. Here he started in business for himself, but in the course of a short time sold out to the late H. Schiller. It was not long afterward, however, that he made a new start for himself and the place is in existence today. As the sons grew up it became desirable to enlarge the establishment, in order to occupy their energies, and a new range was built in 1911, to which frequent additions have been made until it now contains about 70,000 feet of glass, with 35,000 feet in the old range. The new houses are given entirely to Milady, Ophelia, Russell, Killarney Brilliant, White Killarney and Sunburst roses. The older houses are used for carnations, callas, snapdragons, chrysanthemums and feverfew, sold in Chicago by the Flower Growers' Association, with some bedding plants for home sales. March 14, 1916, Mr. Stielow retired from business, turning the greenhouses over to his four sons, the eldest of whom, Frederick, Jr., became the head of the firm, now known as Stielow Bros. Co.

Mr. Stielow was one of the organizers of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, which was formed in 1911, and he served as a director from that time until the last annual meeting, at which his son, Arthur, was elected in his place. A special meeting of the directors was held at the office in Chicago October 30, at which resolutions of regret were adopted.

For many years Mr. Stielow was active in all the affairs of the community of Niles Center. He was one of the early settlers there and when the town grew to the point of organizing the Niles Center Volunteer Fire Company he was its vice-president during its first years. He was a member of the village board of trustees from its organization in 1888 to 1892.

Mr. Stielow is survived by his wife, Sophia Meyer Stielow, four daughters and four sons. The latter, Fred, Walter, Arthur and William, have been brought up in the business with him and are now its owners.

Mr. Stielow was an unassuming man of most equable temperament, and his quiet, unruffled disposition, no matter what happened, made him many friends, in the trade and among his neighbors. Funeral services were held at St. Peter's church at Niles Center Sunday afternoon, October 28, and the attendance exceeded the seating capacity of that edifice. There were many flowers. All the Niles Center growers and their families were present. Among those in the trade from Chicago and nearby towns whose presence was noted were: Sam Pearce and family, J. F. Kidwell, August F. Poehlmann and family, Adolph Poehlmann and family, Paul Klingsporn, Rudolph Ellsworth, George C. Weiland, Joseph Schoos, Edward Meuret, Anton Then, Charles McCauley, Fred Schramm, J. C. Vaughan, Emil Ehrhardt, August Priebs, Frank Schramm and Charles Schramm. Interment was in St. Peter's cemetery.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

At a meeting October 18 in Cusach's building, the New Orleans Horticultural Society selected M. Cook, A. Waller and E. Valdejo as judges of the florists' exhibits to be shown at the National Farm and Live Stock Show, November 10 to 19. The arrangements committee for the florists' exhibits has announced that $550 will be distributed in prizes, all entries to be installed the night before the show opens. No entry fee is to be charged. A good building is to be set apart by the fair authorities for the housing of the plants and flowers and decorations will be provided by the management. An orchestra will play in this building evenings during the week of the show.

Some unusually fine chrysanthemums were brought to the meeting of the Horticultural Society. Several of the Mrs. Robinson variety had stems about four feet long, with flowers measuring five inches across. A large Golden Queen plant was regarded as one of the handsomest of the early yellow chrysanthemums. It is said to be easily grown and of splendid keeping qualities.

THRIPS ON SPRENGERI.

I am sending you some diseased plants of Asparagus Sprengeri. The stock grew well in the benches throughout the summer, but now all the plants are diseased like the specimen. What is the trouble and what is a remedy?

W. H. D.—Wis.

— The cause of the trouble is thrips, a severe attack of thrips, which probably was brought about by insufficient syringing during the summer. The remedy is found in regular spraying with a nicotine solution twice a week for two or three weeks, and afterward continuing the spraying at intervals of a week or ten days until no fresh attacks of the insect are noted.

FERTILIZER FOR CUCUMBERS.

What is a good commercial fertilizer to use on cucumbers under glass? What is the best way to apply it? I have been using cow manure, but it does not hold out.
L. F. K.—Miss.

No commercial fertilizer is equal to good cow manure for cucumbers. As a stimulant, nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia, one pound to fifty gallons of water, can be used, watering with clear water before applying. These chemicals should be used with extreme care, and at best do not equal cow manure. A mulch of three to four inches of strawy cow manure, once the plants are bearing, is excellent for them.

CABBAGE LEAVES YELLOW.

I am enclosing some diseased cabbage leaves. The outside leaves of the plants first begin to turn yellow or brownish, and finally drop off. I had 400 in one bed that were ruined. They were planted in new soil. What is the disease and what is a remedy?

C. A. P.—Me.

The leaves were badly decayed when received and had a pronounced odor. I assume that you know what club root is. This causes plants to wilt and the foliage to gradually turn yellow. Club root generally attacks plants in stiff, sour land. The cabbage maggot is another pest responsible for many sick batches of cabbage. It attacks the roots. If neither of these pests is responsible for your yellowed foliage, you may have had a fungoid attack, due primarily to peculiar climatic conditions. For such an attack, spraying with Bordeaux mixture as soon as the trouble appears is recommended. Apply this spray once a week until you are reasonably sure the plants are clear of the trouble.

TOMATO FLOWERS FALLING OFF.

We have a large patch of tomatoes planted in the field and all the plants have produced well except one. This one is the largest plant of the lot and is perfectly healthy; so we expected some extra fine fruit from it. It blooms freely, but as soon as the flowers are fully developed they drop off, with a little piece of the flower stem. There are no insects on the plant and none of the other plants is affected. Can you tell us the cause and the remedy for it?

E. A. R.—Ill.

This particular plant is probably growing in soil which is richer in nitrogen than the soil where the other tomatoes are. This promotes a strong growth, but not infrequently such plants drop their flowers as your plant has done. You could check the abnormal growth and make the plant set its fruit by giving it a root pruning with a sharp spade. It will be too late, however, to try this during the present season.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

George Schulz, of the Jacob Schulz Co., Louisville, Ky., was featuring the F. T. D. idea at Camp Zachary Taylor during the meeting of the F. T. D. at Detroit. This plan, which is believed to have originated with Mr. Schulz, undoubtedly will be adopted by those who are located near camps. As Mr. Schulz says, the soldier boys will send and receive flowers. The company has leased an office close to the main entrance of the camp, and every car passes the building. Some 25,000 people are expected to visit the 60,000 to 70,000 soldiers. The F. T. D. "stunt" depicts a Kentucky beauty telegraphing flowers ordered by one of our gallant sons, said flowers to be sent to the gallant son's dear one. At the home end of the wire the recipient is pictured receiving the gift with the usual expression of delight. Summer business was all the company could wish, and naturally the management anticipates a good winter season. The veteran Jacob Schulz is constantly on the job at the greenhouses, from sunrise to sunset, and considers himself still in the prime of life.

The Review brings results.

A FISH never advertises; hence the expression, "poor fish."

DON'T forget that stamps are 3 cents now. If you use the 2-cent variety your order is likely to come back to you next day.

THERE is beginning to be public demand that the government limit the fuel supply of the nonessential industries; but there is no industry not essential to somebody.

THE cold storage stock of giganteums is pretty well cleaned up and it is the general belief that few bulbs will go into storage this season, with the probability that lilies will be a scarce article after next Easter.

THERE will be a large gathering of the trade at Cleveland next week, the show to be held there November 8 to 11 being the only one in the United States which will enlist the aid of florists east and west this fall.

IF the southern florists, particularly those in the vicinity of army camps, will let the soldiers know of the facilities for delivering flowers to the folks at home it will result in a boom for the telegraph delivery department.

BALTIMORE long has enjoyed the distinction of being the only large city in the country which had only one F. T. D. member, Samuel Feast & Sons. This distinction, however, has been lost, for Mary Johnston has joined.

CUT out the waste. There's probably plenty of opportunity if you look around.

COAL in your sheds won't keep you awake nights next January; the absence of it might. Better fill 'em up, if you can.

AT all events, pot chrysanthemums are more plentiful this season than ever before and if they sell as well as expected there will be no difficulty in increasing the supply again next fall.

QUICK DISTRIBUTION.

Efficient distribution of merchandise—bringing the product to demand's door—has ever been one of the perplexing factors of business.

In the florists' business, where the merchandise is perishable, proper distribution is considered of special importance because it must be anticipated. The country's prosperity now is running in spots, causing a dearth of stock in one section while the adjacent section may have more than enough.

The way out of the trouble is through advertising, trade advertising, and the florist who advertises his surplus stock in The Review makes his sales easily, quickly, and at low cost. He helps the trade as a whole, and helps himself, like this:

Stop our advertisement of geraniums, as we are sold out. The Classified Section of The Review certainly knows how to distribute surplus stocks. —Coudersport Greenhouses, Coudersport, Pa., October 19, 1917.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain that he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

DO YOUR MAILING EARLY.

Congestion of express shipments almost everywhere has aroused florists, who, because they deal in perishable stock, suffer when the railroads do not perform according to schedule. This tie-up of express and freight is more or less reflected in the postal service. Letters and packages sent through the mails are received now much later than the sender or receiver expects, for the simple reason that neither the railroads nor the postoffices are able to handle the volume of business they are called upon to transport.

Under these conditions the postoffice department, through local postmasters, has begun a campaign, which might be crisply explained by paraphrasing the injunction, "Do your Christmas shopping early." "Do your mailing early" is what the postoffice officials are driving at. Many business houses, large and small, allow mail to accumulate through the day, and deposit it in the mailing boxes the last thing before work is suspended in the evening. This throws the bulk of the day's work on clerks in the postoffices at night.

By doing their mailing early, or often, or as fast as is possible, business concerns will send a constant stream of postal matter into the postoffices and it can be handled much more efficiently. It will relieve the congestion.

But, what to the sender is the most important, it will give him and his business better service. Consequently, it will pay to deposit mail as rapidly during the day as possible. If a letter or package mailed at a certain time reached a certain destination at a certain time six months ago, letters, and packages sent to the same address with the idea of reaching it at the same time, should be mailed earlier—just as much earlier as can be. It is specially important where quick action is expected of the man who receives the letter, as, for instance, in the case of a cut flower order to be shipped same day, or a newspaper ad to be printed at 4 p. m. Tuesday.

A TIMELY SUGGESTION.

Fearing a shortage of sugar in this country, the government has ordered that only a limited amount shall be used in every American household. Naturally, we all want to "do our bit" and therefore must use as little sugar as possible and give up candy eating, and giving as well. If we don't eat and give so much candy, naturally the sweetmeat-makers will not need so much sugar. That means a much larger supply for our homes, and above all remember "our boys" both here and "over there" must have their share—if necessary, first.

Now we come to the part of our story that is of special interest to the trade.

You know that old phrase that is used so much in the magazines, "Give her candy." Well, why not change it? Make it, "Give her flowers." Advertise along the lines of this timely suggestion. Make it your slogan. Make it clear that we need to save the sugar, advertising in a patriotic way.

The Romeo of today, who is so used to "giving her candy," will just as willingly "give her flowers"—but you must show him why. Remember, he won't call empty-handed, so why shouldn't it be flowers—"tonight"?

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The market weakened under the influence of the unseasonable and highly disagreeable weather that has prevailed for several days. Where business had been considered first-rate and the market stiff, demand fell off, supplies increased and prices suffered a sharp attack from the local buyers. No one knows better than the local wholesalers the necessity of getting prices that will enable the growers to make both ends meet, but no one cares less about it than the average city buyer; his one thought is to get his stock as cheaply as he can and, under such conditions as have prevailed during the last few days, there has been much pressure to force prices down.

Shipping demand has been much better than city trade. This was especially true at the opening of the present week, when New Orleans and other southern cities were calling for large quantities of stock for All Saints' day. The noon train on the Illinois Central, October 29, carried one of the largest shipments that have left this market in years, relieving to a considerable extent the always heavy shipment on the evening train. But after these two trains had gone the southern demand resumed normal proportions and the market eased still further.

Under present conditions there is no shortage of stock. It may be said that chrysanthemums have almost reached the top of their season. Bonaffon has arrived and is, as ever, the most popular variety. Chieftain and White Chieftain sell in the same class. The out-of-town call for chrysanthemums, aside from the All Saints' day demand, is not especially heavy; the country buyers have local supplies of mums now. Consequently, the chrysanthemum looks largely to the city stores for its market. Most of the buyers want mums at from $1 to $2.50 per dozen; $3 is had with difficulty and only for the finest flowers. Thus far the market has cleaned readily on all the stock that could be sold at moderate figures. Pompons are plentiful; any demand can be met.

The abundance of moderate-priced mums has served to make the not large rose supply sufficient for most of the market's needs. Late in the day it may be difficult to get just the length that is wanted of some particular variety, but in general there are roses enough and the prices are not so firm as they were. The same is true of carnations, the supply of which has increased considerably; it is felt that there will be no shortage of carnations hereafter.

Of the miscellaneous flowers there are not many. The growers have avoided loading the market with Easter lilies during the chrysanthemum season and the limited supply is bringing fair prices. There are supplies of good rubrums. Orchids continue to increase in abundance and are selling better now that the buyers have found they can depend on getting their orders filled at moderate prices. Violets are not in large supply, but there are enough, for the demand is not strong. Valley is to be had, but is not pressing for a sale. Greens of all kinds are abundant.

October Business.

There seems to be no complaint, taking it by and large, on the business of October. There is some difference in reports, due largely to whether or not certain growers were in crop, but otherwise the reports for the month are quite similar. There was no special activity when the month opened, but there was a steady improvement and the middle two weeks of the month were good, giving sales, for many of the growers and wholesalers, in excess of the record for last year. The last week of the month was hurt by bad weather. On the whole, the month is about as good as, or perhaps a little better than, in 1916. This is the more remarkable when it is considered that last October for many of the houses in this market was the best October ever experienced. To have done as well under existing conditions is more than any conservative prognosticator would have dared predict. This good showing has encouraged the market to look forward to really excellent business as soon as the out-of-town buyers have cleaned up their local supplies of chrysanthemums and our rose and carnation crops are on.

The Dixon Funeral.

The funeral of Arthur Dixon, a pioneer and wealthy Chicagoan, brought out a showing of flowers the like of which has not been seen in this city for many years. The family residence is at 3131 Michigan avenue, in the same block with the store of W. J. Smyth, who had the family order. He made a casket cover of orchids and valley, using about 200 cattleyas and 3,000 spikes of valley. Practically every first-class flower store in the city was represented in the 350 to 400 designs that were sent to the funeral. Most of the pieces were wreaths, but there were numerous others. The work was practically all of fine quality, though most of the pieces were of unostentatious character. The trade always puts emphasis on the fact that the appreciation of flowers does not lie in the money value represented, but it is estimated that the flowers at this funeral brought to the trade at least $4,000, perhaps $5,000. The Smyth forces were in charge. The flowers were taken to Rosehill cemetery, where they were photographed for the family.

Various Notes.

Besides being a large and successful grower, Emil Buettner is president of the A. L. Randall Co. and is recognized as a keen observer, so that his views always have interest. Mr. Buettner says business does not appear to be bad with any hard-working florist, nor does he see signs that it will be less good, but it looks as though there will be little profit this season for the growers.

The latter expectation he bases, of course, on the high cost of running greenhouses, especially in the matter of coal.

A. J. Zech, of Zech & Mann, comments on the difference in the character of the All Saints' day demand this year. The shipments south this week, he says, instead of consisting principally of medium-sized chrysanthemums, as in the past, have consisted largely of carnations, the calls for mums specifying only strictly fancy stock. Mr. Zech, whose firm has numerous customers in New Orleans, says the volume of business has not been at all unsatisfactory.

THE original Album of Designs was published in response to many requests from florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book that could be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it was not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it would be when ready for use. With the publication of this album it became possible to show the finished work in beautifully printed pictures. The first edition sold like hot cakes, a second and third edition went quickly. Now a fourth edition is off the press. Everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new pieces.

96 pages, nearly 300 designs and decorations, beautifully printed on heavy art paper, handsomely bound in a cover that will stand wear.

CUT YOUR WRAPPING COST IN HALF

CUT THE COUPON AND FIND OUT HOW

Thousands of florists have solved the wrapping problem by using one of our Rapid Rappers, and have acknowledged it to be absolutely indispensable.

The Rapid Rapper pedestal is finished in green enamel, and makes a neat, attractive pedestal for any store. Range in height, 26 to 52 inches. The Rapid Rapper saves time and trouble, and cuts your paper bills in half—nothing like it on the market.

Remember a Rapid Rapper outfit only costs $6.00 F. O. B. Chicago, pedestals alone $3.00 each. Our booklet, "The Art of Wrapping," contains full details and interesting facts, also prices of wrappers, which we carry in sizes to meet every requirement. String is attached to all wrappers and it takes but six seconds to wrap any plant or basket.

The Market.

Business last week was highly satisfactory to the florists. There was a good demand and the supply of stock was adequate to fill all orders. Wedding work took the lead, and there were numerous pre-nuptial affairs that called for elaborate decorations. Funerals of several prominent citizens took care of a batch of flowers, and counter trade was brisk.

Chrysanthemums are in splendid supply, the best varieties now appearing in the market. Pompons are in wide variety and sell like the proverbial hot cakes. Carnations bring $3 and $4 per hundred, although they still have short stems. The rose situation has shown a vast improvement. The roses coming in are of excellent quality, and the stems are longer. American Beauties shipped in are fine. The demand is good for Ophelia, Hadley, Hoosier Beauty, Russell and Sawyer. The miniature roses are much in evidence and sell readily for corsage work. Violets are increasing in numbers and the quality is showing a great improvement, but the sales are not large. Valley is scarce and high-priced, and is in demand only for the higher class of wedding work. Oak foliage is the popular green at present. It is used with chrysanthemums for funeral sprays and wedding decorations, to the exclusion of other greens.

The Market.

Business was fair last week, despite the unpleasant weather, which included a heavy fall of wet snow. Chrysanthemums arrived in quantities. Roses also were plentiful, and as a result American Beauties were lower in price. Lilies also suffered. There are still some gladioli in the market, but they are not in much demand. Violets are improving every day. Carnations still are scarce. Pompon mums of many varieties are in and find ready sale.

Various Notes.

The snow storm of October 23 did considerable damage to trees and shrubs. Many oriental palms especially suffered.

The Pittsburgh Florists' Club advanced its monthly meeting one week, so as to encourage the local members of the trade to attend the Cleveland chrysanthemum show, and held it October 30 in the basement of the Carnegie library on the north side. The feature of the meeting was a banquet.

The annual chrysanthemum show of the Phipps Conservatory, Schenley park, opened Sunday, October 28. The exhibition is unusually good. The exhibition at the conservatory of the North Side park also opened the same day.

The Market.

The second Liberty loan, the absence of the debutante, the onrush of the chrysanthemum and the change of those who usually are consumers over to the ranks of the producers, have all helped to ruin the market. No grower who receives his returns in this mail will doubt the truth of this summing up of the market. Conditions are bad, very bad, and there is no use in mincing words about it. These conditions are apt to occur in the middle of the fall each year, but of course the present glut is always the worst, or seems so.

There are some extremely fine chrysanthemums coming now. A few white Turner and Marigold, orange-yellow, bring excellent prices, but the bulk of the stock has receded in value to an extent quite surprising. It now takes exceptional flowers to bring anything above a low average price. Carnations have also fallen back in sympathy with the general market, although next to the autumn queen they rank high. Roses are weak, markedly weak in quantity lots. The remainder of the market requires little description beyond that of a week ago, save only to chronicle the arrival of bouvardia, which now is moderately plentiful. General dullness prevails.

ber 25. It is a trip that combines pleasure, both to the visitors and to the visited, with business. The object of the trip is to compare the varieties, quantities and conditions of plants in the leading greenhouses in that section of Montgomery and Bucks counties within motor distance of Chestnut Hill.

Invitations to this annual party are highly prized. This season the number was limited to twelve. Three qualifications were necessary to secure an invitation, to be successful and to love lemonade. The party met early; it was divided into three carloads. The van contained George Burton, John R. Andre, David E. Colflesh and William Lehr, the Baltimorean. The center was formed by John Burton, Robert Kift, Arthur A. Niessen and Samuel S. Pennock, while the rear guard consisted of Alfred Burton, J. William Colflesh, Jr., William H. Engler and Charles E. Meehan. They visited George E. Campbell, of Flourtown; John Savage, of Gwynedd Valley; the Florex Gardens, at North Wales; Henry M. Weiss & Sons, of Hatboro. After luncheon at Hatboro the visitors continued to John R. Andre's place at Doylestown, to the Joseph Heacock Co. establishment at Roelofs, and to Stephen Mort-ensen's domain at Southampton, returning to the starting point at Chestnut Hill, where they supped with Messrs. Burton and talked over affairs of state afterward. On account of motor trouble, one car was left at Langhorne, the party returning to the city by rail. It was a delightful affair, much enjoyed by everyone.

A Cloud.

A little cloud no bigger than a man's hand has appeared in the somewhat stormy sky of business. Last Friday, October 26, Francis A. Lewis, assistant to William Potter, coal commissioner of Pennsylvania, urged the President to issue orders that no coal be sold to private greenhouses.

Note clearly that this is private, not commercial, greenhouses, and it is a suggestion to the President that has not yet been made an order by him.

Straws indicate the direction of the wind, so it is clear that should the war continue and should coal become Cleveland Show Information.

Adolph Farenwald, E. J. Fancourt and Fred Cowperthwaite, the latter secretary of the Florists' Club, would like to hear from anyone who intends to send plants or flowers to the Cleveland flower show, which will be held November 8 to 11. Mr. Cowperthwaite was in communication with officials of the Pennsylvania railroad, who informed him that if the flowers are packed in such a way that it is absolutely impossible for any leakage to occur, and if handles are put on the boxes, the packages can go in the baggage car. The Market.

The market last week was in splendid condition as far as the supply was concerned. There was plenty of seasonable stock, but the changeable weather made the demand uneven, some days business being good, while on other days it was dull. Prices also fluctuated. Chrysanthemums are the most popular flowers at present and many of the leading varieties have arrived. Chrysolora, October Frost and Robinson are the leaders, while Bonnaffons are expected next week. Pompons are arriving in quantities and are of good quality.

Fancy roses reach the market daily, but suffer in popularity because of the demand for mums. The best sellers during the week were Wards, Ophelias and Russells, which held up in price. Richmond and Killarney roses bring low prices. American Beauties are scarce. Violets are improving daily and the colder weather improved their color. Carnations are in demand and the fancy grades bring good prices. The demand was heavy during the week.

The Climax Line is a Good Line to Tie To

THE FACT that we have in the past seven years built up the largest Cut Flower Box business in the Country is our best advertisement. We strive to please and the results speak for themselves.

is still our slogan.

We manufacture and carry in stock for prompt shipment: Oxford Gray, Mist Green, Mist Tan, White Carnation and our popular Favorite grade—the latter a most satisfactory telescope shipping box. Holiday boxes in season. We make special sizes promptly and at reasonable charge, and specialize in attractive and up-to-date printing and embossing.

With our increased facilities we aim to make our service the best in our line, and if you are in the market it will pay you to wait for the "Climax" Salesman, or send for late price list and samples to nearest office: 141 Milk St., Boston; 2914 11th St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

BALTIMORE.

Club Members Inoculated.

At the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club October 22 publicity had another big boost. William F. Gude came over from Washington and gave the boys one of his characteristic heart-to-heart talks on this important theme. He did not hesitate to call a spade a spade, and stated some facts that caused his hearers to do some deep thinking. He cited the fact that the man who invented the little ball on a rubber string cleaned up a million dollars on it through publicity; yet, pointing to a vase of the new rose, Mrs. Stotesbury, which was on exhibition, he said the greater part of the American public did not know that florists produced such flowers. He asked the members to think of the intelligence, the thought, the work and patience required to produce such a rose, as compared with the trifling rubber device. He said florists are deserving of greater things—they are producing things of great merit, yet not reaping one-half the reward of the promoter of the child's toy.

Mr. Gude said that all the best flower days of the year—Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter—were flower days through no effort of the florists, all except Mothers' day, and that the public on those days practically had to brush the florists aside and plead with them for flowers. Mr. Gude certainly struck the right note when he emphasized the fact that flowers are not a luxury, but a necessity. He also laid stress on sentiment. He brought out clearly that even the most hardened business or professional man has plenty of sentiment, though perhaps it is dormant or caloused by hard knocks in the world. The object of the campaign will be to resurrect this sentiment and fan it into new life. This, he brought out, was the business of every florist in the country, and every man had a spark of progressiveness in his make-up should put his shoulder to the wheel and help. He Eats, Sleeps, Drinks Publicity.

Another point the speaker made was that when the retailer was doing plenty of business, all of the other branches were busy—the grower, the supply man, the greenhouse builder. Everyone who contributes his wares to the production of flowers will be benefited by the campaign and should contribute his effort to make the florists' business one of the most recognized commercial industries of the country. He dwelt on the fact that now is the opportune time for this campaign. With all the talk of economizing on account of the war, it behooves florists to counteract this by advertising. Mr. Gude said, as for himself, he thought publicity, he talked publicity and dreamed publicity, and he left the Baltimore florists inoculated with the same germ. It would be a hard matter to sit and listen to a man like this and not catch the spirit of his mission. A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Gude for coming to us with this message of publicity. His message fell upon fertile ground, for after the meeting about eighteen subscription blanks were handed to Chairman Graham, of the committee.

No Maryland Slacker!

After the meeting the publicity committee held a meeting. Charles F. Feast, the secretary, found that he would not be able to serve, so William F. Ekas was elected to fill his place. The committee decided to canvass all the florists in the state. There will be no middle ground, and every man in the business will have the opportunity to be a contributor or a slacker. A personal visit will be made to each one, and the only way to escape is to turn the committeemen down—but no Marylander is going to do that!

Another visitor was Edward Towill, of Roslyn, Pa., who had a vase of his new rose on exhibition. Mr. Towill told of the merits of this fine rose, but this was unnecessary, as the rose spoke for itself as eloquently as did its producer. Mrs. Stotesbury is a cross between My Maryland and Joseph Hill, of a fine shade of shell-pink, with splendid stems and fine foliage. It will be a grand rose to make up into bunches. Mr. Towill says it is as free a bloomer as My Maryland and does not mildew easily. Indeed, Mrs. Stotesbury has all of the earmarks of a commercial variety that will be a money-maker for those who grow it. Otto Bauer, one of the past presidents of the Washington Club, came over with Mr. Gude, but modestly declined to speak after Mr. Gude, for he said Mr. Gude had left him nothing to say.

Mr. Gude extended an invitation to club members to visit the ranges of Gude Bros. Co. on the Sunday preceding Thanksgiving, which invitation was accepted.

At the next club meeting a rare treat is in store for the members. Dr. Woods, of the Maryland State Agricultural College, will deliver a lecture. Dr. Woods has been placed in charge of the college and is a stranger to most of us, but he comes well recommended by those who know him. He is an authority on everything pertaining to agriculture, and no one should miss this meeting. Tate.

The Market.

Comparatively little change has taken place in market conditions since the last report. The season as a whole has been a backward one, with the shortage of stock the outstanding feature. By the first of November in previous years, chrysanthemums have been in great supply, have crowded the market and forced carnations to take a back seat. This year chrysanthemums are not scarce, but neither are they in large supply. In a way, conditions are most satisfactory at the present time. If the cloudy weather continues, there will be no glut, yet the market will be supplied. Carnations are a little short of requirements and it is predicted that this will continue to be the case all winter, as fewer were planted.

Roses are excellent, in large supply and meet with an active demand. Business in all branches has been brisk, numerous October weddings having into their own. Miscellaneous items include violets, snapdragons and cosmos. Orchids and valley take care of all requirements, the former being of excellent quality.

Various Notes.

John Grande, Jr., has some of the finest potted chrysanthemums in the city.

The next meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana will be held November 5, at Richmond. The party from Indianapolis will leave Monday at 7:45 a. m., on the Pennsylvania road. This is a fast mail train, but arrangements have been made to have it stop at East Haven, so buy your tickets to East Haven. Everybody is invited to accompany the crowd.

Friends are sorry to learn of the illness of Edward Bertermann and wish him a speedy recovery.

Otto Lawrence has been on the sick list for a few days.

The Bertermann Bros. Co. has been busy with several large decorations.

John Rieman's window was a glorious sight last week. It was brimful of fine stock, and cleverly arranged.

Edward H. Schmidt, formerly a city worker, died last week. A few details are given under Obituary.

E. E. T.

NEWARK, N. J.

Chrysanthemums in larger quantities have reached the market during the last two weeks, but so far the supply has not been in excess of the demand. Prices are high. There is a good demand for ferns. Cosmos are plentiful and of good quality.

Bulbs have arrived, but the warm weather of the first part of last week was not conducive to their sale. Some of the bulbs had sprouted and all were well advanced.

W. H. Witheridge, 532 Broad street, says that he has had considerable funeral work lately.

The S. A. Rogers Nursery Co. reports that after a dull summer, business has become good. This company had a novel window display recently, representing a completely furnished cottage with the grounds about it planted to evergreens and shrubs. Mr. Rogers said the display brought a number of orders.

MOTT AT KNOXVILLE, TENN.

The Baum Store.

"In these strenuous times," observed Karl P. Baum, of the C. L. Baum Floral Co., "while sitting up here in my sanctum, my thoughts revert to the period when Pioneer Knox, the founder of Knoxville, and whose bones reposed so peacefully for many years possibly directly beneath where my chair is, lived. Our building stands upon the site originally occupied by the first church and town cemetery, and it was always regarded by some as ominous when we decided to be the first occupants and on a long lease. We were convinced that a flower store would be a most appropriate living temple to the dead, and, apart from the fact that our colored help refuses to go down-cellar after dark, though the floors and walls are of solid concrete, we are much gratified at the move."

The store is L-shaped and faces two main streets. It has a width of twenty-four feet and a frontage of 154 feet, allowing an abundance of light and affording every facility for a retail business. The office is on a balcony, and a double-width basement provides ample space for the storage of supplies.

"We are trying to Hooverize as far as possible," continued Mr. Baum, "but are finding it difficult to get our patrons to realize it costs more now to produce our goods and to buy freely to enable us to purchase Liberty bonds. Collections are rather slow, but we have a splendid credit association for home trade, and those who will not pay as they go must soon pay as they come. Jump into my car and we will run out and see father at the greenhouses. It is about the only chance I get when a traveler comes along."

The Mum Crop.

We found the original Charles L. as busy as a bee, with a big son, Roy, helping make hay with arms full of a fine crop of chrysanthemums cut for the store, and for which the sale is good.

"Our stock is in prime shape," observed the elder Mr. Baum, "the only trouble we have had being to keep the mildew off Shawyer and the leaves on Russell. Ophelia still is the most profitable rose on the place. The new Columbia will be planted near our own carnation, Uncle Sam."

The best chrysanthemums as grown here are Oconto, early white; Golden Queen, early yellow; Marigold, which had blooms eight inches across October 17; Early Rose, Helen Frick and the white Helen Frick, Dolly Dimple. William Turner makes such strong buds that an incision is made at the throat to save its breaking its neck.

Beacon, Ward, Enchantress and Matchless are the principal varieties in carnations. Cattleyas are being grown extensively. Gladioli are a leading feature. One hundred thirty-five varieties, all labeled, made a fine show at the store on a special occasion. The flowers later were sent to the Old Ladies' Home, where also weekly donations of flowers are made.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS.

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 90 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Gentlemen:-

During the SIX MONTHS from March 4 to September 4 I have received from other Florists, by mail, telegraph or cable, orders to the amount of $513.25 as a result of my advertisement in the Retailers' department of The Review. With the allowance to senders the record for SIX MONTHS is:

Value of orders received-----	$513.25
Less 20% allowed senders-----	102.60
Net value of orders for SIX MONTHS--	410.65

It should be noted that this showing covers the DULL SUMMER MONTHS, when any addition to a Florist's business is decidedly welcome.

Retail Florists not advertising in The Review should profit by this letter.

Respectfully,

The Market.

The bottom has dropped completely out of the market, as it usually does at this season. The closing week of the campaign for the second Liberty bond issue hurt not only the sale of cut flowers, but also the sale of many other commodities, as people on every hand were urged to put all spare cash into bonds, and Boston in this respect proved patriotic, far exceeding its maximum quota. With the chrysanthemum flood coming in under such conditions, there is little wonder that the flower business was more or less demoralized. Mums now are arriving in increasing numbers and the prices run low. Flowers which a few days ago would bring $16 per hundred, now realize but $4 to $6. The quality is fine, but the demand has been lacking. Pompons are more plentiful, but move better than the single-stemmed. Roses have had a hard week. To make matters worse, most of the growers are cutting heavy crops now. American Beauties sell slowly at $15 to $25 for the best flowers. Hybrid teas realize low prices, some of which are hardly quotable. The quality is splendid. Whites are particularly hard to move.

Carnations are arriving more freely and prices are much lower, although they hold up better than those of roses and mums. Violets are of better quality; nearly all are Princess of Wales. Lilies go somewhat slowly. Pink snapdragons and yellow marguerites have suffered with the rest. Some fine Bouvardia Humboldtii is coming in and proves popular for choice floral work. Pansies move fairly well. Some gladioli are still seen; also cosmos and calendulas. Valley remains scarce and high, but calls for it are small.

There is now an abundant cattleya supply, with prices down to $30 per hundred. Oncidium Rogersii realizes $3 to $4 per hundred blooms. Pot plants are selling more easily. Good chrysanthemums and cyclamens are offered, and crotons, dracenas and ferns are in good demand.

Market Anniversary Banquet.

The Boston Flower Exchange celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization of the Flower Market with a ladies' night and banquet at Young's hotel, October 27, with an attendance of more than 250. An orchestra furnished inspiring music while the excellent dinner was being served, and later in the evening the Lotus male quartette and a reader kept the company well entertained, patriotic selections being enthusiastically applauded.

A short business session was held following the banquet, William C. Stickel again acting as toastmaster in his graceful, humorous and inimitable way. He briefly traced the flower history of Boston during the last twenty-five years and remarked that the coming of the Flower Exchange to its present commodious quarters in Winthrop square has caused the whole of the wholesale flower industry to locate in the same section. The corporation has had a prosperous year. It purchased $1,000 of the first Liberty bond issue and applied for $1,000 of the second Liberty loan. The sum of $3,000 additional has been invested in the savings department of a prominent trust company. A regular dividend amounting to $2,416 had been paid to the stockholders.

S. J. Goddard moved that a resolution of sympathy be sent to the family of George Cartwright, late treasurer of the corporation, who served for twenty-four years. This was adopted by a rising vote.

The following board of directors was elected: W. C. Stickel, Andrew Christensen, Lester W. Mann, S. J. Goddard, A. S. Parker, Chester L. Paine, Herman H. Bartsch, Aubrey A. Pembroke and Charles E. Holbrow. Mr. Holbrow is a new member of the board.

William W. Elliott was the only speech-maker of the evening and responded felicitously for the Boston Coöperative Market. He remarked that the latter market made it a point to invite ladies to all its banquets, and that if the Flower Exchange had done so well for twenty-five years without ladies, what would it not accomplish in the next quarter of a century with them! The evening was a most enjoyable one in every respect and closed fittingly with the singing of "America."

Boston Coöperative Market.

The Coöperative Market had its annual meeting of stallholders, growers and stockholders at the Quincy house October 20. There was a large and enthusiastic attendance. It was unanimously voted to dispense with the customary banquet this year and devote the money to the purchase of second Liberty bonds. A regular dividend of ten per cent was declared to stockholders. The financial report showed the corporation to be in a flourishing condition. Bernard J. McGinty, a popular salesman, was added to the board of directors, all the members of the old board being reelected.

Various Notes.

Henry Penn states that he has had more complimentary letters relative to his Liberty bond ads than on any advertising he ever did. Numbers of requests have come for permits to reproduce the ads in other cities, all of which were granted. Mr. Penn personally bought $12,500 worth of the second Liberty loan bonds. Business with the firm continues good, wedding and funeral orders both being numerous.

The teams representing the following concerns compose the Florists' Bowling League this season: Galvin's, H. M. Robinson & Co., the Flower Exchange, the Boston Coöperative Market, the Welch Bros. Co., Carbone and the B. A. Snyder Co. October 25 Robinson's team led, with the Flower Exchange second. J. Dowd was high single string man, with 130, and his 299 made him triple string leader, with F. W. Pettit second with 298.

The Rawson Conservatories, of Arlington, are shipping excellent Halliday and Pacific Supreme mums to A. G. Pembroke. Their leading carnations are Matchless, Benora and Ward.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society, in conjunction with the American Pomological Society and the organization known as the New England Fruit Show, is holding a large fruit exhibition in Horticultural hall this week. Many exhibits from distant states had already arrived at the time of writing, and the quality was superb. The exhibition will close November 4. Boston will hold no fall flower show this year, largely because of the dwindling interest in chrysanthemums.

A. G. Pembroke, a popular salesman for several prominent growers at the Flower Exchange, has been unusually happy of late. It was a 7½-pound boy, and mother and boy are doing finely.

The Welch Bros. Co. reports that during the first and last part of last week it did a splendid business, in spite of depressing conditions for flower selling. The company is moving large quantities of flowers now that prices are reasonable.

Nelson Fisher, son of Peter Fisher, arrived in France October 8 with an American engineering corps. Charles Clapp, Mr. Fisher's son-in-law, at present is studying aviation at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, but he soon will leave for a southern camp for training.

In T. F. Galvin's Park street store I saw fine baskets of Nerine Fothergillii and N. excellens. A large basket of white bouvardia, with a few Hadley roses rising above it and sprays of yellow oncidiums tied to the handles, looked quite effective.

The Halifax Garden Co. is shipping in some excellent Ophelia, Ward and White Killarney roses, in addition to chrysanthemums and its usual high-grade carnations.

Edward Welch and J. T. Butterworth have returned from a three weeks' vacation. Mr. Butterworth visited the leading orchid growers around New York while away and picked up some choice plants for his collection. He is completing the erection of special cattleya benches in all of his houses.

Gordon Fisher, of the Arnold-Fisher Co., Woburn, who was drafted, has secured exemption from military service. The new range of the company is producing fine mums at present.

A. E. E. Koch, of Nobscot, is cutting good pink snapdragons and Mrs. Sander marguerites.

ficers for the ensuing year will be nominated, and there will be a discussion on flower publicity. The feature of the evening will be four short talks by practical men on the propagation of evergreen and deciduous trees and shrubs from seeds and cuttings.

Pierce Bros., of Waltham, are cutting fine Francis Scott Key, Maryland, Ophelia, Black Beauty, White Killarney and Ward roses.

Wax Bros. had a large wedding decoration at the Arlington church October 20. They have booked several other large wedding orders, and general business with them is good.

The Albert Roper estate, of Tewksbury, is beginning to ship in nice blooms of that splendid new rose-pink carnation, Albert Roper.

Peter Fisher is not growing so many carnations as usual this season. Alice, Matchless, Beacon, Benora and White Enchantress are his leaders, but novelties still occupy considerable space. Roses are doing well, Ophelia especially so. Batches of asparagus, chrysanthemums, snapdragons, etc., are grown for home trade, which takes up most of Mr. Fisher's flowers.

Chandler Bros., of Tewksbury, have a fine house of Bonnaffon mums. They are starting to cut some of the mid-season varieties.

Several of the smaller growers near Boston talk of closing down with the cutting of their mum crops, on account of the coal shortage and for other reasons. They can find employment at good wages for the winter, and some plan to start their houses again in the spring, if the outlook improves. One or two growers of single violets will mulch their plants and start up for an Easter crop.

George W. Foster, of Tewksbury, is cutting good Chieftain and Halliday mums. His carnations are just starting to flower.

Bulb shipments continue to dribble in to local growers. Some cases are found to be so matted with roots that they can be dumped out in a solid block. There seems little likelihood of more than one-half the usual number being forced.

Among visitors to the market banquet were S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pegler, of Lewiston, Me. Mr. Pegler reports business good in Lewiston.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

It was generally believed a week ago that prices in the wholesale cut flower market had reached bottom, but it seems there is no bottom. Small demand on the part of the public and an abnormal flood of chrysanthemums and roses were the causes. Chrysanthemums, which sold in other years for $3 and $4 per dozen, brought only $1 and $2 per dozen. A few novelties and specials sold as high as $3 per dozen, but nothing above that figure was even asked. Many chrysanthemum plants were in the market and met with a ready sale.

The rose market was literally flooded last week, and some of the surplus was unloaded at prices as low as $2.50 per thousand. For the low grades 50 cents to $1 per hundred was asked. Carnations last week came in smaller supply and sold for $2 per hundred. Orchids have dropped to $35 per hundred for the selected flowers, and there were plenty to be had at lower figures. Lilies had a break last week, the prices dropping to $3 and $4 per thousand. Valley, too, is lower and the demand is light, as are the shipments.

There were few gardenias, asters and dahlias. Violets are popular with the street merchants. Shipments are increasing and it is expected there will be an abundance of them for Thanksgiving. The supply of autumn foliage is large. Lilacs have arrived with sweet peas and mignonette. There also are pansies and bouvardia.

The flood of seasonable stock proved a boon to those retailers who look for bargains. Friday and Saturday the buying began, the chain stores taking advantage of the low prices. Autos and trucks left the wholesale district loaded. Price was no object and losses to the wholesalers were numerous.

Various Notes.

The fall shows to be held in November are expected to awaken a more general public interest in flowers and have a stimulating effect on business.

The suffrage parade October 27 created a temporary demand for yellow chrysanthemums. It is estimated that 25,000 flowers were sold to the women in the parade. Parades now are held almost daily, but the Fifth avenue retailers say they are of little benefit to business.

Wedding decorations have been few since the season opened, and as a result there has been little call for valley. Although the supply is small, the lack of demand has made prices exceptionally low.

The regular meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held Monday evening, November 12. It will be chrysanthemum night, but there also will be a display of novelties in roses. Visitors from out of town are invited.

The American Institute's eighty-sixth annual chrysanthemum, fruit and vegetable show will be held November 7 to 9 in the Engineering building. The show of the New York Horticultural Society will be held at the Museum of Natural History, Bronx park, Novem-

James Hart, one of the veteran New York wholesalers, is still confined to his home at Madison, N. J., as the result of being run down by a motor truck.

The office of Secretary John Young, of the S. A. F., has been enlarged and the fixtures rearranged.

D. Prexy, who recently joined the ranks of the wholesalers on West Twenty-eighth street, added an auto truck to his delivery equipment October 20.

J. F. Sullivan, of Detroit, who has been spending some time in New York visiting the trade, returned to Detroit October 31.

J. Austin Shaw.

The sub-committee of wholesalers, which will assist the New York committee in raising funds for the S. A. F. national publicity campaign, held a meeting at the office of Traendly & Schenck, 436 Sixth avenue, October 27. Plans for furthering the object of the campaign were made. The meeting was attended by a representative body of wholesalers.

On to Cleveland!

Arrangements have been made for visitors to Cleveland from New York and vicinity, as follows: By the New York Central, Lake Shore Limited, leaving the Grand Central terminal, Wednesday, November 7, at 5:30 p. m. Fare from New York to Cleveland will be $15.23; lower berth, $3.30. A. J. Guttman, W. A. Sperling and John Young, the committee appointed by the Cleveland show management to make arrangements for this personally conducted tour, will appreciate prompt information from those who desire to join the party.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The Rochester market is not in an encouraging condition just now. While the buyer is limited as to variety, the flowers on hand are so numerous that the market is considerably overstocked. The inclement weather is responsible for the quiet conditions. The shipping business in greens, however, is excellent, except that transportation is greatly retarded by troop movements. The carnation supply is small, indeed, and does not meet the needs of any one dealer. Pompons have arrived in small quantities and have sold rapidly. The large mums are in liberal supply, but do not clear so well as might be expected. They are of splendid quality, but have to be cleared at lower prices. The market is overstocked with roses, and prices are low. American Beauties are fine and sell well. Violets are extremely good, both singles and doubles. Valley continues high in price, and florists are not using much of it. Easter lilies are not plentiful, but the demand during the last week has been small. The sale of oak foliage has been good, the leaves being used largely with the brightly colored chrysanthemums. Marguerites, yellow and white, are arriving in small quantities and sell well. The supply of cosmos is small, as well as that of calendulas and bouvardias. Greens are in demand, especially smilax and good asparagus.

Various Notes.

Bertram A. Pemberton, of the Wilson Floral Co., has been awarded a bronze medal for his expertness in first aid to the injured. He passed the advanced examination last August.

A new store known as the Family Flower Shop was opened this week. It is situated a few doors from the Family theater on South avenue.

H. P. Neun is growing a large quantity of chrysanthemums this year. His potted varieties are in fine shape. He has a large number of Boston ferns and his poinsettias are progressing well for Christmas business.

Charles E. Sharpe has been away from the store for a few days because of a hard cold.

George Pantos has discontinued his stand at the 5 and 10-cent store, as he did not find it profitable enough. At his regular stand business has been rather quiet.

Baskets, table bowls and fern dishes filled with gypsophilas and straw-flowers were featured last week by Salter's Flower Store. H. J. H.

DON'T FORGET IT

Confidence is a firm's best asset and it certainly applies to our business in a very large degree.

We can say, however, without fear of contradiction, that no one has ever felt that their confidence was misplaced when they consigned their flowers to us.

Consign that next shipment to us and acquaint yourself with our service.

Special opportunity for a couple of good Rose Growers who are looking for best returns. Our present demand is larger than our supply.

President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

FRED BARTEDES, of the Barteldes Seed Co., Lawrence, Kan., celebrated his sixty-fifth birthday anniversary October 28.

A CHARTER was issued October 20 to Blair-Harper & Co., of Ames, Ia., to operate a garden seeds agency at Charleston, W. Va. Capital stock is $20,000 and the incorporators are: F. McClenahan, George Judische, George F. Graham, T. H. Woodruff and Benj. G. Budge, all of Ames.

SEEDSMEN TO AID HOOVER.

President Bolgiano, after a consultation with the executive committee of the American Seed Trade Association and the directors of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League, has appointed a committee to offer its services to the U. S. Food Commission. This committee represents the varied interest of the seed business and is as follows:

J. L. Hunt, of Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y.
 Howard Earl, of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia.
 W. G. Scarlett, of W. G. Scarlett & Co., Baltimore.
 Charles C. Massie, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis.
 Kirby B. White, of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit.

These gentlemen will offer their services to the commission.

The executive committee authorized the secretary to invest all the available funds of the American Seed Trade Association in Liberty bonds.

F. W. Bolgiano, President.

HENRY F. MICHELL CO., 518 Market St., Philadelphia, Pa.

through the handling of reliable goods. Listening to his story, while seated by the old-style coal stove, the store lighted with oil lamps, one realizes how well our old friend has marked his course, closely associated with the name of Burpee, whose seeds he has always sold.

The new store of the Lutton-De Foor Seed Co. is a model of the latest thought in efficiency, well tested during the last season, when one day's record on the cash register was 1,650 sales made by six clerks. The system of arrangement features a full line of the leading garden seeds in duplicate on both sides of the store, offering a clear passage for customers passing in or out. Equipped with a complete set of Walker bins and finished in mahogany, the ground floor is solely for counter trade. The office is on the second floor. The upper three floors are stocked with the necessary lines for a retail seed business. W. H. Lutton was with H. G. Hastings & Co. for fifteen years, and has a capable running mate in G. De Foor. W. BULB DEALERS' TROUBLES.

If the dealers in Dutch bulbs had anticipated anything like the troubles they are encountering this year, there are not many of them who would have persisted in their efforts to do business. The entire season has been fraught with difficulties. In the first place, there was the uncertainty as to whether or not stock would come. Next, the question of price made trouble, for the costs have advanced in a manner generally most unexpected. With the arrival of the Waaldyk, September 25, it was figured that the troubles were nearing an end, but it has proved that they then only were beginning. There are dealers in the middle west who at the end of October have not been able to get possession of the stock that reached New York on the Waaldyk. To begin with, the British held the shipping papers for weeks; then the congestion on the dock was something terrific and the railroads have seemed powerless to expedite the movement of cars. A considerable proportion of the bulbs have spoiled. The greater part of the imports on the Waaldyk and Schiedyk, representing fully a normal season's supply, have now been put on the rail, but there remain on the dock some thousands of cases, either unidentifiable in the confusion which has existed, or abandoned by those who considered the game not worth the candle. So much time has been lost and winter has come so early in many parts of the country that the present prospect for cleaning up the Dutch bulbs is extremely discouraging. The demand is strong, but if deliveries are not completed soon it looks as though the sales for bedding would be extremely small. On top of this comes a report that another shipment either is being loaded or already has left Rotterdam. Practically everyone dealing in bulbs hopes this report is untrue, for there are troubles enough on hand already.

SAN FRANCISCO SEED NOTES.

C. C. Morse & Co. have been awarded a gold medal for the best display of field, vegetable and flower seeds at the California land show, which is being held in San Francisco. T. C. Holmes, manager of the retail store, reports business active, especially in vegetable seeds, which is largely due, no doubt, to the distribution of the company's new fall catalogue, in which special attention is given to vegetables for

The deceased was a native of New York and was in his eighty-seventh year. In 1857 he was ordained a minister and for twenty years continued in the ministry, in his native state. In 1878 he came to Santa Clara. There he rented a small piece of land and began experimenting in seed growing. The late C. C. Morse was taken as a partner. The two men continued in the business for several years, Mr. Kellogg then selling his interests to Mr. Morse. S. H. G.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

PASADENA, CAL.

The tenth annual fall flower show of the Pasadena Horticultural Association was held at the Hotel Maryland, October 25 to 27. The large rooms were filled with a magnificent display of all classes of stock, plants and cut blooms being better than ever seen here before. This association is made up almost entirely of private gardeners, and the splendid show they put up every year speaks volumes for their energy and ambition. The writer had only time to look at the general effect, and consequently many of the trade groups were overlooked, but one or two stand out in memory.

The Beverly Hills Nursery had a splendid group of conifers of rare and beautiful kinds, well arranged with others of the better known types. Miss Sadie Thomas, as usual, had an excellent display of novelties in mums, the pompons and singles being especially interesting. Theodore Payne had a large collection of native shrubs and plants, while Edward Rust came out with dahlias in great variety. H. Clinkaberry, gardener to Dr. Schiffman, put up a splendid display of orchids, and almost all the principal firms in Los Angeles and Pasadena were represented.

H. R. Richards.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Business on the whole has been remarkably good. The advantage has been slightly with the retailers, owing to the fact that the continued hot spell has prevented violet shipping over the long-distance route and because there has been a heavy demand for funeral work and wedding decorations. Weddings have been more numerous than usual at this time of year, this, no doubt, being the result of departures for training encampments. Entertainments of various kinds have called for large numbers of flowers, and the return of patrons to homes has made business better.

Regarding stock, mums still hold the field and prices have stiffened considerably. The greenhouse-grown stock is arriving in excellent shape. Pompons are in considerable demand, but the supply is too great to be coped with, and many have to be dumped. The supply of roses is about equal to the demand, and the blooms are of good quality. There is a shortage on some days of short and medium stock for funeral work, but other flowers are being substituted. Cecile Brunners are plentiful and Beauties are better than usual.

Dahlias keep up well and probably have sold more freely this year than ever before. Small flowers generally are scarce and lack variety. Carnations are plentiful and of about average quality. Orchids have been in good demand, but, as usual, there is some waste in the labiatas. Valley is out of the market except in small quantities. Greens are plentiful and good.

Various Notes.

J. Wright, of Wright's Flower Shop, has completely recovered from his recent illness. He is spending a good deal of time at the greenhouse range at Moneta. The stock is arriving in fine shape; some splendid cut cyclamens are included with the roses and other stock.

D. MacRorie, of San Francisco, was a visitor last week.

Theodore Payne has returned from his northern trip. He reports several thousand miles without a puncture until he got back to Saugus, almost within sight of home.

H. W. Turner is scheduled to leave this week for Bisbee, Ariz., where he intends to open a store.

The Broadway Florist reports big business. A Greek wedding, a Jewish wedding and many flowers for the opening of a mausoleum at Whittier kept the whole force busy. A large batch of funeral work materialized at the same time.

O. W. Howard, who superintends the landscape work for Howard & Smith, left this week for Texas, where the firm has a large contract. Texas is a big state, but the supposition is that O. W. was headed for "somewhere" near El Paso.

Albert Knopf, of the Redondo Floral Co., writes from Chicago that he is being well looked after by the eastern brethren and is enjoying his trip immensely.

The L. A. Floral Co. reports business as picking up well and, in spite of the unseasonably hot weather, gets few complaints on the long-distance shipping orders.

Frank Lichtenberg entertained his staff at dinner at the Jonathan Club the other night. Mr. Lichtenberg is modest in talking about these things, but I have it from several members of the staff that it was "some" time. Ability and loyalty on the part of the staff are recognized by Mr. Lichtenberg as big factors in his remarkable success.

C. S. Morris, formerly of J. A. Morris & Son, has started in business for himself as a landscape gardener and dealer in nursery stock, and so will have to contribute $1 to the state of California.

H. Reeve Darling, of Darling's Flower Shop, reports an unusually good demand for wedding decorations and says that the amount spent for bouquets is rather above than below the average of recent years. The October business at the store went far ahead of last year's.

Walter Garbett, manager of the wholesale store of W. Armacost & Co., says they are well pleased with the way things are opening up. The "Sold Out" signs were on roses nearly every day during the week. The interior fitting of the store has not yet been completed, but when it has the store will be thoroughly up-to-date in equipment.

S. Murata & Co. report that a big item in the shipping trade now is ready-made designs, many small retailers preferring to have them sent rather than to keep a stock of supplies on hand.

Tassano Bros. say they are going to have many kinds of greens, having made especially favorable arrangements in the north. They handle the cuts at their places at Glendale and Artesia.

H. R. Richards.

A. Ecke reports that the prospects for a good crop of poinsettias are much brighter than they were a year ago, owing to the warm weather throughout the entire summer and fall. Mr. Ecke has 56,000 blooms this year and expects the early varieties will be ready for shipment before Thanksgiving. His methods of curing and packing make them fit for long-distance shipping.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The flood of chrysanthemums is unabated, but no complaints are being registered on this score, as the blooms show splendid average quality and are in unlimited demand. Some are exceptionally fine and bring unusually high prices, considering the heavy supply. Quantities of pompons are brought in daily. Despite the heavy offerings, some say they could use more good whites, these being in lighter supply than some of the colors. Outdoor flowers, such as marigolds, cornflowers, etc., are about gone, but there are good gladioli appearing for so late in the season.

The carnation situation is not encouraging. It is likely that the supply will be none too large all winter, as many of the plants are small. There are plenty of good roses, except American Beauties. Fine Russells are arriving, and Ophelia, Hadley and Ward show splendid quality and sell readily. There is a nice cut of baby roses; Cecile Brunner continues plentiful and in good demand. Of valley there is enough for normal requirements, and the same may be said of cattleyas and other fancy stock. More violets could be used on certain days, but the supply is increasing rapidly, so there probably will soon be plenty for all needs.

brought a rush of orders to the downtown florists during the week, swelling the volume of business largely. One funeral, in particular, called for various pieces of orchids and other fancy stock, the price of which ran into three figures.

The rush of funeral work last week made it necessary for the Misses Hanon to employ extra help from some of the other florists. Reports of a heavy week's business are forthcoming from other concerns, including Podesta & Baldocchi, Joseph's, Pelicano, Rossi & Co., MacRorie & McLaren, Art Floral Co., Julius Eppstein, the Bellevue Florists, F. C. Jaeger & Son, the Francis Floral Co., Mrs. Darbee and Boland's.

The E. W. McLellan Co., according to Manager J. A. Axell, is supplying a heavy shipping demand for White Turner chrysanthemums, the blooms of which are exceptionally large. Shipping orders are large, and the firm is sending out a great deal of helichrysum, in the dried state.

W. Onishi, of the United Flower & Supply Co., is making a special feature of Turner mums this year, the demand for which is so strong that he has his supply sold out three or four days in advance. He is getting the same price as when he first started cutting.

Henry Avansino, of Avansino Bros., says this year they find a stronger demand for white, pink, bronze and fancy colored chrysanthemums than for yellows, which held first place for several years.

The Emporium plant and seed department is being moved to a new location on the ground floor, adjoining the cut flower section, pending the fitting up of permanent quarters for both departments.

J. R. Woodbridge, of the California Fern Co., Los Angeles, paid a visit to the San Francisco trade this week.

Mrs. Lichtenstein, of the Terminal Florists, says they have been busy with funeral work and table decorations, besides experiencing a good counter trade. Being near the Ferry, they get work from the naval training station.

Joseph Lagomarsino, one of the leading violet growers of the San Francisco bay district, has been experimenting with sweet peas with a view to growing large quantities of them outdoors for winter cutting. He planted some seeds in August and is now bringing in a few cut flowers. Next year he hopes to have a large cut in December and January. He has secured land, in the Black hills, at an elevation of 500 feet, which he thinks will serve his purpose admirably.

William Scanlon has resumed his duties with Albert O. Stein after a brief army experience, having failed to pass the physical examination on account of an operation.

Miss Bertha Cohn, one of the proprietors of the Bellevue Florists, had her tonsils removed at the St. Francis hospital a few days ago, following a severe attack of tonsillitis. She is now recuperating at her home. Her partner, Miss Rothschild, reports business well up to expectations, hotel work keeping up satisfactorily. This firm has been delivering many flowers to the Letterman hospital at the Presidio.

Donald McLaren, of MacRorie & McLaren, is back in the city after a vacation in the central part of the state.

Julius Eppstein, in the St. Francis hospital, reports a good demand for cut flowers and some nice decorations. A large Halloween affair will require quantities of chrysanthemums. Mr. Eppstein considers prices for orchids rather high in view of the large supply.

G. C. Roeding, president of the Fancher Creek Nurseries, Fresno, paid the local trade a visit last week.

improving as the later varieties come in and are finding a ready sale to the retailer, who is taking his chances on the stock he buys; the retail business seems to be a little slow in getting started.

Various Notes.

The annual mum show was held at the city greenhouses, Manito park, October 28. Park Superintendent John W. Duncan had on exhibition some unusually fine blooms, several of the Turners measuring more than fifteen inches in diameter. Among the newer varieties which attracted attention were the following: Alice Day, William Rigby, A. S. Baldwin, Odessa, Earl Kitchener, Pockett's Surprise, William Lease and Mrs. P. Stephenson.

Burnette Bros. were first on the market with Bonaffon mums, which are fine and large. They also had a few Marigolds that were beauties, but they do not intend to grow many of this variety.

The Spokane Florist Co. had a home and church wedding decoration last week that was one of the most elaborate ever handled. The event called for flowers for numerous parties and receptions tendered to the bride-to-be before the wedding. Much corsage work was done for orders of the better class.

With the weather remaining pleasant after the frost a week ago, business has not improved to any great extent. There is still a considerable stock of mums that has not been cut because of the dull market. Chieftain and Turner mums are in the market; also a large supply of pompons. Carnations are abundant, but have little sale.

The strike of the employees at the shipbuilding plant is over after five weeks of idleness. This had a depressing effect on business.

The nurserymen are still complaining because of the absence of rain.

The accompanying illustration shows a portion of the store of S. Murata & Co., 380 South Los Angeles street, Los Angeles, Cal. The history of this concern shows a constant growth in the business since Mr. Murata purchased the interest of his employer in the store on Hill street six years ago. By his genial personality and business ability, Mr. Murata rapidly added to his customers among the trade on the Pacific coast. Increase in the volume of sales made larger quarters necessary and the business was moved from Hill street to 751 South Broadway. In the meantime

G. Newman had joined with Mr. Murata, taking a half interest in the business. This partnership was later dissolved. The Broadway store, too, became too small and the business was moved to its present fine quarters. Here W. Hattari and H. R. Richards became interested in the concern.

The ground floor of the building, only a portion of which is shown in the illustration, is used as the salesroom, while the basement is used for storage purposes. The concern carries florists' supplies, grass and clover seed, fertilizers, hose and nursery sundries. The latter lines were put in when the present firm was organized.

The cut flower and greens shipping business done by this firm is large. While the bulk of the stock goes to Utah, Arizona, Texas and New Mexico, a considerable quantity of it is shipped to more remote points. Both New Orleans and Chicago furnish outlets for violets and chrysanthemums, while shipments have been made to New York city. Other points in the middle west and northwest also are supplied.

The growth of the business is a tribute to Mr. Murata's ability and practical knowledge of the business.

The Market.

Business has not been exciting, except for two or three big funerals. Stock is coming in more freely. Carnations and roses are plentiful and local mums are commencing to replace the California stock to some extent, though the quality of the home-grown so far has not been up to the standard. The tarnish bug this year seems to have been working overtime, some of the growers reporting never having known it to be so bad. Pot plants are scarce, cyclamens and mum plants, with a few obconicas, being the only things in blooming plants, but they are not moving fast. Ferns and Rex begonias seem to sell more readily and give better satisfaction at this time of year.

The greenhouse men are beginning to wonder if they are going to get their Easter lily bulbs. The Formosas have not shown up yet, and with no sign of

Mr. Wilson's family has made its home in Bellingham.

Local florists have agreed on a delivery charge of 10 cents on orders under $1 and 15 cents for suburban deliveries of the same amount. The people thus far have willingly paid the added charge. The florists this season will hold carnations at $1 per dozen and violets at 25 cents per bunch.

W. Case, formerly of Horst's flower store, is now with the Hollywood Gardens, Seattle.

The demand for chrysanthemums this year has been exceedingly heavy. The Floral Exchange, which had mums early in September, has been short of stock since the first arrivals, owing to the heavy demand. However, there has been a slightly decreased demand for roses.

The fall flower show held in September was well up to that of any other year, the exhibits being surpassingly fine. The feature of the show was a Lilium auratum with 200 odd blooms.

With one of the largest government bulb gardens in the country at her door, Bellingham is facing a famine in bulbs. The government has properly agreed to sell no bulbs, and florists are unable to get a sufficient supply from importers. Local and California bulbs are selling readily, but the varieties are limited.

Express shipments have gotten through promptly thus far. Florists had been somewhat worried over getting California violets, but there is no indication of any delays along this coast. Service this year promises to be up to that of last.

The theaters are using flowers extensively this year, several season contracts for decorating having been let. The effect is being reflected in other lines of business.

The Bellingham Bulb Garden—not the government farm—brought in the first local chrysanthemums October 10.

The Snohomish Floral Co. has been shipping to the local market some extra fine gladioli and Easter lilies.

G. Newman had joined with Mr. Murata, taking a half interest in the business. This partnership was later dissolved. The Broadway store, too, became too small and the business was moved to its present fine quarters. Here W. Hattari and H. R. Richards became interested in the concern.

The ground floor of the building, only a portion of which is shown in the illustration, is used as the salesroom, while the basement is used for storage purposes. The concern carries florists' supplies, grass and clover seed, fertilizers, hose and nursery sundries. The latter lines were put in when the present firm was organized.

The cut flower and greens shipping business done by this firm is large. While the bulk of the stock goes to Utah, Arizona, Texas and New Mexico, a considerable quantity of it is shipped to more remote points. Both New Orleans and Chicago furnish outlets for violets and chrysanthemums, while shipments have been made to New York city. Other points in the middle west and northwest also are supplied.

The growth of the business is a tribute to Mr. Murata's ability and practical knowledge of the business.

The Market.

Business has not been exciting, except for two or three big funerals. Stock is coming in more freely. Carnations and roses are plentiful and local mums are commencing to replace the California stock to some extent, though the quality of the home-grown so far has not been up to the standard. The tarnish bug this year seems to have been working overtime, some of the growers reporting never having known it to be so bad. Pot plants are scarce, cyclamens and mum plants, with a few obconicas, being the only things in blooming plants, but they are not moving fast. Ferns and Rex begonias seem to sell more readily and give better satisfaction at this time of year.

The greenhouse men are beginning to wonder if they are going to get their Easter lily bulbs. The Formosas have not shown up yet, and with no sign of Mr. Wilson's family has made its home in Bellingham.

Local florists have agreed on a delivery charge of 10 cents on orders under $1 and 15 cents for suburban deliveries of the same amount. The people thus far have willingly paid the added charge. The florists this season will hold carnations at $1 per dozen and violets at 25 cents per bunch.

W. Case, formerly of Horst's flower store, is now with the Hollywood Gardens, Seattle.

The demand for chrysanthemums this year has been exceedingly heavy. The Floral Exchange, which had mums early in September, has been short of stock since the first arrivals, owing to the heavy demand. However, there has been a slightly decreased demand for roses.

The fall flower show held in September was well up to that of any other year, the exhibits being surpassingly fine. The feature of the show was a Lilium auratum with 200 odd blooms.

With one of the largest government bulb gardens in the country at her door, Bellingham is facing a famine in bulbs. The government has properly agreed to sell no bulbs, and florists are unable to get a sufficient supply from importers. Local and California bulbs are selling readily, but the varieties are limited.

Express shipments have gotten through promptly thus far. Florists had been somewhat worried over getting California violets, but there is no indication of any delays along this coast. Service this year promises to be up to that of last.

The theaters are using flowers extensively this year, several season contracts for decorating having been let. The effect is being reflected in other lines of business.

The Bellingham Bulb Garden—not the government farm—brought in the first local chrysanthemums October 10.

The Snohomish Floral Co. has been shipping to the local market some extra fine gladioli and Easter lilies.

NEW GREENS FROM CANADA

Cedar Fronds. Most useful for florists' work; keep in good condition for months. Packages of 100, 6 to 9 in. long, $3.50 per 1000. (Special prices on cedar branches on application.)

Oregon Grape. Very effective in design work, also sell well for parlor decoration, put in damp soil or water; keep for long time; come in varied shades of green, as season advances some turn red, brown, bronze and purple. Once tried, repeat orders follow. Per 1000, $3.50.

Salal. One of our native plants, green all winter, sprays very useful. Per lb., 35 cts.

Vaccinium. This shrub turns from green to bronze-red as season advances and is in a class all by itself. Sprays from 1 to 2 feet. Per lb., 35 cts.

All these goods take classification as "Florists' Cuttings" and take N. or second class express rate. Rate to Chicago is $7.50 per 100 lbs. U. S. duty is 10 per cent and port of entry is Portal, North Dakota. Orders with cash receive preference. Trial order solicited. Canadian florists now use these largely.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.

President, Lloyd O. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Vice-president, J. B. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.; Secretary and Counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia..

A DISASTROUS fire destroyed the packing shed of Thomas Meehan & Sons, Dresher, Pa., October 27.

A NEW nursery soon will be opened at Oroville, Butte county, Cal., by De Witt Salesbury and W. G. Summers. Both partners are experienced as growers and the firm will specialize in deciduous fruit trees. They will start in business with a stock of 75,000 seedlings.

THE Secretary of State for New York has licensed the Gould Growers' Corporation, of Merrifield, Cayuga county, capitalized at $35,000. Incorporators are named as follows: W. M. Gould, E. L. Gould, of Newark; J. A. Gould, of Merrifield, who will engage in general farming and the nursery business.

NURSEYMEN will appreciate the assistance given the fruit tree business by the government, which recently has issued Farmers' Bulletin No. 900, entitled "Homemade Fruit Butters." C. P. Close is its author. The pamphlet is an effort to show the housewife how to substitute marmalade for butter, as a wartime expedient.

PETERSON PLANS FOR SUNDAY.

William A. Peterson, nurseryman, is chairman of the finance committee which is preparing for the monster revival to be opened in Chicago March 10, 1918, by Billy Sunday, the famous evangelist. Mr. Peterson's committee plans on the basis of an advance subscription of $70,000, which is less than half the total expense. "Of the $150,000 expense account," said Mr. Peterson, "$20,000 will be for conservation work, $68,000 will cover the cost of building the tabernacle, rental of site, care of grounds and insurance, $62,000 will be devoted to the preparatory work, the running expense of the tabernacle, the living expenses of Mr. Sunday and his twenty assistants, and the salaries of the twenty assistants, Mr. Sunday himself receiving no salary." Samuel E. Knecht, of the State Bank of Chicago, of which Mr. Peterson is a director, is treasurer.

HARRISBURG PARK PLANS.

Plans submitted by Warren H. Manning, the Boston landscape architect, and George A. Shriner, superintendent of public grounds and buildings, at Harrisburg, Pa., were approved by Governor Brumbaugh October 19. The plans provide for the placing of trees to be dedicated to each of the cities of Pennsylvania in the Capitol park and also in the extension, there being forty-six trees to be located in these grounds. There are over 300 trees in the parks at present, but some of them are in such bad condition that they will have to be removed, while others are planted too close together, necessitating a different arrangement. The great event of Arbor day next year will be the planting of a girdle of trees about the park, one to be dedicated to each governor of the state. All of these trees, as well as the shrubbery to be planted in the park, will be of Pennsylvania

THE CALIFORNIA MEETING.

The 1917 convention of the California Nurserymen's Association closed with a trip to Berkeley to attend the dedicatory exercises of Hilgard hall, of the State University College of Agriculture. This pilgrimage was made to honor the memory of the late Prof. Hilgard, in recognition of his services to horticulture and agriculture in California.

Questions of importance with respect to the future policy of the association were discussed at the business meetings. No action was taken on the motion to raise the dues of membership, the financial interests being taken care of by providing for sustaining memberships at an annual fee of $25.

Interest centered in a paper by William T. Kirkman, Jr., on "Standardization of Commercial Nursery Products." This suggested plan of standardization would provide for the establishment of experiment grounds by the California Nurserymen's Association for the purpose of growing bud wood under the care of experienced horticulturists and botanists. Standardization would be attained by the nurserymen obtaining their buds from record-bearing trees grown under these auspices, instead of from miscellaneous outside sources.

Other papers read during the sessions of the convention were: "Methods of Prevention of Tree and Plant Diseases," by County Entomologist Earl Morris; "The State Laws of Today and the Nurseryman," by State Horticultural Commissioner George H. Heck.

Officers were elected as reported in The Review for October 25. Although the decision in regard to the next meeting place was left with the executive committee, yet it was practically settled that the association hold its next convention in Riverside in conjunction with the fruit growers' convention.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

The Market.

The continued dark and cloudy weather has kept back the usual surplus of stock at this time of the year, but there nevertheless is plenty of good stock. Carnations have longer stems and chrysanthemums have larger blooms. Violets are a little slow in arriving, but there is not much demand for them just now. Several growers are cutting pompons, which meet with a ready market.

A few obconica primulas are in the market and sell well, as they are about the only plants to be had.

Various Notes.

Alfred Hannah has been cutting some good orchids.

James Schols has started to pick his usually fine violets.

The Wealthy Avenue Floral Co. has a good crop of roses. Business is reported good. A. F. C.

Three Money Makers for Florists

Canterbury Bells

Extra heavy field-grown plants. Carried in coldframes up to January, then potted up or planted out in a cold house, will flower around Easter, when they are in great demand either as cut flowers or pot plants.

Hardy Daisy King Edward VII

Extra heavy field plants grown from an exceptionally fine strain and reselected seed. Treated the same as Canterbury Bells; when planted out on benches they will produce great quantities of most desirable cut flowers of enormous size, or they will bloom all summer outdoors.

Hardy Phlox "Miss Lingard"

The finest Florist Cut Flower Phlox in existence. It blooms from May until cut down by frost. Fine spikes of pure white, large flowers on long stems, with dark green, glossy foliage. No other Phlox can be compared with this one.

We offer 25,000 heavy 2-year field plants of this variety.

ANY OF THE ABOVE THREE LEADERS AT $6.00 PER 100;
$50.00 PER 1000

No investment you could make in hardy plants will bring you quicker or better returns than the above, and if the Stock doesn't suit you, we want it back.

DETROIT, MICH.

The Market.

The campaign for Liberty bonds did not harm the flower business, for last week was a busy one. There was plenty of work and a reasonable sale of cut flowers and corsage bouquets.

The supply of stock is larger than at the last report. American Beauties are plentiful and in good demand, considering the activity in mums, which naturally detracts from the sale of roses. Other roses are short in supply—not equal to the poor demand. Corsage roses, however, are plentiful and of high quality. Carnations are arriving more satisfactorily. The stems are longer and the blooms better, but there are not enough as yet.

Mums of all kinds, both locally grown and those from California, are to be had, the yellows being in largest supply. Pompons have accumulated during the week and large lots may be had at low prices. Pompon plants are used to good advantage. Lilies, Harrisii and rubrum, are plentiful and of highest quality. Snapdragons and calendulas are steady in supply and sell readily. Valley shipments are regular and fine orchids meet with a good demand. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

Various Notes.

E. A. Fetter's delivery car was partially wrecked last week in a collision with another car.

John Breitmeyer's Sons called a meeting October 25, at which F. C. O'Mara spoke. The lecture was attended by all the employees of the firm.

George Hampton and J. P. McCarthy, travelers for the Neidinger Co. and the Rice Co., respectively, Philadelphia, were among last week's visitors.

DREER'S SELECT FRENCH HYDRANGEAS

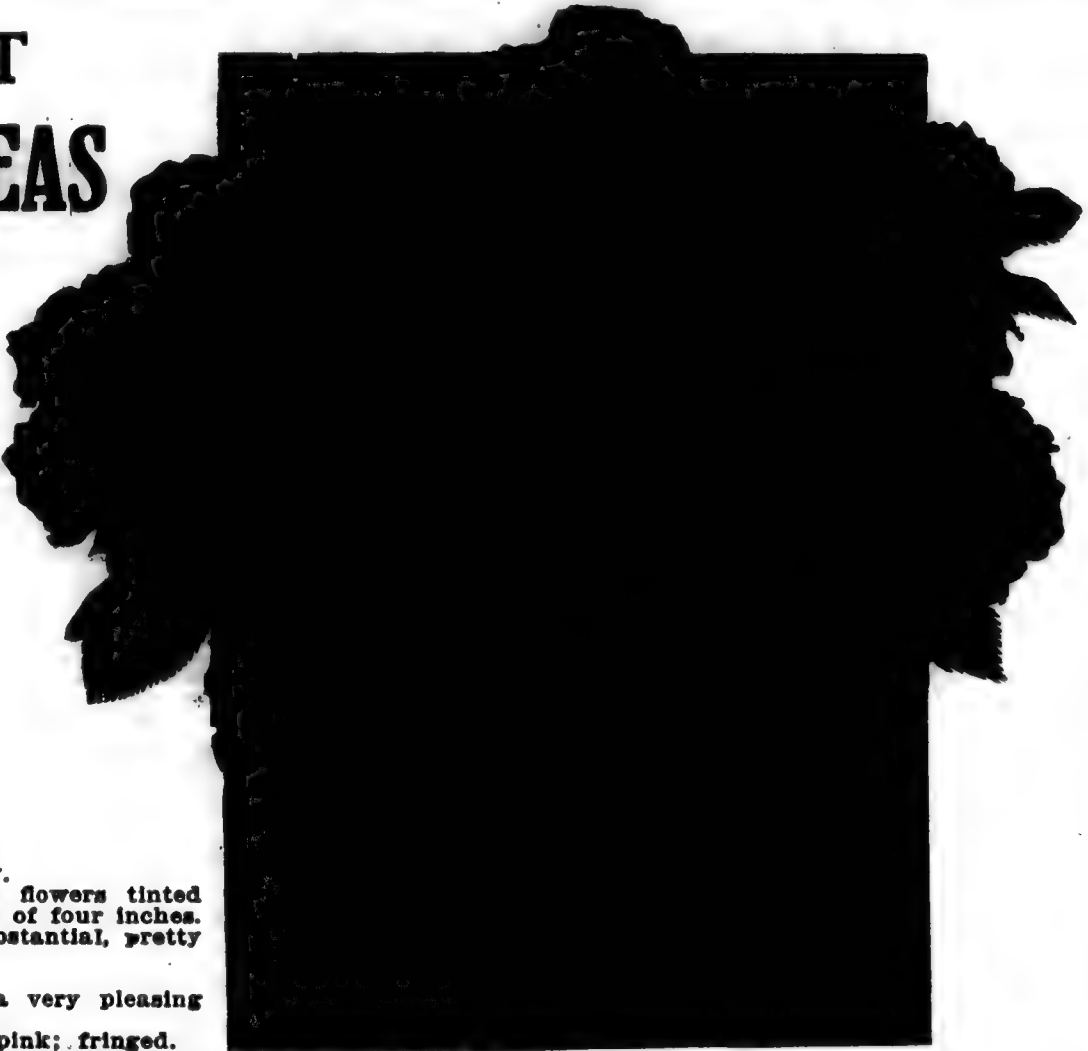

Realizing that the practical elimination of Azaleas and other imported plants for Easter forcing will create an extraordinary demand for Hydrangeas, we have made every possible effort to prepare a sufficient supply of these useful plants.

We have the largest and most up-to-date stock of French Hydrangeas in this country. Our plants this year promise to be the best we have ever offered. The demand exceeds that of all previous years. Orders will be reserved in strict rotation. If you want some of these for Easter forcing, you should place your order at once for immediate or later delivery.

The varieties named below are offered, except where noted:

6-inch pots, at $5.00 per 100.

Attraction. A very pretty pink, early and free.
Avalanche. A deservedly popular white variety.
Beaute Vendemoise. Immense heads of white flowers tinted pink. The individual florets attain a diameter of four inches.
Directeur Vuillermet. Great trusses of good substantial, pretty pink, fringed, medium-sized florets.
Eclairer. Carmine-rose.
E. G. Hill. Trusses of immense size. Color a very pleasing pink. Early, vigorous.
Galathea. Large trusses. White, changing to pink; fringed.
General de Vibraye. One of the most popular and reliable pink sorts.
La France. A new fringed white of vigorous habit and producing large trusses.
La Lorraine. Large flowers, pale rose, turning to bright pink.
La Perle. An exceedingly attractive white variety with large fringed flowers.
L'Islette. Rosy-carmine. Large trusses of deeply fringed flowers. A very promising and reliable sort.
6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.
Louis Mouillere. A fine deep rose-pink. Substantial and vigorous.
Mme. A. Rich. Late, free, sturdy, good compact pink.
Mme. Aug. Nonin. An unusually pretty clear pale-pink. Growth vigorous. Foliage strong and attractive.
6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.
Mme. E. Mouillere. Large white.
Mme. Legou. Immense trusses of compactly placed florets, pure white.
Mme. R. Jacquet. An unusually attractive variety of unique coloring. The flowers when opening remind one of clusters of apple blossoms.
6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.
Mont Rose. Immense panicles of pale-rose flowers. Early and practically everblooming.

Opale. Quite distinct in color. A lively pale rose with attractive pale-green, vigorous foliage.
6-inch pots, $50.00 per 100.
Radiant. A reliable and popular carmine-rose.
Souv. de Lieut. Chaure. Immense heads of bright rose-carmine, flowers on bold upright stems.
Souv. de Mme. E. Chautard. Deservedly the most popular forcing variety. Early and free. Bright rose.
Souv. de Mme. Victor Raoult. Very large lively rose.
Vieux Chateau. Late, large, vigorous, fringed white, shading to pale-rose. A striking novelty.
Otaksa. The old reliable form still fancied by many. We have an immense stock of well-grown plants.
We have also limited stocks of the following in 7-inch pots, which we offer at 75 cents each; $8.00 per dozen.

SIM'S HYBRID YELLOW POLYANTHUS

This is one of my houses, 20x300 feet of National Flower Show Gold Medal Polyanthus. These had been in bloom constantly since November.

I had two houses of Giant Yellow Polyanthus in full crop at Easter. A Review correspondent saw them March 31st and wrote:

"They include some beautiful varieties, which are being carefully marked and saved for propagation. One bed 300 feet long, of a pale yellow polyanthus, true to type in every plant, was particularly fine. I measured individual flowers two inches in diameter and many of the stalks stood eighteen inches high. Two houses, each 300 feet long, are devoted to this crop, and a glorious sight they are."

But the best of it is they had a glorious sale. You can do as well next season if you order your stock now.

Carnation Cuttings

There is a choice between growing cuttings and growing flowers. Some go all the way and grow only cuttings. More are going all the other way and are growing just flowers this season, as it takes less labor. We are taking the middle of the road. More flowers and half the cuttings will be our course. In new varieties, Thenanthos looks to be the best of them.

OUR PRICES FOR 1918:

The Market.

Business has been dull and there was plenty of stock in the market. Roses are good and there are plenty of all grades. Sunburst can be had for from $5 to $8 per hundred; Richmond, Hadley and Milady, $4 to $10 per hundred, and Killarney, My Maryland and Shawyer for $6 and $8 per hundred. American Beauties have good color, stems and foliage and sell at $1 to $4 per dozen. Some shipments of single dahlias were received, but they found no sale. Dahlias have given way to the pompons. A few gladioli arrived during the week and cleaned up regardless of the lateness of the season.

Chrysanthemums are the thing now. Some extra good stock is coming in and sells for from $15 to $25 per hundred. They are far superior to last year's crop. Valley puts in an occasional appearance, but the price of $10 per hundred gives it a back seat. Easter lilies are arriving again and are bringing fair prices. Boston ferns in 4, 5 and 6-inch pots are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Charles H. Netsch has purchased the Dansville Greenhouses, formerly owned by the Jackson sanitarium. The establishment consists of nine houses, which are planted to carnations, roses, chrysanthemums and a general stock, which will be shipped to his store, 342 Genesee street. Mr. Netsch reports business fair.

W. J. Palmer has subscribed for $50,000 worth of Liberty bonds.

R. A. Scott is cutting a good crop of Zenobia pompons. They are having a ready market for this stock. W. W. Waring, of the Scott staff, has returned from a trip east, where he paid visits to many florists. He reports that business is fair and everyone views the future optimistically.

The retail florists met at the S. A. Anderson greenhouses Tuesday evening, October 23, for the purpose of discussing what will be the reasonable prices to sell stock for during November. In the absence of W. J. Palmer, Louis H. Neubeck acted as chairman. The evening was rainy and disagreeable, but fifteen florists were there and before the meeting was called to order went through the houses looking over the stock. The principal attractions were poinsettias and pompons. The work of the F. T. D. convention was discussed in detail.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

WILSON RAISES COAL PRICES.

By executive order President Wilson October 27 announced that the fixed prices for coal in what is known as the "central competitive field," which includes Indiana, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois, would be increased 45 cents per ton, the new schedule to take effect Monday, October 29. With the 45 cents additional the prices at the mines in those states are as follows:

	Run of mine	Lump	Screen- ings
Illinois	$2.40	$2.65	$2.15
Indiana	2.40	2.65	2.15
Pennsylvania	2.45	2.70	2.20
Ohio	2.45	2.70	2.20

While the order refers only to the mines in the states named, it is practically certain that the increase granted will extend to all the mines of the country. The additional charge was allowed following the wage agreement made at a conference held in Washington October 6, in which the miners were granted increases ranging from fifty to seventy-eight per cent. As the wages of miners in other fields are based upon those paid in the central field, it is expected that increases in other states will be granted, with a consequent increase in the cost of fuel.

The action of the President and the fuel commission, it is believed, will end the strike troubles which have hampered the government in its determination to get a maximum production of coal.

THE FUEL SITUATION.

Most of the larger growers have considerable coal in storage. They became large growers by virtue of their ability to see into the future. Such growers always go into winter with their sheds full and aim not to encroach on the stored supply until the cold begins to strengthen at the time the days begin to lengthen. During January and February it always is more or less difficult to replenish the fuel supply. Consequently, the forehanded grower plans to be able to get through those months in spite of blockades on the railroads, increased consumption and all other contingencies. This year, midwinter difficulties came upon the trade in October; it now is harder to get prompt delivery of coal than it usually is in late January. If one's coal is shipped, it is likely to be commandeered en route by anyone whose might makes right.

For the small florist who depends on wagon deliveries of coal, this is going to be a hard winter. For the larger man who has a part of his needs on the place, it will be bad enough.

It seems essential that a reserve be ac-also on the area and arrangement of the heating surfaces. If the fire surface is properly adjusted to the grate area, we would consider the boiler capable of handling 800 square feet of hot water radiation and this should heat 2,800 square feet of glass to 55 degrees. This would represent a house 20x100 feet, or two houses 20x50 feet, with two feet of glass in each wall.

As nearly as we can tell from the sketch, the boiler has ports for one flow pipe and for three 1-inch returns. For a house of the width mentioned we would use two 2½-inch flow pipes if the length of the house is fifty feet, or three such flows if the length is 100 feet, and the return mains should be of the same size and number. In addition to the flow pipe, we would use nine 2-inch returns with the three flows and ten returns when there are only two flow pipes. If there are two flows we would place one upon each plate, and if there is a third flow pipe it should

The Market.

Market conditions are better, the supply of cut flowers having become much heavier, and where there was a scarcity, now there is a plenty. The demand for chrysanthemums has increased, while the flowers are of much better quality. Blooming mum plants now are plentiful. Roses of fine quality are arriving, the quantity exceeding the demand. Prices of roses have dropped slightly. Carnations have improved in quality, but the supply is still short. Lilies meet only a small demand.

Various Notes.

W. J. Barnes had a big week in funeral work, the sales being about three times the normal. Mr. Barnes used every palm, fern and decorative plant he had in a big wedding decoration last week.

Many of the local florists participated in the Liberty bond parade last week.

Mrs. Fred Fromholdt underwent a serious operation last week, but despite her weakened condition was taken home, as her mother was not expected to live.

Peter Martin has started propagating his geranium stock for spring sales. His mums and ferns are looking good.

William Foith has more than half his establishment planted to carnations. Sweet peas and mums are in excellent condition at this place.

R. S. Brown & Son report that they have many orders for bulbs, which they have been unable to fill, no bulbs having yet been received.

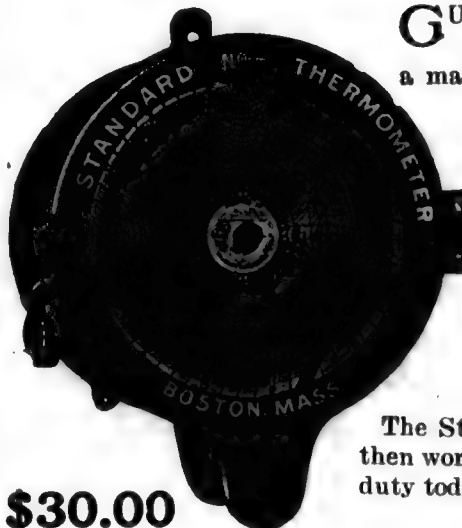

T. J. Noll & Co. received another large shipment of baskets last week.

Henry Kusik & Co. are receiving a large quantity of rubrum lilies.

Visitors to the trade last week were Clifford Pruner, of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, and Sam Seligman, of Wertheimer Bros., New York.

Laughing at Winter

Winter's coming!

Won't be long now before you'll be turning on heat in earnest. Many are starting already.

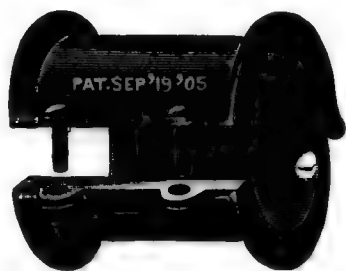

Rust holes may have already developed in pipes that have lain idle all summer. The first real freeze may split a pipe here or there. A joint may start leaking.

The Emergency Pipe Clamp was designed for just such trouble.

Handy, easily applied and permanent, it will save you from tearing out pipe this fall.

Just slap a bit of gasket rubber (we furnish it) over the leak, apply the clamp with an ordinary wrench—and forget it. It'll hold for good.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The chrysanthemum season is on with a bang; the blooms find a ready sale at good prices. Snapdragons have made their first appearance; they attract a good price and demand. Carnations are better than last week, and roses move satisfactorily. Violets sell sluggishly and will not hold the market so long as the mums are in evidence. Providence is a good mum town.

Various Notes.

Orin Smith, of Pawtucket, has been spending a few days' vacation at Point Judith.

M. Koppelman, who was operated on at the Boston hospital a couple of weeks ago, is in a dangerous condition.

S. Toher has given up the florists' business to become a member of the Providence police force.

Miss Nellie O'Connor, of Thayer street, received a large shipment of palms, ferns, decorative plants and fancy baskets from Philadelphia last week.

S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia, was a visitor last week.

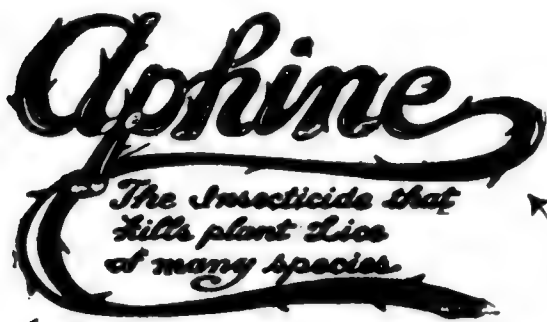

Macnair has adopted the service of uniformed boys for his deliveries. The boys wear trim suits of dark blue, with the name "Macnair" in gold letters on the collar of the coat and on the front of the cap.

William Williams, a member of the state board of agriculture, died a few days ago at his home in Bristol, after an illness of about ten days. He was in his ninetieth year.

John J. Johnston, of Johnston Bros., has been appointed a member of the committee for Rhode Island to get subscriptions for the national publicity campaign. Other members are George L. Stillman, of Westerly, chairman; Robert M. Lamont, of Quinick, and Laurence Hay, of East Providence.

Edward J. Johnston, who has been at the greenhouses of Johnston Bros., now is assisting at the store on Dorrance street.

Bert West, with William Hay, has been on a business trip through central Massachusetts. W. H. M.

PLANT TUBS

EVERLASTING VIRGINIA WHITE CEDAR

EVERYBODY agrees that Plant Tubs made of everlasting Virginia White Cedar will best resist rot or decay. The "Keystone" brand of White Cedar Plant Tubs are made of this celebrated wood, and these goods are painted inside and out with best oil paints, a rich green.

They are bound with heavy steel hoops for the large size, and electric-welded wire hoops (galvanized) on the small size. The large sizes are trimmed with handsome drop handles and metal feet, and have perforated, removable bottoms.

These Cedar Tubs are made in all sizes, from 24 3/4 inches top diameter down to 6 inches, amply large for a Bay Tree and small enough for a Hyacinth. Every one guaranteed. Booklet in colors, with prices, furnished upon request.

The C. A. Dahl Co. is right in line with a good stock of holiday plants, especially poinsettias, which bear the earmarks of the grower, A. J. Scott, who had his first experience under Uncle William at Buffalo, and has been improving ever since.

Wachendorff Bros. have their usual high-grade stock of chrysanthemums. The annual private exhibition was a big success.

"Though lost to sight, to memory dear," exclaimed J. P. Russell, referring to a shipment of Dutch bulbs somewhere in transit. "There is some consolation in knowing we are not alone in this uncertain state." Early varieties of chrysanthemums are not grown. William Turner, both yellow and white, Yellow Eaton and Golden Wedding chrysanthemums are leaders and bear evidence of high culture, as does Begonia Chatelaine and Lorraine. Cyclamens have that glossy foliage seen in well-grown stock.

"The matter of publicity deserves careful thought," observed Walter C. Lawrence, of the Lawrence Floral Co., "but I have been too busy, even declining to make an exhibit or act as judge at our annual fair. Funeral work has kept us fully employed, and shortage of stock has helped to bother us." Noticing that Miss Lawrence was busy knitting, the fact was learned that this Lady Bountiful has, during leisure moments from waiting on patrons, knitted seven sweaters and ten pairs of mittens to keep some of our soldier boys warm, an act worthy of note in these exceptional times.

One of the most successful in the history of the state fairs annually held in this city closed October 20, was the verdict of H. G. Hastings, president of the show association. Stock and produce were of the highest order and the attendance was encouraging. W. M.

The Market.

Business is good. The supply is large enough to satisfy all immediate wants. The shipping business is satisfactory, but shippers are having considerable trouble on account of express delays. Roses are in good supply. The whites sell readily, but the pinks move rather slowly, due to their preponderance over the whites in the daily receipts. Carnations are in fair supply. Excellent Easter and rubrum lilies may be had.

Chrysanthemums are in heavy supply. There is an overabundance of good yellow blooms. The supply of the better grade of whites is rather short, and as a result this color is cleaning up quickly. The short and medium grades find a better market than the choice blooms. Callas now are offered. Among other offerings are sweet peas, valley, orchids and snapdragons. Greens are in excessive supply.

Various Notes.

The Hoffmeister Floral Co., Lick Run, is sending excellent Harrisii and rubrum lilies to C. E. Critchell.

Adam Miller, one of the pioneer florists of the city, died suddenly last week.

C. E. Critchell has assurances from the American Express Co. that the company will handle and forward promptly all shipments of flowers from this district to the Cleveland flower show. All who intend to attend the show should get in touch with Mr. Critchell.

Among recent visitors were Mrs. W. B. Johnston, of Chattanooga, Tenn.; M. A. Leganger, representing A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; E. Fancourt, of the S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia; I. Rosnosky, representing the Henry F. Michell Co. C. H. H.

GROUND BONE

The Basis To Buy It On

THE value of Ground Bone as a fertilizer depends directly upon the amount of Ammonia (containing Nitrogen principally) and Bone Phosphate of Lime (Phosphoric Acid and Lime) in that Bone.

These amounts vary widely in different grades of bone. Therefore, some cost less than others—and are worth less.

So don't buy your Ground Bone like a "pig in a poke." Find out how much of the actual fertilizing elements is in the bone you buy.

Demand an analysis. That is absolutely the only basis on which you can determine whether the price you're asked to pay is low or high.

N. A. C. Ground Bone is sold on a guaranteed analysis. We're only too glad to give these figures, because we are confident that they will convince you of the real economy of

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

Business has been good. The market is well supplied with fine stock, especially in chrysanthemums. Ramapo, Golden Glow, Major Bonaffon, Polly Rose, Pacific Supreme, October Frost, Smith's Advance and Early Snow are the varieties arriving and all are of good quality, while the quantity equals the demand. Pompons, too, have shown improvement. Carnations are coming in larger supply and the quality is better. Roses are in abundance. Easter lilies are holding their own and are in demand for funeral work. Rubrum and potted rubrum lilies sell well.

The first part of last week was colder, with snow flurries, and business showed an increase.

Various Notes.

The coal shortage will not affect the florists here, as most of them report that they have secured their supplies.

The Hill View Gardens had a rush of funeral work last week.

The Heiss Co. had an order for two bouquets of Ramapo chrysanthemums last week. Each bouquet contained fifty flowers, for which $5 per dozen was received.

Harry Tredway reports an increase in business, with much funeral work.

The Dayton Floral Co. had a number of decorations last week, the largest of which was in Memorial hall, where Lord Northcliffe presented Orville Wright with a medal. G. J. F.

FARGO, N. D., MOORHEAD, MINN.

The Shotwell Floral Co., Fargo, has been having a rush of business, wedding and funeral work predominating. Shipments to nearby towns also have been numerous. The company is displaying good quality mums in all colors and some excellent pompons, grown in its own greenhouses. Dutch bulbs have been received and are selling rapidly.

T. D. Smedley, of Fargo, had a pretty window recently, mums in baskets being featured with goldfish and aquariums. Funeral work and counter trade have kept the staff busy.

J. W. Briggs, of Moorhead, reports business as being excellent. A. G.

King Greenhouses

KEEP SUMMER with You the WHOLE YEAR ROUND

On account of their sturdy special construction, which permits of great strength without the need of heavy, shadow-casting supports, these houses are so warm and sunny that they are filled with a riot of bloom and fruit when Jack Frost has stripped the garden of its beauty.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is a mixture of over 50 distinct thoroughbred varieties, and many sub-varieties of show and fancy pansies. It contains every giant variety known with many shades of red, bronze and new fancy varieties in large numbers, and all the colors in the right proportion for the retail trade. Hundreds of my customers say it is the best they ever had. Send for my descriptive list containing testimonials to this effect from leading florists in all sections of the country. "Pansies arrived in good condition. In fact, they are the best plants we have ever bought—Myers & Co., Bluffton, Ind." See also other samples in my ad of the 11th. I have made the growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for nearly 50 years, and have a large stock of the best plants that can be grown. The seeds were sown in light, sandy soil, thinly broadcast, with a sower of my invention, more evenly than the most expert hand can do it, and the plants have room to grow strong and stocky, with extra good roots. Largest plants, 12 weeks old, 1000, $4.50; 500, $2.50; 250, $1.50; 10,000, $43.00. Medium size, 10 weeks old, 1000, $3.50; 500, $2.00; 250, $1.25; 8 weeks old, 5-7 leaves, 1000, $3.00; 500, $1.75. Special cut flower mixture, extra fine, 1000, $6.00; 500, $3.00; 250, $1.75. USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

Paul O. Tauer, of Lebanon, Ind., has been a busy man. He was not only a candidate for mayor, but was one of the leaders in the Liberty bond campaign.

The Bertermann Bros. Co., Indianapolis, had a wonderful display of fall flowers in the store at 241 Massachusetts avenue. Irwin Bertermann, speaking of the F. T. D. convention at Detroit, said he believes the spirit that prevailed, and the work accomplished, will be of benefit to all florists.

The Pahud Floral Co., Indianapolis, reports an active fall business. The greenhouses have been unable to supply the demand.

The florists at Fort Wayne, Ind., were busy making preparations for the flower show scheduled for November 14. It was expected that the competition would be keen.

The New Haven Floral Co., New Haven, Ind., was preparing to send some fine mums to the Fort Wayne show. It was expected roses, too, would be ready for exhibition.

B. H. Klus & Son, Anderson, Ind., have completed a Foley greenhouse, which will be devoted to mums and carnations.

J. S. Stuart & Son, of Anderson, have several houses of mums, which are developing large blooms. Stock of all kinds was doing well, though a shortage of roses and carnations was felt.

It was hoped that with the coming of cold weather the coal situation would improve. Many florists in the middle states have no coal and are unable to buy any. Some were mixing sawdust with coal to conserve the latter. Many were optimistic, however, and said they would continue until it was impossible to get anything that would burn.

PLEASE MENTION THE REVIEW WHEN WRITING ANY OF THESE ADVERTISERS

W. T. U.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The weather has been exceptionally cold, snow having fallen in October for the second time in thirty-five years. There have been many dark, cloudy days, and as a result there has been a smaller supply of stock. The demand has been heavier than the receipts for a number of weeks; in fact, it has been a serious question how to procure stock to satisfactorily fill all demands. It has seemed impossible at times to secure needed supplies from the north.

Roses perhaps are the most plentiful item in the market, with chrysanthemums arriving in larger numbers each week. The first chrysanthemums have been better than one would expect, and they are selling at higher prices than for years. Carnations are not yet up to the standard, and still are decidedly on the scarce side. They wholesale at $3—anything that can be secured goes at this price. I do not mean that the quality is poor, but that it is simply impossible to buy much stock. Pot plants are extremely scarce, and to make up the deficit chrysanthemums are being offered with only a few of the first flowers partly opened. The mum plants sell well, and the customer gets better value than if the plants were in proper condition, if he knows how to care for them.

The French bulbs as yet have not all arrived; the first of the Dutch bulbs reached the city late last week. One hears no complaints as to quality, and as all of the local men buy on this side of the water, the price does not bother them much. No one expects to be able to secure stock another year, however. It is safe to say that there will be fewer bulbs forced in Nashville this year than there have been for ten years. This means that there will be an increase in the number of gladioli and sweet peas grown, and that snapdragons will have a larger place than usual.

Various Notes.

The Joy Floral Co. is cutting chrysanthemums heavily. The men say they had a smaller cut of dahlias this season than for a number of years.

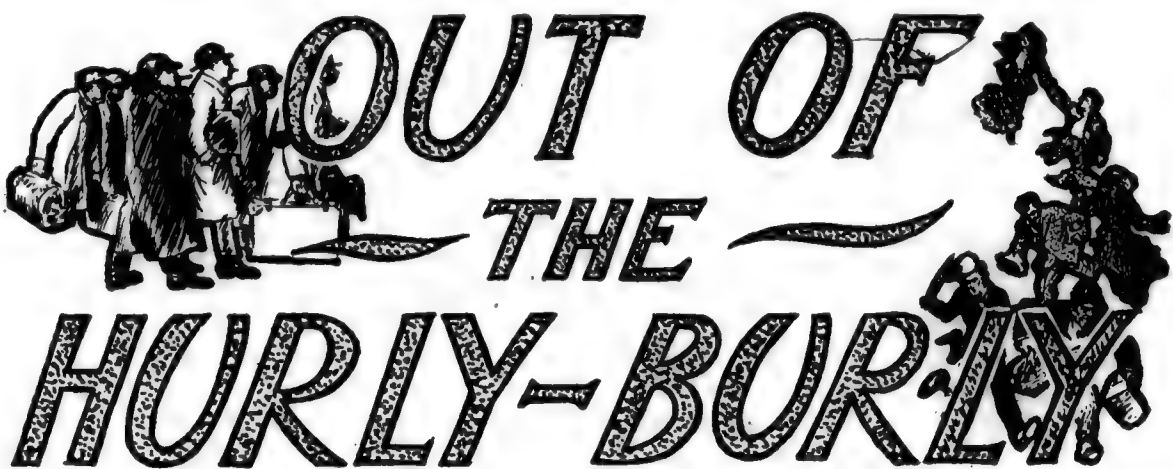

Geny Bros. have been selling good mums in pots during the last three weeks. They have disposed of all the Roman hyacinths and Paper Whites they could spare for their counter trade. This year they are forcing freesias more heavily than usual.

McIntyre Bros. did not order Dutch bulbs last year, and are paying the price this fall. However, one year with another, they feel they can do as well by buying in America.

Leslie Little is moving the last of the old stock of the Hillcrest Ornamental Nursery to his place on the pike.

F. B.

Oshkosh, Wis.—Ward B. Davis, Ninth street gardener, has completed the erection of two large greenhouses for flowers and vegetables.

Wausau, Wis.—M. Philipp, Harry C. Green, Herman Heise and William Daman have incorporated the Philipp business here under the name of Philipp Floral Co. The authorized capital is $20,000.

Lancaster, Pa.—David K. Herr has been contributing articles for the guidance of local amateur gardeners to a local newspaper. He is regarded as one of Lancaster's foremost florists and growers.

Dows, Ia.—E. D. Curtis has purchased the greenhouse range of 5,000 feet at Dows. He now has three establishments, one each at Webster City, Hampton and Dows, and a branch store at Eagle Grove.

Monroe, Mich.—Otto H. Cron, the Washington street florist, attended the F. T. D. convention at Detroit and upon his return to Monroe secured some good publicity for the association by giving an interview to a local paper in which its objects and the character of its service were explained.

Jackson, Mich.—Jackson is a good town, in the opinion of Henry Van Campen, for the first of the Van Campen greenhouses now is running full speed ahead in the production of cut stock and plants.

Omaha, Neb.—Hess & Swoboda are receiving a fine lot of early chrysanthemums from their greenhouses. The absence of the California-grown stock is noted. A catchy sign in the window reads, "Skillful hands produce our floral designs."

Urbana, O.—A fire at the Urbana Floral Co. range on the morning of October 7 destroyed the company's office building, work room and boiler room. The greenhouses on the north and south sides of the burned buildings were badly damaged by the intense heat and smoke. The smoke also forced its way into the greenhouses and caused severe injury to the stock. The blaze is thought to have originated in the boiler room. The loss is estimated at $7,000, $4,000 of which is covered by insurance.

Greenville, S. C.—An attractive new flower shop was opened October 20, at 208 North Main street, to be known as the Graceland Greenhouses. Flowers sold there are grown near Graceland by the Graceland Floral Co.

Savannah, Ga.—A. C. Oelschig & Sons were fortunate in that the big freeze did not totally destroy their rubber plantation. The usually big crop of cuttings will materialize, for which higher prices will be asked. Funeral work was good, and a handsome new delivery car was seen on the street.

Savannah, Ga.—John Wolf opined that not until the dogs of war are leashed will business be normal. There is excellent patronage from the middle class, but the so-called society trade is submarined. A few military weddings helped to fill the exchequer and came just at the time when there was stock to fill the bill satisfactorily. Flowering stock, both in pots and for cutting, was in prime form at this, one of the up-to-date southern establishments.

Dallas, Tex.—Helen Lang, daughter of Otto Lang, of the Lang Floral & Nursery Co., was married to G. H. Preston October 6.

Lynchburg, Va.—Miss McCarron attained public print last month through a unique window display representing a battlefield "somewhere in France." Soldiers were shown charging the enemy trenches, and miniature boats flying the colors of the Allies were steaming about on a lake. A large American flag and the emblem of the Red Cross Society were fashioned from flowers.

Charleston, S. C.—Charles T. McIntosh & Son recently had a unique window display in which the snake gourd figured conspicuously. Among the host of admirers were the "Jackies," who quartered near the city. An innovation in the store is a glass house built over the cash register, with an electrical arrangement showing the patriotic colors whenever a sale is rung up. Bulb orders were good and the stock was first-class.

A Word to the Doubting Dodgers Who Haven't Added Their Bit to the S. A. F. Advertising Fund

HAMP LAWRENCE is a town character up our way.

That is, he and his horse are.

The horse is gray.

So is Hamp.

The horse does about as he pleases.

Hamp says about what he pleases.

Last week they put the new bell in the Presbyterian Church. Just as they started giving it the first try-out ringing, along came Hamp and his horse. With the first stroke of the bell, the old horse pricked up his ears and snorted. With the second, he up on his hind legs and then plunged into a mad gallop down through town, across the track, up the big hill by the school-house, and never stopped till, as Hamp said, "he was clean did up."

First thing Hamp did when they both came jogging into town again, was to look up Deacon Hadden, and ask him "where they bought the bell." Said he "wanted to get one like it, so every time he came to town he could start the old hoss going with it.

"Reckoned it would be cheaper than buying so many new gads."

When I heard the fellows, sitting on nail kegs down at the corner store, tell about it; at once popped into my mind, why not borrow old Hamp's bell and see if we can't start some of the Doubtful Dodgers doing their bit for the S. A. F. Advertising Fund?

Strange isn't it, that when it's so plain how every dollar, that every man puts into that fund, is going to help every dollar he has in his business, to make more dollars; that every one of the 12,000 in the business don't dig right down in their jeans and cheerfully add their bit?

Some are putting off putting in, by using the excuse that they "don't understand all there is about it."

They don't need to understand.

That's the Finance and Publicity Committees' end of it.

Read the names of the Committees below. Every one of them is a keen business man. Men who have done things; are doing things; and are going to see that this advertising is done the very best way it can be done.

Don't think for a minute that there are any fat jobs for anyone in it; or that you are going to help pay for the furnishing of a swell office.

Your money and everybody's money, will be just as carefully spent by these men as if they were spending their own money for their own business.

That's why they are on the Committees.

Don't put off giving because you don't feel you can give as much as some.

Give what you can, if only a few dollars.

Your few dollars, added to a few more dollars from a few more, and first thing you know the $60,000 will be all paid in, and those fine full page advertisements in the Saturday Evening Post will be busy telling 10 million people to buy more plants and flowers.

Send your money to any one of the Finance Committee.

"Give Them the Credit-- They Had the Real Nerve"

YESTERDAY, I lunched with a New Yorker who stands at the head of one of the biggest advertising propositions in the country. A business in which the contract of one customer alone, calls for over two million dollars' worth of advertising for 1918. Think of it—two million dollars!

I told him about the splendid S. A. F. advertising plan, and what it aims to do, and would do. He at once saw its tremendous possibilities.

In the course of the conversation, mentioned the courageous work the Chicago Club had done in their Mothers' Day advertising of last Spring.

Promptly, he declared that "it was their trail-blazing work that made the S. A. F. action possible this year." "Give them the credit, they had the nerve." "It sped the S. A. F. up." "It hastened the action, years."

"Surely," he said, "if one Club, in one City of this vast country of ours, can get together over a thousand dollars and buy a page in a big national weekly, to exploit Mothers' Day in a big, broad-minded, unselfish way; what cannot a national society do with the thousands of dollars at their command?"

If there are any skeptics among you, as to the success of the proposed S. A. F. Publicity and Advertising, listen to this:

In a report of fifty co-operative advertising campaigns of a nature similar to the S. A. F., these facts are on record.

40 of them have been running five years.

5 of them, three years. 5 for two years.

Each year each one has increased its expenditures.

one of them started on less than $25,000.

All of them are now spending over $100,000.

Several of them spend one quarter of a million.

The point then is, if the Chicago Club had the nerve to do what they did all by themselves, where is your nerve, that you hesitate a minute to give freely to the S. A. F. fund, when such men as George Asmus, Wallace Pierson, F. L. Atkins, Herman P. Knoble and John Young, of the Finance Committee, and W. F. Therkindson, of the Publicity Committee, are at the helm?

Get out that little old wallet of yours and unwind the string, and lay down some real money.

Don't wait until someone digs you in your ribs before you dig into your pocket.

This is that CANTLEK gutter

You've heard about

There are many florists, and maybe you are one of them, who think that we make and sell only steel gutters. That's because we have said, and say now, that our steel channel gutter is the best gutter for all purposes that was ever manufactured. But we do make another kind.

Some people want wooden gutters and to fill this want we make what is easily the best wooden gutter ever put on the market, the AGMCO CANTLEK. It is best because it embodies positively new principles of gutter construction by locking the sills to the bottom plate and filling the joint with a white lead and putty mixture.

The sill will always line up straight, as it must fit over the bevel on the plate. When the sill is put on, it is hooked into the groove and forced against the bevel side of the plate. This draws the sill down tight and makes the tongue fit snugly into the groove on top of the plate.

When the sills are in place and the groove is filled with white lead and putty mixture, you have a water-tight, flat gutter. The mixture won't run down and out, as in all other wood gutters, but it will fill up the little trough on top of the plate. After this sets, your gutter is like one piece. And in addition to all this, it has the deepest drip gutter on the market.

This bevel and groove rings down the curtain on all other wooden gutters. It's the solution that greenhouse makers have been looking for these sixty years. You can't afford to have and you won't have the old-style leaky, crooked, water-soaked wooden gutter after seeing the AGMCO CANTLEK gutter. All sash bars are joined to the gutter with our special "triple screw" bar brackets. These brackets prevent bar rot and split ends. Can you afford to spoil gutters and bars that cost you good money by nailing them together in the out-of-date way?

Then insist on the wooden gutter that was awarded a certificate at the S. A. F. and O. H. Convention in New York last August.

Don't wait until you have to grab the first thing that comes to hand.

Something for the Winter Season

THE days are getting shorter. Darkness comes early. Before your work is finished you are compelled to stop because you can no longer see.

The ordinary barn lantern gives out about thirty candle power; not much good to work by.

The "Nite" Lantern gives out 400 candle power, burns gasoline or kerosene and costs about 1/4c per hour to run. Can be used very roughly without damage and will not blow out in a wind.

It is a great thing to hang in your boiler or packing room, for it lights up the whole place, enabling all to do some extra work, and it spreads cheerfulness all around.

Capacity 1 quart (burns 15 hours), price $6.50.
